INTRODUCTION

This is the fourth annual supplement to the 1934 edition of the Standard Catalog for Public Libraries and includes the first, second, and third annual supplements, published 1935, 1936, and 1937.

The Supplement is cumulated and includes 600 new titles added this year, and the 1845 titles which were in the first, second, and third supplements, making in all 2445 titles, with 670 additional titles mentioned in notes. A list of new titles added this year is given after the class list. In addition to these new titles the Supplement includes 241 reprints, 340 new editions and 55 continuation volumes of books listed in the main catalog. Most of the books added this year were published in 1937 or early in 1938. A few series of useful pamphlets have been included but in general no individual pamphlets, since this field is now covered by the Vertical File Service. The titles are arranged in the order of the Dewey Decimal Classification, and the Outline of classification will serve as a table of contents.

The selection has been made primarily for small and medium sized libraries, but the list will be found useful in larger libraries, especially in suggesting good titles for first purchase. The editors are greatly indebted to librarians and specialists in various subjects who voted on tentative lists of books for the Supplement. A list of collaborators will be found following the introduction. As in the main catalog, no titles in foreign languages have been included.

Books recommended for first purchase, especially by smaller libraries, are marked with a star. About 542 titles or almost one-fourth of the total number are so marked. About one-quarter of these starred books are marked with a double-star which indicates those most highly recommended. Probably the entire collection of books starred will not fit the needs of any one library because local needs differ. It is necessary to adapt the selection to the community.

New editions of books in the main catalog have been listed if important changes have been made, and for each a note is given telling how the new edition differs from the old. Reprints at lower prices, of books already in the main catalog, have been listed without annotations, at the end of the class to which each belongs. The full annotations will be found in the main catalog.

Many analytical entries for parts of books were included in the index to the main catalog and this feature has been continued in the Supplement. A total of 644 books, about one-fourth of the number included, have been analyzed wholly, or in part.

Both American and English publishers and prices are given for books published in both countries. Prices have been obtained from the Cumulative Book Index, the Reference Catalogue of Current Literature for 1938 and Whitaker's Cumulative Book List.

Responsibility for the work is divided among the three editors as follows. To Dorothy E. Cook: Science, Useful Arts, and Travel; to Helen Grant Cushing: General works, Philosophy, Religion, Philology, Fine Arts, and Literature; to Isabel Monro: The Social Sciences, History, and Biography. Dorothy E. Cook has also done the cataloging and most of the work on the index, and has had general supervision of the details.

The H. W. Wilson Company began to issue printed catalog cards in March 1938. These cards are available for all new titles starred in the Fourth Supplement as well as for some others. In the list of "New titles added in 1938" preceding the Index the abbreviation (W) has been added for each title in the Supplement for which cards can be supplied by the H. W. Wilson company. Catalog cards will also be available for all books included in the 1938 Supplement of the Children's Catalog and in the 1938 Supplement of the Standard Catalog for High School Libraries. A complete list of books for which these cards have been made and directions for ordering will be supplied on request.

Thanks are due to the publishers who have supplied copies of the books included in this Supplement.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE

The arrangement is according to the Dewey Decimal Classification. An outline of the classification will be found on page ix. This will serve as a table of contents.

Biography is arranged as follows: (1) Works about biography, 920A; (2) Biographical dictionaries, 920D; (3) Collective biography, 920; (4) Individual biography, arranged by the subject of the biography, 92. Biographies of artists and musicians are classed with criticism of their works in the 700s; and see references are made under their names in class 92 to the class in which their biographies will be found. Lives of Christ are in class 232.

Lists of useful series will be found at the ends of various classes (e.g. 759, 92).

Books recommended for first purchase in small libraries are marked with a star; and those especially recommended are marked with a double star.

English publishers and prices are given after the American publishers and prices: e.g. 1934 Scribner $2.75; Cape, J. 8s 6d.

A supplement to the publishers directory will be found at the end of the Catalog.

INDEX

The index includes in one alphabet author, title and subject entries for all books, and analytical entries for parts of books.

Analytical entries are introduced by the word In. These include:

1. Entries for many subjects not represented in the Catalog by entire books: e.g. Maugham, William Somerset; Radium
2. Many additional entries for subjects for which books are included: e.g. Housing; Lawrence, David Herbert
3. Much biographical material about artists, historical personages, scientists, etc.

000 GENERAL WORKS

010 BIBLIOGRAPHY

Georg Schneider's "Theory and history of bibliography" (1934 Columbia univ. press $3.75; Oxford 18s 6d) a translation by R. R. Shaw of the first volume of the third German edition of Schneider's "Handbuch," published 1926, is the only extensive treatment of this subject which is available in English. It deals with the collecting, listing and arranging of titles in the preparation of bibliographies and will be needed in larger libraries

Conner, Martha

Practical bibliography making with problems and examples. rev by M. V. Higgins 1938 Wilson, H.W. pa 50c; Holmes 010

1 Bibliography

Earlier edition entered in the main catalog

First published 1931. The 1938 edition has been slightly revised to include new definitions, and new paragraphs on title page, table of contents, index and procedure

015 BIBLIOGRAPHY OF SPECIAL COUNTRIES

Higgins, Marion Villiers

Canadian government publications; a manual for librarians. 1935 A.L.A. pa $2.25 015

1 Canada—Government publications—Bibl. 2 Canada—Government publications 35-27066

A list of the publications of the Dominion of Canada, with a full analytical subject index

"Invaluable bibliographical aid. . . Brief, but well-written sketches of the history, organization, and functions of all governmental agencies are included. Much information is given as to character of the collections of the principal Canadian libraries. . . Planographed." Amer. pol. sci. rev.

016 AIDS TO BOOK SELECTION

Buying list of books for small libraires; comp. by Marion Horton. 5th ed 1935 A.L.A. pa $1.25 016

1 Books and reading—Best books 35-11464

Books are arranged in the order of the Decimal classification and have brief descriptive annotations. Previous edition, 1925, was compiled by M. H. Pope

A list of 1750 "books that will be found useful in small public libraries. It is not a list of best books that should be bought by all libraries. However, each book has been bought and read and enjoyed in small libraries in different parts of the country. Each book is alive and is recommended because it is in demand. The list may be used in building collections in branch libraries, and by readers in selecting books from larger collections."

Foreword

Mudge, Isadore Gilbert

* Guide to reference books. 6th ed 1936 A.L.A. $4.25 016

1 Reference books—Bibliography 36-27133

A thoro revision of this indispensable guide. It is now larger by 134 pages than the 1929 edition. Some titles have been dropped and many new sections and new titles added, most notably in the sections on Dictionaries and National bibliographies which have been expanded to include languages and nations not represented in earlier editions. The introductory paragraphs on the use of different types of reference books have been retained

Shores, Louis

Basic reference books; an introduction to the evaluation, study, and use of reference materials with special emphasis on some 200 titles. preliminary ed 1937 A.L.A. pa $4 016

1 Reference books—Bibliography 37-4452

A preliminary edition in multigraphed form of a text-book for reference classes. From the books listed in I. G. Mudge's "Guide to reference books" it selects and discusses those most essential

020 LIBRARY SCIENCE

"Library literature, 1933-1935" edited by Marian Shaw (1936 Wilson, H.W. service basis; Holmes) is an author and subject index-digest of current books and periodical literature on library work. To be supplemented by annual numbers. The 1936-1937 volumes are now available

"Bibliography of librarianship" selected by Margaret Burton, and M. E. Vosburgh (1934 Wilson, H.W. $4.25; Lib. assn. 15s) is a classified and annotated guide to the library literature of the world. A selective bibliography of books and periodical material, including analytical entries

Two general books written from the English point of view are:

Headicar, B. M. Manual of library organization. 1935 Scribner $4; Allen, G. 10s 6d Treats finance, buildings, equipment and management, departments, book selection and other responsibilities which confront the head librarian

Sharp, H. A. Approach to librarianship. 1934 Grafton & co. 7s 6d Intended to give prospective librarians a clear idea of the work and to prepare students for the elementary examination of the Library association

020.7 Library science—Instruction

W. T. O'Rourke's "Library handbook for Catholic students" (1935 Bruce pub. $2.25) is a guide to the use of the library with brief chapters on the book, card catalog, and classification, and almost 150 pages of lists of general reference books evaluated from the Catholic point of view, and of reference books and Catholic texts in philosophy, sociology and other subjects

Alexander, Carter

How to locate educational information and data. 1935 Teachers college $3

020.7

1 Libraries and readers 2 Education
3 Research 4 Reference books 5 Education—Bibliography 35-27391

"Although this text and reference book is written primarily for persons carrying on research in the educational field, librarians in teachers colleges will find it useful in helping them see the problems of the students in education whom they serve. Every approach to library resources is made from the point of view of the person specializing in education. There are chapters, for example, on U. S. Office of Education and N. E. A. publications, professional literature of the educational field, statistics needed by educators, educational researches, etc. Besides the necessary information in regard to general tools, there are practical directions for attacking a problem, keeping a perspective amid the welter of material, making a bibliography, taking notes etc. Systematic recourse to such a book should do much to smooth the path of the student in education who finds the initial stages of his work beset with difficulties arising from his lack of skill in using library resources." N.Y. libraries

"Alexander library exercises" (1935 Teachers college $1) accompany the text

Brown, Zaidce

Library key; an aid in using books and libraries. rev and enl ed 1936 Wilson, H.W. pa 70c, 10 or more copies ea 35c; Holmes 020.7

1 Reference books 2 Books and reading 36-28591

First published 1928 and entered in the main catalog. In the revised edition some of the more elementary explanations have been shortened or dropped and a new section has been added on reference aids for teachers in training

Cleary, Florence Damon

Learning to use the library in the junior high school. 1936 Wilson, H.W. pa 75c; Holmes 020.7

Hutchins, Margaret; Johnson, Alice Sarah, and Williams, Margaret Stuart

Guide to the use of libraries. 5th ed rev 1936 Wilson, H.W. $1.25; Holmes 020.7

1 Library science 2 Reference books 36-22026

"This follows the general plan of the fourth edition, which is entered in the main catalog. Some changes have been made by adding new titles and dropping the old. A new chapter on reference sources is added. The Home economics chapter is practically rewritten; chapters on Science and Bibliography have been changed and rearranged." Wis. bul.

Like the earlier edition, this book is prepared for college courses running thru-out one semester and carrying approximately a two-point credit

An abridged edition of the revised work is also published (1936 Wilson, H.W. 50c; Holmes) adapted to use with college classes where only a few lectures and assignments are given

Ingles, May, and McCague, Anna Catherine

Teaching the use of books and libraries.

rev ed 1937 Wilson, H.W. $1.80; Holmes 020.7

1 Libraries and readers 2 Library science 3 Reference books

Earlier edition entered in the main catalog

First published 1930. In the revised edition the text of many chapters has been rewritten and the scope enlarged to make it a general teachers' manual for library instruction, rather than one meant for use with the "Library key" as was the former edition. Some changes in the practice work has been made where new editions have appeared, the bibliographies have been revised and the appendixes which gave a teaching plan and sample lesson have been omitted

Mott, Carolyn and Baisden, Leo Bernard

Children's book on how to use books and libraries. 1937 Scribner $1.28 020.7

1 Library science 2 Reference books 38-2872

A simple guide to the effective use of books and libraries. The lessons treat of the use of indexes, tables of contents, alphabetical card files, encyclopedias, dictionaries, globes and maps and similar reference materials. Illustrated with sketches in color

Scripture, Elizabeth, and Greer, Margaret Rutledge

Find it yourself! a brief course in the use of books and libraries. rev ed 1936

Wilson, H.W. teacher's ed pa 40c, student's ed pa 30c; Holmes 020.7

1 Reference books 2 Books and reading 36-27215

New edition of a book which is entered in the main catalog. "The references in the 1927 edition are herein brought up-to-date. There is no change in the plan of organization, although the authors . . . hope that the library lessons in the new edition may be more closely integrated with units of high school class work than was the case as they were originally planned." N.Y. libraries

Toser, Marie Antoinette

Library manual; a study-work manual for high school freshmen and sophomores. 1934 Wilson, H.W. pa 70c, 10 or more ea 35c; Holmes 020.7

1 Library science 2 Reference books 3 Libraries and readers 34-35847

"Excellent laboratory course in ten lessons, with exercises, tests, sample pages from library tools, etc., capable of adaptation to various methods of instruction, although best given as part of the English work." N.Y. libraries

A "Teacher's key" for the exercises, tests and examinations, is available at 35c, 1 copy free with ten or more of the Manual

"Adventures with books and libraries" by E. E. Lewis, and G. D. Lesser (1934 Am. bk. pa 40c) is another work book for junior and senior high schools. It contains

 lessons on learning how to enjoy books, how to study, and how to use dictionaries, encyclopedias, libraries, and other reference materials

021 SCOPE AND FOUNDING OF LIBRARIES

American library association

Library legislation, 1932-1933; a digest and summary. 1934 A.L.A. pa 50c 021

1 Library legislation 34-27162

"Being the annual report of the A. L. A. Committee on legislation, 1933." Subtitle Contains the most recent laws affecting libraries in the United States. Contents: Summary and trends; Library legislation of 1932 and 1933, including amendments to older statutes; Proposed and pending legislation; Tax legislation affecting libraries; State agencies; Salaries; Surveys; Table of amendments to "American library laws"

Fair, Ethel Marion

(ed.) Countrywide library service. 1934 A.L.A. $2.50 021

1 Library extension 2 Libraries, County
 3 Libraries—Addresses, essays, lectures 34-27199

"Subtitled 'a compilation of articles on service organized by counties and other large units,' this book is much more than that implies. It is more than a compilation, for Miss Fair's interpretative comments, which link the excerpts together, give it unity and continuity. Is both a survey of recent developments and a stimulating suggestion of the pattern future progress is to take." Wis. bul.

In this volume Professor Joeckel "has undertaken to describe, analyze, and evaluate the position of the public library in the structure of government in the United States. He has dealt with the legal forms and types of governmental organization of the public library and with its relation to the city or other political unit to which it is attached or which it serves, and has considered the library primarily as a piece of governmental machinery and its efficiency as such, rather than the practical problems of its internal administration." Foreword

"The entire volume is most readable; the style, lucid. Frequent summaries and 'conclusions' aid the reader materially in keeping the continuity clearly in mind. The work is crammed with facts, thoroughly substantiated. Its opinions and recommendations are clear cut and well defended; stimulating, often challenging." Library quarterly

A short study of the purpose of museums and their educational value. The book is based on a study of the museums in New York City

The author "considers museums to be the only sources of scholarly opinion which are open to the ordinary citizen. . . . Within their walls, 'scientific and artistic facts, uncorrupted by authority or opinion, are available to all who are willing to make the effort to experience them.' [A book] compact with stimulating thought and concrete suggestions for all who are interested in social development, and particularly for all workers in museums everywhere." Library Journal

"With reference to sex, the chief emphasis is upon 'emotional sincerity'. . . [This] is actually the only foundation of real morality. In the discussion of religion the striking position is defended that the scientific spirit is 'the one creative achievement of the Reformation'. . . Religion is 'what a man makes of his personal relationships' and the field of personal relationships is the center of life. "Murder of officers, suicide, prostitution, venereal and general diseases, rats, lice, microbes, and propaganda are shown to be an important part of warfare in a graphic description of actual degenerative conditions in past wars. Common claims concerning the causes of wars, such as over-population, are discounted. The author believes that prevention may be effected by moral, political, and economic reconstruction of the world, involving disarmament, free international trade, and a world economic system. Nothing new, but an effective reiteration of the horrors of war." Bkl.

Milne, Alan Alexander

* Peace with honour. 1934 Dutton $2; Methuen 5s 172.4

1 War 2 Peace 34-33108

A forceful plea for the abolishment of war which the author considers both silly and unnecessary. "His bland dismissal of economics, trade rivalries, class tension is naturally disconcerting, but he makes up for these blind spots by as shrewd an attack on the conventional arguments for militarism as the most sober-minded could ask. His contemptuous handling of the myth of 'national prestige' is alone worth the price of the book." Forum

Hoffman Nickerson's "Can we limit war?" (1934 Stokes $2.75; Arrowsmith 8s 6d) is another argument against the destructiveness of wars. The author believes war cannot be entirely eliminated but points out methods of limiting it, among them conversion of the people to a real desire for peace, international agreements, and the maintenance of order by a police army rather than an aggressive one cludes that 'the main root of war is to be found in the struggle for gain.' To avoid the horror of the next war, 'we have to prove that there is no advantage to mankind in the entire capitalist-national system.' "Discusses courting, marriage, fatherhood, middle age and its changes, and old age from a normal, sympathetic point of view, and in plain language. The book will help women as well as men toward maintaining harmony and understanding in family life." Bkl.

"Dr. Wile's approach is that of the mental hygienist seeking harmony in the personal adjustments necessary for family living. His book has a special freshness and value because it stresses the husband's share in the varied situations from courtship through childbirth, the care of a family and the problems of later life. But the last chapter on old age is not calculated to bring comfort to any reader." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"A defense of that vanishing species, the gentleman. The author defines the qualities that characterize this archaic being, describes the types developed at different periods, and discusses the forces that are causing the gentleman to approach extinction." Christian science monitor

"To defend property and privilege, the aristocratic ideal, is, in these days, a piece of daring iconoclasm. . . For some readers his bland little book will have a mellow, old-world charm. To others it will seem appallingly reactionary and smugly narrow in its assumptions. About one thing, however, there cannot be two opinions. "The papers for this book have grown out of Mrs. Taylor's experience as counselor of a discussion group of high school boys and girls meeting Sunday evenings in the Park Church in Elmira, New York. . . Drawing her examples from those fields in which man has already achieved some measure of brotherhood, she points out how in the realms of science, art, and literature, the great minds of various races have served all mankind; how discoveries in the fields of exploration, chemistry, agriculture, medicine and mechanics have enriched not one particular race but the whole world; and how in art and music men have found a common language that moves and unites them all." Horn book

1 Plato [34-7120]

A scholarly exposition of the philosophy of Plato in which each dialogue is summarized and its arguments criticized

"The present work condenses, supplements, and on some minor points corrects Ritter's great two-volume manual, and is of the first importance for any one who desires to comprehend the immense achievement of Plato in the realm of rationalistic philosophy. But in making this avowal, as I do make it wholeheartedly, it is necessary to emphasize the attribute 'rationalistic' and to identify 'philosophy' practically with metaphysics. So taken, and so restricted, there is no more philosophical definition of the doctrine of ideas than his." Sat. rev. of lit.

1 Philosophy, Medieval 2 Christianity—Philosophy 3 Religion—Philosophy 4 Scholasticism 36-16204

"Gilson's purpose in bald terms is to validate the philosophy of Thomas Aquinas, the official philosopher of Catholicism, as a genuine synthesis of faith and reason, of Augustinian and Aristotelian thought. He seeks to prove not only that Aquinas successfully joined the thought of Augustine and that of Aristotle but that he accomplished this without doing violence to either. In the process of proving this point Gilson defines the Christian view of life as an essential monism which is opposed to the dualism of mind and matter, of form and content, of soul and body, to which Platonic idealism tends." Books (N.Y. Philosophical ideas in the United States. 1934 Am. bk. $2

1 Philosophy, American 34-18313

Survey of American philosophy from the the colonial period to Dewey. Contains a time chart which gives a summary of each decade from 1600 to 1930, by listing outstanding historical events, important books published, and philosophers who lived during the period

"Each philosophy is expounded in terms of its contributions to . . . epistemology, metaphysics, ethics and esthetics. Within the limits of its scheme the work is clear, informative, and careful. The chapters on Royce and Peirce are especially good and reflect the author's enthusiasm and thesis . . . 193 GERMAN PHILOSOPHERS

Brock, Werner

Introduction to contemporary philosophy. 1935 Macmillan $2; Cambridge univ. press 6s 193

1 Philosophy, German [36-8858]

"This brief and unassuming little book is . . . for the English-reading student who seeks an introduction to the new and most distinctive phases of German philosophy since 1900. The best sections are those on Max Weber on 'the importance of Nietzsche and Kierkegaard for contemporary German philosophy,' on Jaspers and on Heidegger, but the work of many other individuals, if less fully discussed, is illuminated by being placed in significant relations. The excellence of the book is due to the fact that Dr. Brock is qualified not only to tell us accurately about these thinkers, but also to give us a thoroughly authentic and exceptionally undistorted impression of their meaning to German intellectuals." Journal of philosophy

Bergson, Henri Louis

Two sources of morality and religion.

1935 Holt $3; Macmillan 10s 194

1 Ethics 2 Religion—Philosophy 3 Mysticism 35-5957

"A rich and suggestive philosophical discussion of the nature and origin of morality and religion, under the following headings: Moral obligation; Static religion; Dynamic religion; Mechanics and mysticism. The admirable translation was made with the collaboration of [the author]. Index." N.Y. libraries

"This book is too deep in essential wisdom, too wise with suggestions that seem to touch the subsoil of experience out of which philosophy grows, to be quarreled with on the grounds of a point here or even of a total scheme. It is so rich with historical, poetical and human illustration, so packed with repeated psychological subtleties and dreaming precisions, that to miss it is to miss, as Bergson says of the prophets and the Christian mystics, one of the voices of Life itself." Books (N.Y. 220 BIBLE—GENERAL WORKS

"The translated Bible, 1534-1934" issued under the auspices of the National Lutheran council (1934 United Lutheran pub. $1) is a history of translations of the Bible, in English and other languages. It consists of 24 articles by different authorities, including an article on Bible societies

Bates, Ernest Sutherland

Biography of the Bible; a brief account of its character, authorship, text, translation and influence on the evolution of mankind. 1937 Simon & Schuster $2 220

1 Bible—History 2 Bible—Influence 37-28414

"The alert reader, interested in an objective, unprejudiced study of the Bible, will welcome Mr. Bates's tracing of the sources of the various books, their translations, and their influence on the evolution of mankind." Cincinnati

Bowie, Walter Russell

* Story of the Bible. 1934 Abingdon press $3; R.T.S. 12s 6d 220

1 Bible—History of Biblical events 34-34757

The Bible retold in response to a publisher's request for "a story of the Bible written from the perspective of the best we know to-day about its various books and their relationships, and yet a story which will keep the religious reverence which the Bible has always inspired." The author is rector of Grace church, New York City, 1935

"Dr. Bowie . . . has not written down to children, but his book can be read with profit and delight by anyone above the age of twelve." Christian century

Goodspeed, Edgar Johnson

* Story of the Bible. 1936 Univ. of Chicago press $1.50; Cambridge univ. press 7s 220

1 Bible—Introductions 36-21666

An attempt to present the conditions which existed at the time each of the books of the Bible was written and the special needs it was designed to meet. Part one is a reprint of the "Story of the Old Testament" entered in class 221; part two is a revision of the "Story of the New Testament" entered in the main catalog class 225

Kenyon, Sir Frederic George

Story of the Bible. 1937 Dutton $1.50; Murray, J. 3s 6d 220

1 Bible—History 36-19043

"A popular account of how the Bible came down to us in which the author attempts to answer such questions as: Of what texts was the English Bible of 1611 a translation? How had these texts been handed down? What were their relations to the works of the original writers? Why was it felt necessary, in the nineteenth century, to produce a Revised Version? and many others. Index." Book rev. digest

This book "is perhaps the most authoritative and most up to date survey of the whole subject of biblical discovery and research." Saturday rev.

Knox, Raymond Collyer

Knowing the Bible. rev ed 1936 Macmillan $2.50; 7s 6d 220

1 Bible—History 2 Bible—Study 36-19210

Earlier edition entered in the main catalog

First published 1927. The revision shows some slight changes in the text mainly due to recent archaeological discoveries. The chief change is in the bibliographies which are brief and up-to-date

Nicolay, Helen

Our perennial Bible. 1937 Appleton-Century $2.50; 10s 6d 220

1 Bible—Criticism, interpretation, etc. 37-6567

"With years of experience in teaching in a church school, a thorough appreciation of the indispensable values of biblical literature, and a good knowledge of the enrichment which critical scholarship has brought to the understanding of it, the author presents the facts which intelligent people ought to know about the Bible, sets it against its historical background and shows the sweep of its developing religious and ethical ideas." Christian century

"No matter how much formal knowledge one may have of the Bible—no matter how vague he may be as to its present interpretations, he will not fail to find this study good reading and exceedingly informative, as well." Boston Transcript

Bible. Selections

- * Bible designed to be read as living literature, ed. by E. S. Bates. 1936 Simon & Schuster $3.75 220.5

36-27455

In this new arrangement of the Bible as contemporary literature "the text of the King James Version is followed, except in the case of Proverbs, Job, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Songs, where that of the Revised Version is used; the arrangement of the books is by time and subject matter; prose passages are printed as prose, verse as verse, drama as drama; letters as letters; the spelling and punctuation are modernized; genealogies and repetitions are omitted, as well as the whole of Chronicles, the minor Epistles, and similar unimportant passages throughout." Publisher's note

"With taste, discernment, and a minimum of comment, most of which is informed, and to this reviewer highly interesting, Mr. Bates has elucidated the huge heterogeneous work. Or rather by a sensible rearrangement he has as far as possible allowed it to elucidate itself. Of course in this he is under obligation duly acknowledged to Professor Moulton and other scholars. But he seems to me thoroughly justified in his own effort." The whole of his undertaking is good." Sat. rev. of lit.

220.7 Bible commentaries

Two more volumes of the Moffatt New Testament commentary are available: "Gospel of Mark" by B. H. Branscomb (1937 Harper $3.50; Hodder 8s 6d) and "Pastoral epistles" by E. F. Scott (1937 Harper $3.50; Hodder 8s 6d) Volumes 1-9 are already noted in the main catalog

37-39238

Earlier edition entered in the main catalog

First published 1916 and frequently revised. In chapters 2-4 of Part 1 of the 1937 edition additions have been made concerning the latest discoveries in Mesopotamia, Palestine and among the Hittites; in Part 2 the Assyrian laws have been revised and new sections added in chapter 9, 26, 31. Some new illustrations

Caiger, Stephen Langrish

Bible and spade. 1936 Oxford $2; 5s 220.9

1 Bible—Antiquities 2 Bible—Evidences, authority, etc. 3 Excavations (Archæology) 36-27088

"Intended . . . for general students and for those teachers in the schools who wish to know where they can find information about archaeological discoveries and their bearings on Biblical history." Times (London) lit. sup.

"The work is most illuminating in shedding new light upon many familiar stories of the Bible. The effect is to intensify our mental pictures of those ancient peoples who played so important a part in developing the conditions which eventuated in Christianity. Thus the Bible story is vivified, is made to live. Illustrations add to the attractiveness of the volume, and the many notes, tables, appendices and maps greatly enhance its usefulness. The style is popular, easy to read, even for the layman." Christian science monitor

Marston, Sir Charles

New Bible evidence from the 1925-1933 excavations. 1934 Revell $2; Eyre 5s 220.9

1 Bible—Antiquities 2 Bible—Evidences, authority, etc. 34-7584

Published in England under title: New knowledge about the Old Testament

"Presents some of the findings of recent archaeological research which appear to the author to refute the statements of the higher critics of the Bible and bear evidence to the truth of many Old Testament stories which for many years were regarded as fables." Book rev. digest

"While the book is obviously the work of an advocate rather than of a judge, it is interesting and contains much valuable material." N.Y. Times

The author's "The Bible is true" (1934 Eyre 7s 6d) summarizes the results of the 1934 excavations

220.92 Old Testament—Biography

Bowie, Walter Russell

* Great men of the Bible. 1937 Harper $1.50; 6s 220.92

1 Bible—Biography 2 Sermons 37-27294

Eighteen sermons on some of the great figures in Biblical history. Partial contents: Methuselah; Abraham; Isaac; Jacob; Joseph; Moses; Jonathan; David and Ab-salom; Elijah; Amos; Herod and the wise men—and Christ; The disciples; Pilate; Paul.

"Vigor and vision are united in Dr. Bowie's preaching." Christian century

Harrison, Eveleen

Little-known women of the Bible. 1936 Round table $1.25 220.92

1 Women in the Bible 2 Bible—Biography 36-27397

Interpretations of some women of the Old and New Testaments, about whom very little is known. Those included are: Leah; Miriam; Deborah; Michal; The great woman of Shunem; Elizabeth; Anna the prophetess; The Syrophenician woman; Claudia Procula; Lydia of Thyatira

"The stories are simply and prettily told. The author makes little claim to historical study, having primarily an inspirational interest in her themes. Some of the chapters are a mere retelling of the original Bible tale—the text amplified, embroidered and moralized. Others, notably the Claudia Procula chapter, are largely imaginative in treatment." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

221 OLD TESTAMENT

in the main catalog. The books are interpreted in the order in which they were written and in the light of archeological discoveries and the study of ancient religions. The historical background is given for each book and the allusions explained. Both books are now available in one volume as "Story of the Bible" (class 220)

"Professor Goodspeed clears up many difficult problems through giving them their proper historical setting, then stripping them of something of the mystical and grotesque elements which are familiar to us. . . A handy little volume that the Bible student will find both readable and profitable." Christian science monitor

"Introduction to the books of the Old Testament" by W. O. E. Oesterley, and T. H. Robinson (1934 Macmillan $4; S.P.C.K. 10s 6d) a more extensive treatment, is mainly a critical study of the books and is written for students. Stress is laid on historical background

Robinson, Henry Wheeler

Old Testament; its making and meaning. (London theological lib.) 1937 Cokesbury press $2; Univ. of London press 5s 221

1 Bible. O.T.—Introductions 37-1728

"By the 'making' of the Old Testament Dr. Robinson understands the analytical study of literary origins, and by its 'meaning' those qualities of the book which this study has revealed. . . A good deal of patient research has gone to the making of his volume, which is further enriched by a selection of critical analyses which he himself has found useful in the teaching of his subject." Times (London) lit. sup.

"The author's critical position is sound. He is well acquainted with modern views, but accepts only those which have won the adherence of the best scholars. . . The last chapter takes up the formation of the canon, and it would be difficult to find elsewhere, a more illuminating view of the history of the canonical development and its meaning for the Christian student." Churchman

224 OLD TESTAMENT—PROPHETIC BOOKS

Hamilton, Edith

Prophets of Israel. 1936 Norton $2.50; Dent 8s 6d 224

1 Bible. O. T. Prophets—Criticism, interpretation, etc. 2 Bible—Criticism, interpretation, etc. 3 Prophets 36-8801

"The author separates the truths of religion from religious forms and ritual and reveals the Hebrew prophets of the Old Testament as great realists, possessing deep insight into human nature." Bkl.

"For the most part, her book carries an excitement that is communicated to the reader. One feels the intensity that once shook a narrow earth. And for a surprise there is a view of Isaiah, ancestor of all snoopers, who prowled around Jerusalem, studying the shocking immorality of women's fashions, and denouncing the hussy in explosive wrath." 225 NEW TESTAMENT

Goodspeed, Edgar Johnson

Introduction to the New Testament. 1937 Univ. of Chicago press $2.50 225

1 Bible. N.T.—Introductions 2 Paul, Saint, apostle 37-28550

"The collecting, editing and publication of Paul's letters is regarded by the author

as a potent influence in the shaping of early Christian literature. He divides the books of the New Testament into two groups: those written before Paul's letters were collected; those written under the influence of their publication." Book rev. digest

Two other good books on literary facts and critical problems of the New Testament are "Introduction to the New Testament" by Kirsopp Lake and Mrs S. T. Lake (1937 Harper $2.50) and Mary Redington Lyman's "Christian epic" (1936 Scribner $2.50)

226 NEW TESTAMENT—GOSPELS

R. H. Lightfoot's "History and interpretation in the Gospels" (1935 Harper $3; Hodder 10s 6d) is a scholarly modern study by the professor of exegesis at Oxford university

Bible. N. T. Gospels

Four Gospels; a new translation, by C. C. Torrey. 1933 Harper $3; Hodder 10s 6d 226

33-37668

A book which was noted in the main catalog and is now entered in full on the advice of the collaborators

"This volume is the outcome of 40 years of investigation by Professor Torrey of the origin and literature of the Four Gospels. This prolonged and painstaking study has led to the conclusion that the Gospels were originally written in the Aramaic language. . . As there are no original Aramaic manuscripts extant, Professor Torrey has made the basis of his translation of the Four Gospels the Greek version of Westcott and Hort, but always with the conception of an Aramaic background." Christian science monitor

"In addition to the stimulating restatement of the old gospel story, there is a fine discussion of the origin of the gospels, together with critical notes for the scholarly reader. It is a volume in which a sane and understandable Christ speaks with vividness and power." Christian century

Dodd, Charles Harold

Parables of the kingdom. 1936 Scribner $2; Nisbet 7s 6d 226

1 Jesus Christ—Parables 2 Kingdom of God—Biblical teaching 36-13852

"This book is based on a course of lectures delivered in the Divinity School at Yale University in the spring of 1935. Its aim is to arrive at a just understanding of the original import of the parables spoken by Our Lord both in relation to the particular events which called them forth and in their application to needs which have arisen within recent years." Times (London) lit. sup.

"A splendid achievement in which philology and history contribute to a trustworthy interpretation." Journal of religion

Scott, Ernest Findlay

New Testament idea of revelation. 1935
Scribner $2; Nicholson 6s 231

1 Revelation 2 Theology 35-4712

"A study of the New Testament doctrine of the revelation of God to man. Apart from the examination of the teachings of Jesus himself, the author . . . has confined himself principally to the writings of Paul and John." Coventry. Public libraries

"Dr. Scott is one of our finest technical historians. But he writes technical history with an eye so keen to the values involved that the reader is made to realize that these past problems are likewise the vital problems of today." Churchman

Van Dusen, Henry Pitney

God in these times. 1935 Scribner $2;
Student 7s 6d 231

1 God 2 Christianity 35-11727

"A direct, dynamic study concerned with the reasons why religion is occupying so trivial a place in modern life, and with the world's need of church leadership. The author, whose chapters are based on lectures at the Y. M. C. A. Graduate School, Nashville, calls attention to the importance of 're-thinking' the church's social message' and the value of the contributions which personal religion can furnish to the social task. God and the social process; a study in Hebrew history. 1934 Univ. of Chicago press $2; Cambridge univ. press 9s 231

1 God 2 Jews—Religion 3 Bible. O.T.—Criticism, interpretation, etc. 35-3784

"The central thesis is that the Hebrew idea of ethical monotheism emerged out of a long struggle to secure economic justice, especially with reference to the ownership of land. . . . The unique element in the drama . . . is the way in which the idea of 'God' is identified with the social struggle. The struggle is focused in the conflict between the worship of 'Yahweh' and the worship of the 'baalim'. . . . The 'baalim' were the gods that stood for the commercial and proprietary interests of a territorial civilization, while 'Yahweh' (Jehovah) was the God who demanded equal rights for all the members of the group." Religious bk. club bul.

"The book should be widely read. Old Testament scholars will take exception to the author's treatment and interpretation of some of his material. . . . But the correction of these errors and inadequacies will result not in a weakening, but in a strengthening of his thesis. The book points the way to a new field of Old Testament study which cannot but be fruitful and of vital importance." Living church

1 Theology 2 Religious thought 36-3818

"About forty of the leading religious books of recent date, chiefly of the last two or three years, are here reviewed and presented as illustrative of present trends in Christian thinking. The volumes . . . cover a wide range and are classified under appropriate heads as dealing with theology, the Bible, Christian ethics [etc.]. The final chapter is an interpretation of the main tendencies revealed in this survey of the literature of the day. . . . A useful guide in deciding what book one really wants to select . . . for his more intensive reading. It will also give at least some insight into the characteristic emphases and points of views of those other authors whom one is not able to study at first-hand." Religious bk. club bul.

Niebuhr, Helmut Richard

Kingdom of God in America. 1937 Willett $2 230

1 Christianity 2 U.S.—Religion

"Professor Niebuhr states his thesis with clarity and conciseness. His lectures, given at the tercentenary summer session of the Harvard Divinity School and on the Alden-Tuthill foundation at the Chicago Theological Seminary, are 'an attempt to interpret the meaning and spirit of American Christianity as a movement which finds its center in the faith in the Kingdom of God'. . . . In the main the argument moves solidly, soundly documented, bringing the thesis of each chapter to bear upon the history of the period to which the chapter belongs. . . . [He has] emphasized creative elements in the making of America which another school of historians . . . ignores, and so has rendered a conspicuous service to contemporaneous thought." Christian century

Earlier edition starred in the main catalog

First published 1925 under title: "Everyman's life of Jesus; a narrative in the words of the four Gospels." The 1937 edition, reset and published in larger format, contains some slight changes in the Biblical quotations made to conform to the revisions in Moffatt's translation of the Bible

Kagawa, Toyohiko

* Meditations on the cross; tr. by H. F. Topping and M. R. Draper. 1935 Willett $1.50; Student 5s 232

1 Jesus Christ—Crucifixion

"The first third of the volume is devoted to comment upon the crucifixion of Jesus and interpretation of the records of that event and the references to it in the New Testament; the remainder, to a discussion of the place of sacrifice in human life." Christian century

"Toyohiko Kagawa, prophet from the slums of Kobe holds in the hearts of his own people at home and all over the world a place very like that which Gandhi holds in India. He comes bearing that old, old torch whose light and flame have illumined and fired mankind for more than twenty centuries. A mystic, he made The Imitation of Christ by Thomas à Kempis a best-seller in Japan, and has written a book very like it which is now translated into English." Survey graphic

Mauriac, François

Life of Jesus; tr. by Julie Kernan. 1937 Longmans $2.50; Hodder 7s 6d 232

1 Jesus Christ—Biography 37-27152

"A distinguished Catholic novelist of France, convinced that to both believers and non-believers the figure of Jesus has lost all definite outline, gives his own subjective interpretation of Jesus the man as revealed in words and deeds, explaining that 'all efforts to minimize the human element in Him violate my deepest instincts.' Controversial material, artistically presented." Bkl.

That strange Man upon his cross. (Yale univ. Shaffer lectures, 1934) 1934 Abingdon press $1.25; Allenson 3s 6d 232

1 Jesus Christ 34-21626

"Dr. Roberts's volume is beautifully written. Essentially a biography of the Nazarene, a narrative impressively sustained by scholarship, dramatically conceived as history, tensely told, and touched always with fine understanding and deep emotion." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Maurice Goguel's "Life of Jesus" translated by Olive Wyon (1933 Macmillan $6; Allen, G. 25s) is a detailed critical exposition of the historical knowledge which exists regarding the life and teachings of Jesus

Speer, Robert Elliott

* Meaning of Christ to me. 1936 Revell $1.50 232

1 Jesus Christ 37-2297

The author "tells of the problems he has had to meet and how completely satisfying are the solutions Christ's religion has given him." Living church

"A blend of fundamentalism and up-to-dateness in religious thought. . . . The author does not fear the new and fresh experiences of the Gospel." Christian century

233 SIN

Whale, John Seldon

Christian answer to the problem of evil. 1936 Abingdon press $1; Student 2s 6d 233

1 Good and evil [36-20700]

The author "states the problem lists and criticizes the four classic answers, sets forth the statement of theism, and finally advances the proposal which seems most satisfactory to him. This volume comes as the direct result of urgent requests from those who heard this material first given in lectures delivered on both sides of the Atlantic. . . . There is not a new answer given here, but rather the best which is yet available is written in a lucid, definite and impressive manner. Many will accept it as the best brief statement now in print." Christian century

One of the evils, suffering, is treated in L. D. Weatherhead's "Why do men suffer?" (1936 Abingdon press $1.25; Student 5s) and the educative and redemptive aspect is emphasized

237 FUTURE STATE. IMMORTALITY

Bell, Wilbur Cosby

If a man die. 1934 Scribner $1.75 237

1 Immortality 2 Future life 34-40124

Lectures given to students at the Virginia theological seminary on the reasonable basis of faith in immortality, the Christian approach to and view of death, the continuance of personality, and other questions

"Mr. Bell's book has an intellectual quality, an appeal to the reason rather than the emotions, that has been too often lacking in books on this theme. His argument is concise and logical, it takes account of the modern developments of science, brings in bits of illustrative literature. It can, in short, be read with interest and respect by a thoughtful modern person." N.Y. Times

"The farther shore" edited by N. E. Griffin and Lawrence Hunt (1934 Houghton $3) is an anthology of world opinion on the immortality of the soul. - * What men are asking; some current questions in religion. (Cole lectures for 1933) 1933 Cokesbury press $2; Hodder 5s 239

1 Christianity 33-34596

"The questions treated are, 'Where Can We Start?' 'Of What Use Is Religion?' 'Can We Know God?' 'Is Jesus Authoritative?' 'What Is Spirituality?' and 'What Do You Mean by "God"?' The answers of Doctor Coffin are characteristic of his approach to religion. He speaks to the man in the pew a language that is based upon but not burdened with, philosophy and theology." - Fool hath said. 1936 Doubleday $2; Cape, J. 7s 6d 239

1 Christianity—Apologetic works 2 Sociology, Christian 3 Oxford group 36-9646

The author "presents in intimate, informal fashion, arguments for a belief in God and Christianity, and . . . applies the teachings of Christ to some present-day problems—sex, economics, war. Mr Nichols has become a member of the Oxford Group Movement and pays it tribute in this book." Book rev. digest.

"Although his chapter on 'Christ and money' is extraordinarily naïve and his account of Biblical criticism extremely elementary, he has much to say which is moving, memorable, and of value, in every other part of his book, which is sincere in every line." Manchester guardian

Marks, Harvey Blair

- Rise and growth of English hymnody; foreword by J. DeW. Perry; introduction by H. A. Smith. 1937 Revell $2.50 245

1 Hymns 37-15181

"The chief value of this book is in the biographical notes, taking up most of the volume on the writers of hymns in common use, and in the stories of hymns and the influences which produced them. It makes this information available in convenient form for the use of organists and clergy who wish to stimulate the interest of choirs and congregation in hymn singing." Living church

248 PERSONAL RELIGION

Benson, Clarence Irving

- Eight points of the Oxford group; an exposition for Christians and pagans. 1936 Oxford $1.75; 4s 248

1 Oxford group [37-23818]

"This book comes out of the group's work in Australia. For many persons it will be freshly invigorating to know about these points: Surrender, sharing, restitution, the four absolutes, quiet time, guidance, witness and fellowship. They are illustrated by actual incidents and persons, and one sees how this movement moves. There is an appendix of thirty-five answers to questions about the group which clears up misunderstanding and makes a good catechism." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"Whether the reader agrees or disagrees with the author's general outline of the Oxford Group methods and aims, this book has a reality in its religious enthusiasm that makes it worth reading." Living church

"Many Americans have heard of Barth and Barthianism, but few have been interested sufficiently to find out who Karl Barth really is, and what his theology stands for. The title of this book of sermons is a clue, and every chapter (or sermon) something of an explanation. From beginning to end the authors insist on the absolute transcendence of God and his self-revealing in Jesus. His nature is not explained—need not be explained—for the fact of his existence and his importance to every human being is for Barth and Thurneysen a dogma which they proclaim with tireless repetition." 1 Religious education 2 Youth 33-34600

"A general and very practical consideration of the problems which affect the young people in the church between eighteen and twenty-three, with some suggestions also for their leaders. Different methods of work are described." Cincinnati

Munkres, Alberta

Which way for our children? 1936 Scribner $2 268

1 Religious education 36-8792

A handbook in religious education for parents and teachers. Contents: Inviting to the search; Teaching children about God; Introducing children to Jesus; Using the Bible with children; Exploring the realm of prayer; Helping children in group worship; Thinking about the problem of death; Guiding children in social relationships; Epilogue: Finding a way; Bibliography

"An excellent presentation of the problem. . . It uses the laboratory method of solving problems, and not only do the solutions seem adequate but the children and their answers are very realistic." Living church

Weston, Sidney Adams, and Harlow, Samuel Ralph

* Social and religious problems of young people. 1934 Abingdon press $1.75 268

1 Youth—Religious life 2 Social problems 3 Christian life 35-8534

"The authors have had wide experience in the direction of discussion groups. In this handbook they make available to youth leaders an introduction to both method of procedure and materials for study. . . The eighteen subjects that are treated include many of the 'social and religious' issues that concern liberal-minded young people in our day. It is assumed that if youth would take seriously the study of these subjects they would equip themselves with a workable philosophy of life." Journal of religion

"These are no mere academic discussions, they are vital, concrete, lucid and fair. . . This work is modern, but eminently constructive." Boston Transcript

270 CHURCH HISTORY

Case, Shirley Jackson

Makers of Christianity; from Jesus to Charlemagne. 1934 Holt $2 270

1 Church history 2 Fathers of the church 34-36057

"A popular history of the first eight centuries of Christianity, presented thru brief, biographical sketches of its leaders from Jesus, Peter and Paul to Gregory of Tours, Boniface, and Charlemagne." Book rev. digest

"Professor Case has done a service as valuable as it is difficult in presenting in vivid and compact form the making of Christianity as revealed in its makers. . . On the purely biographical side, the stories are revealingly and, for all their brevity, often movingly told." Journal of philosophy

McNeill, John Thomas

Makers of Christianity; from Alfred the Great to Schleiermacher. 1935 Holt $2 270

1 Christian biography

The second series of this title. Contains thirty biographies of Christian leaders. Selected bibliography: p263-71

"Professor McNeill has performed his chosen task well. Some authors may have considered other historical figures. But from kings, popes, friars, 'brothers and sisters of the poor,' theologians, heretics, reformers, teachers, pietists, he presents . . . a group who take life's responsibilities seriously, which reveals how our civilization has made its heroic advance. And from these stories, students of history and of social progress may learn the attitude and spirit necessary to solve the perplexing problems of this hour and lead mankind into new emancipation." Crozer quarterly

Mead, Frank Spencer

Ten decisive battles of Christianity. 1937 Bobbs $1.50 270

1 Church history 2 Civilization, Christian 37-27197

Ten decisive events in the history of Christianity are retold in this volume. Contents: The Resurrection; Council of Jerusalem; Constantine and the edict of Milan; Augustine and the City of God; Battle of Tours; Battle of Worms; Martin Luther; Battle of Boston; Roger Williams; Street battle; George Whitehead; Battle for missions; William Carey; Battle with society.

Mead, Frank S.—Continued

"A book that could make scholars of history and doctrine pull their hair; especially if they do not accept readily the assumption that Protestantism invariably is on the side of progress in things Christian. Nevertheless, this book stirs the imagination and does show that we are inheritors of a Christianity and of social theories whose stories are dramatic and often heroic." Churchman

272 PERSECUTIONS. TOLERATION

Garrison, Winfred Ernest

Intolerance. 1934 Round table $2.50 272

1 Persecution 2 Toleration 3 Religious liberty 4 Race problems 34-33082

"How to maintain strong convictions side by side with a tolerant spirit is the problem treated in this book. . . Dr. Garrison traces the history of tolerance and intolerance and then analyzes the situations today which produce tensions: Catholic vs. Protestant; liberalism as against conservatism; anti-Semitism; the color threat." Living church

"A timelier book than this could hardly be imagined. The present clashing of intensely held views—religious, racial, economic, moral—are so menacing to social unity that there is bound to be a grateful welcome for the clear light which this study sheds on the wise method of treatment." 294 HINDUISM

Griswold, Hervey De Witt

Insights into modern Hinduism. (Studies in religion and culture) 1934 Holt $2 294

1 Hinduism 2 India—Biog. 34-36418

"There is no missionary scholar more competent to undertake what this book does for the reader. It gives to us more than a score of studies in the religious life of modern India, any one of which may be taken as a unit. With the exception of eight of the twenty-three chapters the author has chosen to depict the movements selected for description through the personality of a leader." Crozer quarterly

Two other recommended books on Indian religions are: Nicol Macnicol's "Living religions of the Indian people" (1934 Student 10s 6d) and L. S. S. O'Malley's "Popular Hinduism" (1935 Macmillan $2.50; Cambridge univ. press 7s 6d)

1 India—Religion 2 Hinduism 3 Buddha and Buddhism 4 Jainism 36-22382

"Exhibits the relationship between the essential mysticism of Indian religions and ethics, and traces the development of the doctrines of reincarnation and metempsychosis. Shows how modern Indian thinkers, notably Tagore, have modified the traditions of their religion." Coventry. Public libraries

"This is a useful compendium but, it must be admitted, a little heavy. That does not lessen its usefulness, but does lessen the pleasure of use. It is a compendium which contains more within its compass than any other such book which I know." Manchester guardian

Upanishads

* Ten principal Upanishads; put into English by Shree Purohit swāmi, and W. B. Yeats. 1937 Macmillan $2; Faber 7s 6d 294

37-20457

"These selections from the Upanishads—philosophical poems sung 'by grass farmers thousands of years ago'—were first translated by Shree Purohit swāmi, then rendered into a modern, poetic English prose by the Irish poet W. B. Yeats." Book rev. digest

"To have a new translation influenced in its literary form by so accomplished a literary artist as W. B. Yeats is a real literary event. It is certain that these ancient documents will be more widely read and enjoyed because of the literary quality of this translation." Christian century

296 JUDAISM

"The encyclopedia of Jewish knowledge" edited by Jacob de Haas (1934 Behrman's Jewish bk. house $5; Foyle 25s) is recommended as a good one volume encyclopedia of Jewish history, religion and customs

C. H. Moehلمان's "Christian-Jewish tragedy; a study in religious prejudice" (1933 Printing house of Leo Hart $2.50) is a treatise on the Crucifixion. The author's thesis is that the Romans and not the Jews were responsible for Christ's death

Browne, Lewis

How odd of God; an introduction to the Jews. 1934 Macmillan $2.50; Lane 6s 296

1 Jewish question 34-9887

"Written not as a defense of the Jews but as an objective account of what they are today, and how they became what they are. Based on first-hand study in Nazi Germany, Soviet Russia, Zionist Palestine, as well as China, India and North Africa. At once a philosophy of Jewish history and a psychological analysis of Jewish life." Ontario library review

"The book is a superbly stimulating piece of work. From the literary point of view it is altogether exceptional in its power and beauty." J. H. Holmes in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Jews in America, by the editors of "Fortune." 1936 Random house $1 296

1 Jews in the U.S. 2 Jewish question 36-10078

"An examination of the place and importance of the Jew in American life—in industry, finance, amusements, politics and the professions. An appendix contains a summary of various anti-Semitic organizations." Book rev. digest

"This survey of industrial and commercial activities is matter-of-fact and competent, so far as can be judged from a rapid reading. A few concerns are omitted, but the analysis seems accurate as far as it goes. The question of prejudice against Jews is not treated exhaustively, however. This book at least proves that no occasion for anti-Semitic agitation can be found in the extent to which Jews dominate American economic activity." Springfield Republican the historical background and arguments for Zionism, the establishment of the Jewish nation in its ancient land under the protection of the British government." Book rev. digest

"Lord Melchett is a prominent industrialist and former member of Parliament. He writes therefore not only as a Jew but as a British statesman. The book is noticeably devoid of conceit, petty controversy and hysteria; it is, on the contrary, a scientific document and commands the respect of the reader." Springfield Republican

Ruppin, Arthur

Jews in the modern world. (Studies in modern hist.) 1934 Macmillan $5; 15s 296

1 Jews 2 Jews—Political and social conditions 3 Jews—Restoration 34-15811

"This work by a leading Jewish sociologist, is a comprehensive, statistical survey of modern Jewry, with sections or chapters devoted to the racial structure and characteristics of the Jews; their numbers, distribution, migrations, birth-rate, and mortality; their economic status; their political status; forces which tend to disperse them; and Zionism and Palestinian problems. The author was once Director of Colonization of the Zionist Organization, and since 1926 has been lecturer on Jewish sociology in the Hebrew University of Jerusalem [1934]." Book rev. digest

"Dr. Ruppin has written a remarkable treatise, scholarly, judicial and authoritative—a repository of facts on matters too often determined by feeling." Times (London) lit. sup.

Sokolsky, George Ephraim

We Jews. 1935 Doubleday $2.50; Chapman 8s 6d 296

1 Jews 2 Jews in the U.S. 35-2784

"Mr. Sokolsky's analysis of social and economic discrimination in America is excellent, as is his exposure of false notions on the part of both Jew and Gentile. He trails off, however, into a rather cloudy sponsorship of 'spiritual' Zionism, a solution which offers little practical help. Not as stimulating or witty a book as 'How odd of God.' 'We Jews' sticks closer to proven facts than Mr. Browne and has distinct value as an elementary summary." Forum

Milton Steinberg's "Making of the modern Jew" (1934 Bobbs $2.50; Routledge 8s 6d) is an interesting analysis of the factors which have made the modern Jew what he is. His cultural heritage and persecutions are treated and the factors which influence his chances of survival

Lao-Tzu

The way and its power; a study of the Tao t'ê ching and its place in Chinese thought, by Arthur Waley. 1935 Houghton $2; Allen, G. 7s 6d 299

1 Philosophy, Chinese 35-2314

"A translation of one of the most famous of all mystical books, with an account of Chinese thought down to the end of the third century B.C. Intended for the general reader." Coventry. Public libraries

"Mr. Waley has produced a remarkable work. . . His book is many things in one:

a survey of Chou thought; an interpretation of a noble system of philosophy; a study of customs and manners of an ancient country. His translations 'philological' rather than 'literary' of the classic are models of clarity. Words to Mr. Waley are what colors are to an artist. In subtle, sensitive prose that is the despair of the less gifted, he paints a brilliant picture of a world of ideas." N.Y. Times

Davis, Maxine

The lost generation; a portrait of American youth today. 1936 Macmillan $2.50 301

1 Youth 2 U.S.—Social conditions 36-7032

"A journalist's record of the stories told her by the hundreds of young people she interviewed during a 10,000 mile trip around the United States. The stories deal with hopes of marriage grown dim, with no jobs or second-rate jobs as the reward of schooling, with political faiths and disgusts." Book rev. digest

Doob, Leonard William

Propaganda; its psychology and technique. 1935 Holt $2.40 301

1 Propaganda 2 Social psychology 35-24862

"The problem of propaganda is here analyzed by a realistic psychologist. Mr. Doob makes clear what propaganda actually is, upon what principles it is based, and how one may recognize it in its various false-faces. . . The major part of the book he devotes to a detailed description of the forms of propaganda used by commercial advertisers, by peace and patriotic organizations, by the Nazis both in Germany and in this country, and by the American Communists. Finally he explains how propagandists make use of the various vehicles of public opinion." Management review

Fairchild, Henry Pratt

General sociology. 1934 Wiley $3.75;
Chapman 23s 301

1 Sociology 34-13274

"The twenty-six chapters may be divided into four main sections: the first deals with groups, origins, forces, and interests; the second, with social control and the agencies through which it is effected; the third, with social change; and the fourth, with problems and the tasks of social engineering. . . One of its most significant contributions is the statement concerning the nature and origin of major sociological problems and their associated processes. A challenging survey of current issues is given—problems of social control, population, competitive private profit, and laissez faire, which makes it one of the first sociological contributions to the New Deal literature. . . The book is well organized, clearly written, and interestingly illustrated." Survey

"The present volume is a rewriting, with substantive additions, of the author's earlier work, 'Society: its structure and changes.' It has been undertaken at the request of a number of teachers who desired to follow the lines of the former work but needed a volume that had more definitely a textbook character and particularly one that would be more serviceable to those students who are for the first time approaching the subject through its pages. To this end much illustrative material has

Reflections on the end of an era. 1934 Scribner $2; 10s 6d 301

1 Capitalism 2 Socialism 3 Sociology, Christian 4 Revolutions 5 Individualism 6 Collectivism 34-27064

"In this collection of twenty essays, which the author offers as tracts for the times, the basic principle is Dr. Niebuhr's conviction that our modern culture is failing us in the hour of our need. We are at the end of an era. Our civilization is falling in ruins about us, and we are being summoned to the task of building the house of life on foundations for which we have not planned." startling quality of this brief but unforcommentary, not merely a précis; that is to say, while nearly all the facts are taken from Southern Regions, many of the inferences drawn from the facts are [the author's] own." Foreword enormous waste that the volume portrays,

"An able survey of what the state is doing to the average citizen in the different countries of the world, under the following headings: Foundations; Political systems; Political machinery; International politics; Political principles; Some underlying political problems; Political theories." Ontario library review

"The book has many merits. It distinguishes itself by its analysis of the differences between the British, French, and American forms of Parliamentary democracy, of the characteristics of the modern 'leader,' of the underlying grounds for different theories of the State, and of the place of functional and international groups in the modern community. Against these qualities must be set the exaggerated importance which it attaches to Communism." Times (London) lit. sup.

"Written by two seasoned reporters, one of them the co-author of Washington Merry Go Round, this book tells the behind-the-scenes story of America's foreign relations policies from the World war to the present." Book rev. digest

The book is "temperate, dramatic and important. Its conclusions are those conventional to journalism. . . The London Naval Conference and the failure of the World Disarmament Conference at Geneva supply the authors with a shrewd and well-informed inside story of events in a most authoritative manner. These two sections could hardly be improved upon. The section dealing with the Hoover Moratorium, the Laval visit, and the end of reparations is less thorough. . . To the earnest student of the causes of war in human nature, the chapter on the Chaco is especially recommended." Sat. rev. of lit.

The promises men live by; a new approach to economics. 1938 Random house $3 330.1

1 Credit 2 Economics 3 Finance 38-27169

"A primer of economics, emphasizing that most of the modern world is run by a complex system of credit, made up of promises to pay and based on faith in the integrity of these contracts. Most of the promises are fulfilled, the author believes, except those made by governments and he condemns such government activities as the abandoning of the gold standard, managed money, and excessive government borrowing." "Mr. Strachey's book is an attempt to prove that capitalism will not work, no matter how modified, because it is based upon unsound principles. The alternative is, of course, Communism, and since Mr. Strachey is a Marxist, he argues that the best course for intelligent people to pursue is to hasten the coming of Communism." N.Y. Post

Property or peace. 1934 Covici $3; Gollancz 5s 330.9

1 Democracy 2 Economic conditions—1918- 3 Sovereignty 4 Peace 5 War 34-19158

"The author states the case against the continuation of the system of private property and for the socialization of land, capital and the means of production. He shows how democracy has failed and how capitalism has bred wars, and asserts that there can be no peace until property rights are abolished." Book rev. digest

"There is much else besides Marxist economics in Mr Brailsford's book. His discussion of Versailles, the League and disarmament, and his conclusion that a modification of national sovereignty remains the ultimate condition of peace is penetrating and unanswerable. His attack on the British Empire is also extremely effective, though at times a little unfair." Economist

"Intended primarily as a high school text the book is provided with all the apparatus of paragraph headings, chapter summaries, questions and problems, reading lists, many illustrations, charts and statistical tables. The book has interest for the general reader as well, as embodying the... theories which enter into the framework of the New Deal." Book rev. digest

"As an account of the whole complex machine and how it works, the book seems singularly realistic and singularly vivid. . . . As to the effort, greatly assisted by admirable illustrative material, to make our economy a thing of living and understandable reality to our school children and their elders it is hard to be too enthusiastic." Wallace, Henry Agard

1 U.S.—Economic policy 34-3513

"Secretary Wallace's argument is, briefly, that there are three possible courses with regard to world trade. One he calls 'internationalism'—by which he means not free trade, but a trend toward wider and larger trade the world over. The other is 'nationalism,' by which he means that America, in common with other countries, should pursue a self-contained policy and drop out of foreign markets. The third he calls 'a planned middle course.'" Springfield Republican

"An exposition and defense of the New Deal, stressing the need for wider vision and for the courage to experiment. The book falls into four main sections: a defense of the idea of national planning and of the objectives of the New Deal; a plea for the lowering of tariffs; a history and a defense of the AAA; and an outline of the aims of national planning in the future." Book rev. digest

"'New Frontiers' explores the social horizon of today primarily from the angle of the farm problem, but throughout treats this as part of the larger whole of American life. It does this broadly and yet with salty detail, from one in the midst of such affairs and who knows whereof he speaks. It is at once scientific in concept and popular in presentation." "Dr. Einzig's latest work, which is in the nature of a sequel to his 'World Finance 1914-1935' (1935 Macmillan $3) surveys the interplay of financial and political events since the devaluation of the belga in 1935, 'the starting-point of the death struggle of the gold bloc.' A dramatic account is given of the heroic efforts to maintain the value of the French franc, and the French politicians who involved their country in the agonies of deflation are severely taken to task. . . The reflationary policies that were pursued by Great Britain and the United States are described." Times (London) lit. sup.

"The plan of the book is, first, to explain the fundamental principles of money and bank credit; second, to show how these principles have been exemplified in certain classical chapters in the world's monetary and banking history; and, third, to apply the principles in the light of these experiences to our present-day monetary and banking problems. . . This work will consist of two volumes: the present one, dealing chiefly with money, and a second one in process of preparation, dealing chiefly with banking." Book rev. digest

With Marxian economics, save in their most general ideas, it does not profess to deal; and there are sections, notably those dealing with the origin and development of the State, in which it is singularly sketchy. - * Peaceful change; a study of international procedures. 1937 Council on foreign relations $1.50; Royal inst. of int. affairs 6s 341

1 International cooperation 2 International law and relations 37-28726

"A realistic discussion of the possibility of changes in the status quo by methods other than those of force. Due attention is given to such matters as prestige, national honor, racial differences, population pressure, and the rivalry for markets and raw materials. In spite of the recognized shortcomings of existing international agencies, the author does not regard the outlook for peaceful change as altogether hopeless." Foreign affairs

Madariaga, Salvador de

- Theory and practice in international relations. 1937 Univ. of Pa. press $1.50; Oxford 6s 341

1 International law and relations 38-27005

"A sane, hopeful analysis of international relations, showing that in spite of discouraging conditions today there is a growing consciousness among nations of world solidarity. The nature of national sovereignty, its limitations, and the forces working for and against a future world community are examined and discussed." Bkl.

Hudson, Manley Ottmer

- Permanent court of international justice; a treatise. 1934 Macmillan $5; 21s 341.1

1 Hague. Permanent court of international justice 34-32334

A comprehensive, well-documented study of the Court written for lawyers who may appear before it and for others concerned with its problems. It deals with the precursors and creation of the court, with participation of states not members of the League of nations, with organization, jurisdiction and procedure. Unlike the author's "World court; a handbook of the Permanent court of international justice" which consists chiefly of selected documents on the Court

1 League of nations 2 Peace 3 International cooperation 4 World politics 5 U.S.—Foreign relations 36-12362

"The author is the leading American advocate of the League of Nations. His book was written and ready for publication under a different title when the European crisis led to its revamping. As it stands now it is a history of international relations in the past 15 years and an outline of what a reorganized League should be. The title is more sensational than the treatment justifies." Also available in the Star series (Garden City pub. co. $1)

"Traces the history of the armament industry, the careers of such leading figures as Krupp and Zaharoff and the enormous profits they have made out of their plants, and contends that the munition-makers themselves are not to blame, as the only solution to the problem is complete disarmament for all nations. Well documented; written with restraint and detachment." Ontario library review

* Iron, blood and profits; an exposure of the world-wide munitions racket. 1934 Harper $2.50 341.6

1 Munitions 2 Firearms industry and trade 3 War 34-10357

"Presents evidence to substantiate the claim made by the League of Nations in 1921 that the international armament-makers are the instigators and profiteers of war. The author shows how the munition-makers helped to cause the World War, how they continued to supply enemy countries during the war, and how they are now preparing for another war. The appendix contains documents bearing on the subject and a bibliography." Industrial arts index

"He gives more of the detail than the other book [Engelbrecht and Hanighen's Merchants of Death] . . . he supplies the more exciting reading, but adds less to the understanding of the problem. . . Far sounder, if more depressing, are the ultimate findings of Mr. Engelbrecht and Mr. Hanighen." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

1 U.S. Supreme court 37-27419

"A historical survey of the main decisions of the Supreme court, from which the author concludes that the Court has reflected, though somewhat slowly, the major trends of public opinion, and that the Constitution has been shaped by the fluctuating decisions of the Court to meet the demands of each period. No emphasis is given to the connection between decisions and the personal background of the justices, as in the more critical book, Ernst, 'The ultimate power' (entered below). Written for the intelligent layman; generally favorable to the Court as it stands." Bkl.

"It is an excellent piece of journalism that Messrs. Alsop and Catledge have provided in the present volume. And, like all fine pieces of journalism, it has more than a contemporary interest and importance. . . . This isn't only because the book is well written, calmly tempered, well organized, fair in every paragraph to the main actors in the drama . . . but because it carries conviction of authenticity on every page." * Education and social progress. 1934
Harcourt $2 370.1

- 1 Education—U.S. 2 U.S.—Social conditions 34-28446

"The head of the department of education at the University of Chicago discusses school education in relation to the industrial system and to social forces, the costs of education, problems of higher education, the science of education, etc."
Boston

"From the first chapter, where the author takes his characteristic point of view that good and evil in the schools are a result of social growth, to the last, in which he describes what he believes to be the schools of the future, he has in mind the supporters of education—parents, public officials including school board members, and taxpayers. The style and vocabulary are admirably adapted to the audience." Christian century

Macmillan $1.50; 6s 6d 370.15

1 Mental physiology and hygiene 2 Child study 3 Children, Abnormal and backward 4 Educational psychology 34-35227

"The contribution of this book does not lie in the presentation of new material but rather in the organization and presentation of a large body of previously available material in the field of mental hygiene in a manner and language easily understood and designed to facilitate application of the principles. While the theory of mental hygiene receives careful consideration, yet the outstanding feature of the book is the rich body of illustrations showing the practical application of mental hygiene principles in everyday school situations. A selected bibliography adds to its usefulness." N.Y. State educ. dept.

36-11708

"A sane and thoughtful approach to the physical and psychological problems of middle life, with particular reference to women. The attitude is scientific, the outlook intelligent and optimistic. Less popularized than 'Life begins at forty' [entered in the main catalog class 170] but carries a similar message." Wis. bul.

Groves, Ernest Rutherford

The American woman; the feminine side of a masculine civilization. 1937 Greenberg $3 396

1 Woman—History and condition of women 2 Women in the U.S.

37-21947

"A historical survey of woman's status in a setting of masculine dominance. It is not the story of noted individuals, but of colonial women, frontier women, and women in the South and West, as they moved slowly toward equality with men, until the present, when, the author believes, the sex distinctions that have limited their industrial, political, and social opportunities are fading." Bkl.

409 HISTORY OF LANGUAGE

Allen, Arthur Bruce

Romance of the alphabet; foreword by Norman Gill. . . 1937 Warne $1.50; 3s 6d 409

1 Alphabet 38-8372

"The story of these letters is full of interesting legends, facts and romances. . . Imagine the joy of realising for the first time that our letter M is all that remains of the conventionalised picture of an owl . . . that the letter D has something in common with a door. It is in such ways as these that Mr. Allen whets the appetite, points to us a way of making our letters speak and adds reality to the written word." N. Gill in Foreword

412 SEMANTICS

Chase, Stuart

Tyranny of words. 1938 Harcourt $2.50 412

1 Semantics 2 Thought and thinking 38-27018

The author explores the little-known science of semantics, that is, the meaning of words and their use as communication. In the first half of the book, he has made a popularization of the difficult study of semantics, based on the authoritative works of four experts in this field. From this study he builds a semantic discipline which the reader may apply to philosophy, economics, law, logic and politics. The second half of the book is a practical application of the discipline to the confused use of abstractions such as idealism, liberty, new deal, fascism, etc., used by orators, editorial writers, diplomats and judges

Mawson, Christopher Orlando Sylvester

* Dictionary of foreign terms found in English and American writings of yesterday and today. 1934 Crowell $2 413

1 English language—Foreign words and phrases 34-39207

"A dictionary of foreign expressions which occur more or less frequently in literature, periodicals and the daily press. These words and phrases are drawn from more than fifty languages and include not only terms in familiar use but those which occur in literature, law, philosophy, science, art, music and diplomacy." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Mawson has taken especial pains to catch and explain the subtle changes in word significance that are going on in foreign languages as well as our own. In this respect his book breaks new ground. It has also great and distinctive value in the volume and the variety of its contents, which far exceed similar collections that have preceded it." N.Y. Horwill, Herbert William

* Dictionary of modern American usage.
1935 Oxford $3.25; 7s 6d 4201 Americanisms 2 English language—
Idioms, corrections, errors 35-27255

"A reference work of interest and value to both American and English readers, listing and defining the American usage of approximately 1400 words common to the vocabularies of both England and the United States. The difference between the American and English idiom is explained, and illustrative quotations are included. The author, an Englishman, has gathered his material from books and newspapers during the past 30 years, six of which he spent in the United States." N.Y. libraries

"This dictionary is written mainly for Englishmen who do not so much desire to write American as to read it correctly and with understanding. It is a companion to the late H. W. Fowler's 'Dictionary of Modern English Usage,' listed in the main catalog; and is worthy to stand beside that invaluable book." Times (London) lit. sup.

Daylight, twilight, darkness, and time; their distribution over the earth and relationships to human affairs. 1935 Silver $1.24 525.4

1 Latitude 2 Longitude 3 Man-Influence of environment 35-4273

"This book has evolved out of the need that has arisen in the author's teaching experience for a non-technical presentation of the significance of the geometric location of the places on the surface of the earth. Its aim is two-fold: namely, (1) to indicate some of the geographical applications that may be made of the latitudinal and longitudinal position of a particular place, and (2) to provide a simple technique for the computation of the data relating to such position that may be used geographically." Preface

"The presentation of the material on the whole is good, particularly in the way a subject is introduced by presenting first a pertinent statement from some newspaper or other report. The illustrations are clear." Geographical review

"The author of this text is also one of the authors of the well-known surveying reference book, 'Surveying Theory and Practice' by Davis, Foote, and Rayner listed in main catalog. In preparing this work the author has employed essentially the splendid arrangement of subject matter of the 1934 edition of this widely used text, and many of the illustrations, although redrawn, are from that source. The book supersedes the author's 'Manual of Surveying for Field and Office,' first published in 1915." Engineering news-record

Darrow, Karl Kelchner

Renaissance of physics. 1936 Macmillan $3; 12s 6d 530

1 Physics 36-23250

A survey of recent advances in the realm of physics expanded from lectures delivered by the author at the Lowell Institute

"Dr. Darrow, who not only is a professional physicist but also possesses a literary style of better-than-average professional quality, does a remarkably good job of making the new discoveries intelligible in terms of the old." N.Y. Times

Ernst Zimmer's "Revolution in physics" (1936 Harcourt $3.75; Faber 12s 6d) is another discussion of the changes which have taken place in the realm of theoretical physics. Not as easy to read as Darrow

R. D. Rusk's "Atoms, men and stars" (1937 Knopf $3) surveys the latest developments of physical science and their relation to life. A more popular presentation than either Darrow or Zimmer

Published in England under title: You and the universe

"Those who are engaged in science occasionally pause to view the world about them as the eyes of science reveal it. . . . It is a noteworthy event when a writer prepares a story which will let the layman share this vision. This is what Karlson has done. This book is not intended as an addition to our body of knowledge. But for the youth of inquiring mind, or the business man who wants to know what is behind the headlined science of the morning paper, Karlson's discussion is ideal." Scientific book club review

1 Physics 34-28449

"It is as authoritative and up-to-date as any book dealing with so virile a science could possibly be. Its story is told in simple, straight-forward style, and with interesting explanations of many every-day experiences. . . . The illustrations in this book are remarkable in number and type. . . . A stereoscopic lens with which to view the photographs is furnished by the publishers with the attractively boxed volume." Scientific book club review

Eddington, Sir Arthur Stanley

New pathways in science. 1935 Macmillan $3; Cambridge univ. press 10s 6d 530.1

1 Science—Addresses, essays, lectures
2 Science—Philosophy 3 Physics—Philosophy 35-3651

"Based on the Messenger Lectures delivered at Cornell University in 1934. Among the subjects treated are determinism, probability, the constitution of the stars and nebulae, subatomic energy, and the significance of the constants of nature." Coventry, Public libraries

"It is not a book destined to popularize science, in the ordinary sense of that term. Instead it is a sequel to 'The Expanding Universe' and 'The Nature of the Physical World,' demanding of its reader at least as much prerequisite knowledge as would be gained by a thorough understanding of the content of those books. Only those who are intellectually and emotionally prepared for strenuous mental exercise will read it with joyous appreciation and unflagging zeal." Scientific book club review

Planck, Max Karl Ernst Ludwig

Philosophy of physics; tr. by W. H. Johnston. 1936 Norton $2; Allen, G. 4s 6d 530.1

Since the third edition of 1929 "our knowledge of the physical foundations of matter has been extended to the point where a completely new treatment of the colloid state is in order. To accomplish this, the author has adopted a new approach to colloids, taking into account all relevant recent discoveries in nuclear and atomic physics, and welding the new to the well-known in a simple yet complete fashion. . . The book is in no sense a miscellany. Rather it is a carefully organized treatise on colloids, perfectly coherent around this one central theme."

549 MINERALOGY

English, George Letchworth

* Getting acquainted with minerals. 1934
McGraw $2 50; 15s 549
1 Mineralogy 35-201

"A book for the hobbyist and the professional mineralogist; well illustrated, well arranged, and an excellent guide to methods of collecting both common and rare minerals. Particular emphasis is laid on the specimens to be found in the United States." N.Y. public lib. New technical books

Hawkins, Alfred Cary

Book of minerals. 1935 Wiley $1.50;
Chapman 7s 6d 549
1 Mineralogy 35-24294

"A non-technical handbook for the student, the layman interested in minerals, the collector, and the jeweler. Limited to important minerals which furnish products in daily use and gem stones. A chapter on finding mineral specimens. Bibliography: p.147-49." Bkl.

Kraus, Edward Henry; Hunt, Walter Frederick, and Ramsdell, Lewis Stephen

Mineralogy; an introduction to the study of minerals and crystals. 3d ed 1936
McGraw $5; 30s 549

1 Mineralogy 2 Crystallography 36-12376

New edition of a textbook first published 1920, the second edition of which is entered in the main catalog. Revised in the light of the most recent discoveries and enlarged by 34 pages and many illustrations. "The most notable changes have been made in the chapters on Physical Properties, the Polarizing Microscope, Crystal Structure and X-ray Analysis, and the Formation and Occurrence of Minerals." Preface to the third edition

Bradley, John Hodgdon

* Autobiography of earth. 1935 Coward-McCann $3 550

1 Geology 35-27334

"The majestic conflict of terrestrial forces is described both as a drama in its own right, and as a theater where man is protagonist of the play," by a student of earth history, in terms that are understandable, and in a manner that is fascinating to the layman. Among the factors in the evolution of the surface of the earth and its inhabitants, are discussed the atmosphere, water (both surface and hidden), ice, the sea, volcanic activity and the earthquake. The importance of stones and minerals in man's progress is also emphasized. Eight full-page modernistic drawings by Kenneth M. Adams." N.Y. libraries

Croneis, Carey Gardiner, and Krumbein, William Christian

* Down to earth; an introduction to geology. 1936 Univ. of Chicago press $5;
Cambridge univ. press 22s 6d 550

1 Geology 36-10420

"Scientifically accurate and consistently entertaining, this elementary geology may well be read and studied by both the student and by the adult who sincerely believe that sciences are dull reading and geology is only for the learned. Clever illustrations and simple diagrams do much to enhance the value of the text." N.Y. public lib. New technical books

551 PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY

H. T. Stetson's "Earth, radio and the stars" (1934 McGraw $3; 10s 6d) offers evidence of ways in which the earth is related to other astronomic bodies. A Whittlesey house publication

Loomis, Frederic Brewster

Physiology of the United States. 1937
Doubleday $2.75 551

1 Geology 2 Physical geography 37-3536

"The book is intended for students with no previous training in physiography or geology. Ninety-five pages are devoted to general physiographic processes, rocks and structure, weather, soils, and a skeletal outline of geologic history. The remaining 255 pages form a well-balanced and interesting description of our country adapted to the viewpoint of the beginner in the subject. . . His numerous sketches and photos, many of them drawn from familiar sources, are effectively employed. . . The book is a competent treatment of its subject on a new level." Journal of geology

Nevin, Charles Merrick

Principles of structural geology. 2d ed
1936 Wiley $3 50; Chapman 17s 6d 551

1 Geology 36-17898

"A thorough revision and some enlargement of an elementary textbook first published in 1931 (and entered in the main catalog). Now includes a chapter 'Structures associated with igneous intrusion' by Dr. Evans B. Mayo." N.Y. public lib. New technical books

551.2 Earthquakes. Volcanoes

Heck, Nicholas Hunter

Earthquakes. 1936 Princeton univ. press
$3.50; Oxford 16s 551.2

1 Earthquakes 36-27429

"Curiously enough, although several technical books and innumerable papers have been contributed to the extensive literature of the subject in the last few years, no comprehensive study of the seismology, intended for the general reader, has appeared in this country since the establishment of the Scientific Book Club. Captain Heck's thoroughly authoritative and up-to-date contribution is therefore peculiarly welcome. It is highly recommended." Scientific book club review

551.5 Meteorology

Brooks, Charles Franklin

Why the weather? with the collaboration of E. S. Brooks and John Nelson. rev and enl 1935 Harcourt $2.50; Chapman 10s 6d 551.5

1 Meteorology 35-7415

First edition published in 1924 was entered in the main catalog. This new edition is revised to incorporate newer knowledge of meteorology

T. A. Blair's "Weather elements" (1937 Prentice-Hall $5, to schools $4) is a more recent text of facts, principles and general information in elementary meteorology

Fisk, Dorothy Mary

Exploring the upper atmosphere. 1934
Oxford $1.75; Faber 6s 551.5

Weather proverbs and paradoxes. 2d ed 1934 Williams & Wilkins $2; Bailliere 9s 551.5

1 Weather lore 2 Weather forecasting 35-1357

First published 1923 and listed in the main catalog as out of print. This edition has two short sections added but the changes are not enough to warrant a library replacing the earlier edition

Philp, Charles G.

Conquest of the stratosphere. 1937 Pitman $2.50; 7s 6d 551.5

1 Atmosphere, Upper 2 Balloon ascensions 37-18411

"Full accounts of the ten stratosphere flights beginning with that of Professor Auguste Piccard in 1931, with chapters on the nature of the upper regions and of the scientific results obtained." N.Y. public lib. New technical books

Pickwell, Gayle Benjamin

* Weather. (Natural history studies) 1937 Hugh F. Newman & co $3 551.5

1 Weather 37-27341

"This attractive quarto volume explains in a simple way some of the mysteries of weather, how to read the clouds, the havoc of winds and lightning, what the weather does to the earth and how man may control some of these effects, and finally how we may set about learning more concerning the science of meteorology. Numerous full-page photographic plates help to make this an interesting and useful book." N.Y. public lib. New technical books

551.7 Glacial epochDaly, Reginald Aldworth

Changing world of the ice age. 1934 Yale univ. press $5; Oxford 22s 6d 551.7

1 Glacial epoch 2 Geology, Stratigraphic 35-92

"An enlargement of the Silliman lectures delivered at Yale University in 1934. The author discusses past and present ice-caps, calling attention to recent discoveries concerning glaciation and its effect; sketches geographic changes caused by the recession of the Fennoscandian and North American ice; considers the mechanism of the earth's deformation and recoil under the glacial load; and discusses the effects of the high and low sea levels of the Pleistocene. There follows a chapter on coral reefs and the ice age with an explanation of living reefs which is at variance with the theory of Darwin and Dana." Industrial arts index

553 ECONOMIC GEOLOGYBowles, Oliver

Stone industries. 1934 McGraw $5; 30s 553

Sixth edition starred in the main catalog

"The plan of the book remains the same, but a number of changes have been made in the subject matter and references, in an effort to keep the work up to date. . . The chapter on Oil and Gas has been completely revised and many other parts have been rewritten. Less space has been devoted to statistics, and there has been a reduction in size of the work as a whole." Preface to seventh edition

United States. Mines, Bureau of. Foreign minerals division

Mineral raw materials; survey of commerce and sources in major industrial countries. . . 1937 McGraw $5; 30s 553

1 Mines and mineral resources 37-28644

"The survey is in two parts: survey by minerals and survey by countries. Each mineral is considered separately to indicate the relative position of the principal world sources of supply with respect to the 32 minerals and likewise to show the extent of dependence on international trade of the 12 major industrial countries covered by the survey." Part one considers crude raw materials only. In part two import trade statistics have been compiled for certain fabricates, alloys, and scrap and secondary metals." Industrial arts index

553.8 Gems

H. L. Thomson's "Gems" (1934 Calif. graphic press 50c) is a handbook for the amateur on how to know gems and how to cut them

Spencer, Leonard James

Key to precious stones. 1937 Furman $2.75; Blackie & son 5s 553.8

1 Precious stones [GS36-217]

By the former keeper of minerals in the British Museum. "A scientific text and reference book written in popular language. The author gives a general account of the properties, composition, location, and use of gem-stones. The main facts in the chapters are usually assembled at the end of each, in key table form. Photographs, diagrams, tables." Industrial arts index

Whitlock, Herbert Percy

* Story of the gems; a popular handbook.
1936 Furman $3.50; Putnam 15s 553.8

1 Gems 36-18181

"The curator of minerals and gems, American Museum of Natural History, describes in this popular and informative handbook the antique use of gems, the art of the lapidary and the forms in which gems are cut. Separate chapters are devoted to the diamond, other precious stones, semiprecious stones, quartz and opaque gems and ornamental stones, and to organize products used as gems, chiefly the pearl. All the illustrations, a frontispiece in color, and many excellent half-tone photographs are from exhibits in the Morgan collection of gems in the American Museum of Natural History. Bibliography, descriptive tables of gems, index." N.Y. libraries

1 Man—Influence of environment

The "guiding thesis is environment, as exemplified in natural surroundings and habitats and, quite as importantly, in culture patterns. . . The book has three sections: the pattern of inanimate nature, of living nature, and of human cultures. The first is of course concerned with climate, soil, and the stream of energy; the second with evolution; and the third with an examination, so far as is possible to one within it, of the pattern of the existing technic-culture." * Parade of the animal kingdom. 1935
Macmillan $5; 21s 590

1 Zoology 35-27342

"Thousands of scientists have devoted their lives to the study of the Animal Kingdom with the result that we now have a rather comprehensive knowledge of the galaxy of species. Here in this voluminous book this knowledge is presented. Beginning with the protozoa, the first division in the parade, Dr. Hegner, professor of protozoology at Johns Hopkins University, calls attention to the representative groups

Hegner, R. W. and Hegner, J. Z.—Continued of animals. These range from sponges, worms, and crustaceans, through insects, fish, amphibia and birds to the mammals, flying, gnawing, hoofed, flesh-eating, and aquatic. The primates are considered last." Scientific book club review

Howes, Paul Griswold

Hand book for the curious. 1936 Putnam $3.75; 15s 590

1 Zoology 36-24632

"A compendium of well-illustrated information about zoology. It answers questions about insects, snakes, seashore life, and other living things—subjects about which many people are curious, and of which they have little knowledge. The author is curator of natural history in a museum in Greenwich, Conn. The book is intended for use in the eastern United States." Bkl.

Moore, Clifford B.

Book of wild pets; being a discussion on the care and feeding of our native wild-life in captivity, together with notes on their identification and life habits. . . 1937 Putnam $5 590

1 Natural history 2 Pets 37-28428

"Intended as a reference and a source book for teachers, museum workers, boy and girl scouts, and students. Includes a great variety of material, written in a simple nontechnical style. Photographs, drawings, and charts. Good format." Bkl.

A beautifully produced book but expensive for most small libraries is "Exotic aquarium fishes" by W. T. Innes (2d ed 1935 Innes $5)

Lederer, Norbert

Tropical fish & their care. 1934 Knopf $2.50 590.7

1 Aquariums 2 Fishes 34-10343

"The author is a well-known amateur in the breeding and care of tropical fish, and he has put into his book not only all the information needed by any one who wants to go in for this hobby but also something of the interest and zeal with which he has himself pursued it." N.Y. Times

1001 questions answered about your aquarium. 1935 Dodd $3; Harrap 10s 6d 590.7

1 Aquariums 2 Fishes 3 Water gardens 35-27414

"Information about goldfish and toy tropicals, with details of care and treatment of ailments. Roughly classified arrangement, with full index. Bibliography of books and magazine articles." Bkl.

Morgan, Alfred Powell

Tropical fishes and home aquaria; a practical guide to a fascinating hobby. 1935 Scribner $2.50; Rich 8s 6d 590.7

1 Aquariums 2 Fishes 35-4744

"An excellent book for beginners, not too technical for young people, containing information valuable to all fish enthusiasts. The illustrations are good—those labeled 'don't' being especially worth while—and, although not in color, are so carefully drawn that the fish can be identified at once. Chapters on 'Food and feeding' and 'Water in the aquarium' will save many a beginner and some others from disaster." Wis. bul.

Gives many details of the life of the animals, birds, fish, reptiles and insects who live at the zoo

Buck, Frank, and Fraser, Ferrin L.

Fang and claw. 1935 Simon & Schuster $2.50; Jarrolds 16s 591.5

1 Animals—Habits and behavior 2 Zoology—East (Far East) 35-5887

"Experiences of a collector of wild animals, who tells about the human beings transplanted into the Far Eastern jungles, as well as about the beasts." Boston

The author "is one of the rare articulate adventurers who has the good sense not to be forever asserting that he is the fellow who shot the bear. Through most of this book he is content to sit back and tell the tales of others' deeds." N.Y. Times

Ditmars, Raymond Lee

* Confessions of a scientist. 1934 Macmillan $3.50; 15s 591.5

1 Zoology 2 Animals—Habits and behavior 34-37236

"The scope of a naturalist's daily work in laboratory and field, with its varied, unexpected, and often hazardous duties, is well illustrated here. The author's account of his search for vampire bats, his care of live specimens, his motion picture experiences with the deadly mamba, and his experiments with snake poisons and immunization furnish vicarious adventure for the reader. Told informally." Bkl.

Making of a scientist. 1937 Macmillan $2.75; 14s 591.5

1 Animals—Habits and behavior 2 New York. Zoological park 37-28546

Contents: Episode of the thousand flies; Private life of Attacus Yamamaia; Strange party of three; Tangents; Diamond-backs; Dew in the desert; New slants at the monkeys; Problems of a bear hunt; Quiet night; Hurricane; Whys of a snowstorm; Chain of islands; Quest of the giant bat; Snake nursery; Paradox frog

"This is a book about a 'scientist's good times, and some of his disappointments.' If it is episodic it is perhaps because he wishes to emphasize that his interests have been multiple, a fact which has added considerably to his zest for life. The book points no moral, but it should stimulate some youngsters to emulate his example, and some adults to give a thought to what goes on in the offices and laboratories which they do not see when visiting the Zoo." Sat. rev. of lit.

Another book about Dr. Ditmars' experiences is given in "Snake-hunters' holiday" by R. L. Ditmars, and William Bridges. (1935 Appleton-Century $3.50; 12s 6d). Recounts the work of a tropical collecting trip to British Guiana and Trinidad

591.9 Geographical distribution of animals

Chapman, Wendell, and Chapman, Mrs Lucie Wilson

Wilderness wanderers; adventures among wild animals in Rocky mountain solitudes. 1937 Scribner $3.75; 12s 6d 591.9

1 Animals—Habits and behavior 2 Rocky mountains 3 Yellowstone national park 5 Zoology—Yellowstone national park 37-27246

"Lovers of carefree life in the vast out-of-doors, the authors, husband and wife, sundered all business connections, and this volume is a completely fascinating record of their summer and winter exploring in the Yellowstone, camping high in the mountain glens or on a lake or in a cabin on the edge of the park. All the while they were making friends with, observing and photographing animals, including beaver, Bighorn sheep, bear, deer, squirrels and mountain goats. The animal photographs are distinguished for their beauty and are proof of great and untiring effort." N.Y. libraries

Sanderson, Ivan Terrance

- * Animal treasure; with thirty-two il. by the author. 1937 Viking $3; Macmillan 12s 6d 591.9

1 Animals—Habits and behavior 2 Zoology—Nigeria 37-28557

"Going into the deep, virgin forests of West Africa, to study the animals in life and record their differences of appearance, behaviour and habits," the young English author watched the kaleidoscope of animal life not only on the floor of the forest, but aloft among the arboreal animals of the 'flying continent,' and he discovered much that was rare, obscure and strange. It is impossible to touch upon the treasure spread for the reader's delight in this utterly absorbing and informing record of incidents ranging from the side-splitting to the terrifying, each one brilliantly portrayed in its own setting. Thirty-two drawings in sepia by the author." N.Y. libraries

"How they are made and grow. How they are colored and the patterns produced. Rare shells. Shells that build a raft. Shells that bore in rocks. Giant shells. The shell that sinks ships, etc., etc." Subtitle

"Mr. Verrill has put a large amount of interesting material into a fairly small space, and he has written his book with the utmost simplicity. He obviously wishes his true stories of sea creatures to appeal to young readers as well as their elders. But adults, however traveled, should be warned against feeling too superior; for some strange and arresting fact may pop up in the simplest paragraph." N.Y. Times

3 Natural history—Outdoor books 35-4509

"Taking two beaver kittens as pets completely changed the author's attitude toward trapping beaver, and led finally to the establishment of a beaver sanctuary by the Canadian government. The story by this self-taught Indian writer includes not only the struggle of Grey Owl and his wife for existence in the Canadian wilderness but more especially the way their lives were enriched by beaver pets, so appealing in their response to friendly human beings, so versatile in adapting themselves to unnatural conditions of camp life, yet full of mischievous proclivities, artless whimsicality and intense activities. Photographs, sketches by Grey Owl." N.Y. libraries

1 Lions 2 Photography of animals 34-27139

"Mr. Wells has written a most remarkable book about lions both wild and in the captivity, not indeed of a zoological garden, but of the paddocks of a South African farm. He is not an accomplished writer, and as a result often omits to tell us something we long to know. . . Mr. Wells gives information which will certainly make his book an essential one for those, possibly not numerous, persons who keep lions as pets. To the larger class of readers, who turn to the book for its interest and strangeness, the many very beautiful photographs of wild and captive lions will be an added attraction." 610.7 Nurses and nursing

Bryan, Edith Sibyl

Art of public health nursing. 1935 Saunders $2 610.7

1 Nurses and nursing 2 Public health 35-3520

"The author's aim is 'to perpetuate a message which she has imparted to former students, who having benefited by it, have urged its publication.' Public health nursing requires such intimate contact with the family and the home that the personal qualities and specialized education of nurses in the field are very important. The nurse should, if she is to be a real success, have a cultured education. . . The duties of the school nurse, industrial nurse and prenatal nurse are discussed at length. All through the book the author discusses and emphasizes the need for spiritual training. . . This book may be used in planning lectures and talks to groups of nurses as it is applicable to all phases of nursing." N.Y. Municipal reference lib. notes

A compact manual of the functions of the industrial nurse prepared for the National organization of public health nursing

"The aim of this publication is to indicate the potential field of public health nursing in commerce, trade, and industry. . . In no instance is it the purpose of this book to dictate any one program suited to all establishments. On the contrary, only such general principles have been incorporated as will be easily adaptable to a variety of situations." Preface

Pope, Amy Elizabeth, and Young, Virna M.

Art and principles of nursing. 1934 Putnam $2.75; 12s 6d 610.7

1 Nurses and nursing 34-32887

This work is the fifth edition of a textbook previously published under the title "Practical nursing," by A. C. Maxwell and A. E. Pope. The work has been thoroughly revised and rewritten to adapt it to modern requirements

"This text is evidently based on experience, is interestingly written, and concise. It is well worth the careful study of nurses, and since it indicates the standard nursing procedure in various diseases, might well be read by physicians." American journal of public health

Haggard, Howard Wilcox

The doctor in history. 1934 Yale univ. press $3.75; Oxford 17s 610.9

1 Medicine—History 2 Physicians 34-38857

"Despite the fact that several books have been written during the last three or four years on the place of medicine and the doctor in history, Dr. Haggard's book deserves special consideration. Written primarily for his children in order that through the history of health, seen in the lives of the great doctors, they may understand the social logic of modern medicine, it offers the public an exceptionally well written and sometimes amusing survey of disease and its conquest even before the time of man." Scientific book club review

Two additional surveys of the relation of diseases to historical and social events are R. H. Major's "Disease and destiny" (1936 Appleton-Century $3.50; 12s 6d) and H. E. Sigerist's "American medicine" (1934 Norton $4; Oxford 16s)

1 Engineering—Handbooks, manuals, etc. 36-22508

"An interesting and useful reference book has been produced by segregating from various current engineering handbooks the sections dealing with 'fundamentals,' that is, mathematics, physics, chemistry, mechanics, data on materials, and the like. The resulting 'Handbook of Engineering Fundamentals' is rather formidable in bulk, but it will be found to contain many items of information not always conveniently available. While the completeness of the information given in some instances is apt to prove disappointing, this perhaps is difficult to avoid in a condensed reference manual." Engineering news-record

New edition of a work originally published 1925. The 1936 edition is eight pages longer than the second due to the introduction of brief suggestions on punctuation, on presentation of ideas, on making the article interesting and on prepublication revision

"Is not concerned with sources of information, but with matters of form, style, and arrangement. For this purpose it is a valuable manual which may be profitably consulted by writers of theses and reports, and papers for the technical and trade press. The principles set forth are applicable to a broader field than purely scientific writing, and some instruction in the material it contains should be included in every college course." Pittsburgh

"Handbook of instructions on the building of model boats, airplanes, and kites, which can be used by manual arts teachers, play-ground recreation leaders, and by boys themselves. The book is divided into three parts. Part one contains plans and construction details of sailing yachts and motorboats, and gives instructions on the racing of the little ships. The second part describes the building of seven model airplanes, all of which have flown and won prizes. The third part tells how to build five species of kites." Book rev. digest

1 Roads

First published 1934. The second edition is slightly enlarged to bring it up to date and for the insertion of questions and problems prepared by T. F. Hickerson in collaboration with R. M. Trimble

"This text on highway design and construction takes on the character of a treatise rather than a manual or textbook. The wise plan adopted by the author of submitting his manuscript to the practical teacher for careful editing with the needs of the college student in mind, however, has added textbook value to a volume naturally produced for the practicing engineer by a practicing engineer. In 28 chapters the author takes the reader through highway location, type design, construction of each type, guard-rails and markers, lighting, roadside improvement, sidewalks, cleaning and snow removal, and the construction of airport landing fields." "The first edition of this text was published in 1928 [was entered in the main catalog] and was prepared for use in college courses in highway engineering. It is not intended as a complete handbook of reference; instead, material was selected with the special needs of students in mind. The general plan of the author was not to follow the chronological procedure of actual highway work, but to pursue a logical sequence of instruction. This second edition, a complete modernization of the first, follows the same plan. The text has been thoroughly revised and parts have been entirely rewritten." Better roads

"Several years ago the author left his editorial position in New York and went to live in Westchester county. On an acre and a half of ground he built a house, laid out a garden, and tried to make a living for himself and his wife and two children on the proceeds of his land and his writing.

The book is a discussion of his experiment and its successes and failures." Book rev. digest

"A book is delightful and at the same time truly realistic. For this is a book that has been lived. It has vitality on every page." Christian science monitor

Harris, Mrs Evelyn

Barter lady. 1934 Doubleday $2.50 630.1

1 Agriculture—Maryland 2 Farm life 3 Women as farmers 34-27216

"Month by month the 'barter lady' relates her experiences as a farmer in days of depression, when firewood is exchanged for clothes, vegetables for school fees, turkeys and pears for books and magazines, and the shadow of unpaid taxes lies over all. The author is a widow who has struggled to raise her children on a mortgaged farm in eastern Maryland." Book rev. digest

"A clever and amusing book, it yet gets in some good thinking of a serious sort and succeeds in being a contribution of real value to current discussion of the farmer's plight." N.Y. Times

Sears, Paul Bigelow

Deserts on the march. 1935 Univ. of Okla. press $2.50 630.9

1 Agriculture 2 U.S.—Economic conditions 3 Natural resources 4 Agriculture—Economic aspects 35-27422

"An essayist with something new to say is Paul B. Sears of the University of Oklahoma, whose book tells how men destroy crops and soil to their own detriment. Nature, Mr. Sears says, has a certain botanical or biological balance, which the ill-controlled and often inept processes of men, whether pioneer settlers or residents of indefinite tenure, sometimes rudely disrupt. . . . Productive soil becomes a desert, and thus the history of continents may be a chronicle of deserts on the march." Springfield Republican

"It is vividly written, too brightly indeed at times, for Professor Sears indulges not infrequently in irrelevant obiter dicta. He looks to the forest and prairie for safety, but without the farm land how can the people be fed?" Times (London) lit. sup.

"Mr. McMurtrie's history of printing and bookmaking was begun as a revision of his 'Golden Book,' first published ten years ago. But the author has expanded so much of his material that the result is in many respects an entirely new work, twice the size of the original volume. Printers' marks, for instance, were scarcely alluded to in the 'Golden Book'; here they are given a chapter to themselves, with examples of different kinds popular in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. . . Book illustration, too, both historical and contemporary, receives much more attention than in the former edition, and the sections on modern typography have been brought up to date. The most striking change, however, is the increased number of reproductions, nearly two hundred in all." Boston

1 Interviewing 34-28588

First published 1931. In the revised edition chapters 14 to 16 of the earlier edition have been summarized in chapter 12. One new chapter describing the interview from point of view of the applicant has been added. Revisions of the other chapters include changes suggested by the users. First edition is entered in the main catalog

Gardiner, Glenn Lion

Better foremanship. 1936 McGraw $2.50 658.3

1 Foremen 2 Factory management 3 Employment management 4 Efficiency, Industrial 36-9823

"Presented in question and answer style . . . the book will probably be mainly useful to line executives who are carrying on foremanship conferences as one of many activities and who are eager to find some of their material 'ready made.'" National safety news

"Administrative proficiency in business" by E. H. Schell (1936 McGraw $2.50; 15s) advises the business administrator how to meet new responsibilities and opportunities

Laird, Donald Anderson

Psychology of selecting employees. 3d ed rev 1937 McGraw $4; 24s 658.3

1 Employment management 2 Psychology, Applied 37-13359

"This book, which in the first and second editions bore the title 'Psychology of Selecting Men,' incorporates numerous minor changes to bring the text up to date. Two chapters have been dropped and two entirely new chapters have been added. The alterations have been chiefly to make the book more useful to the employment manager and interviewer and probably less useful to the professional psychologist." Preface to the third edition

Viteles, Morris Simon

Science of work. 1934 Norton $3.75; Cape, J. 15s 658.3

1 Work 2 Efficiency, Industrial 3 Psychology, Applied 34-18014

"In an earlier book, Industrial Psychology [entered in main catalog] Mr. Viteles provided a comprehensive technical survey of the methods and principles of industrial psychology. The present volume covers the same ground more briefly and simply. It shows how psychology is applied to make work a happier and more productive activity." Book rev. digest

"The book, well-planned and well-written, is a most timely presentation of a very important subject." Scientific book club review

3 Chain stores 37-514

"That 'Profits are the reward for better service to the consumer,' and that the machine age has room for merchandising organizations of many kinds, including chains, department stores, small independent stores, and cooperatives, are some of the ideas expressed in a stimulating book. Based on factual studies, with many tables and charts." Wis. bul.

Ivey, Paul Wesley

Getting results in selling. 1934 Macmillan $2; 8s 6d 658.8

1 Salesmen and salesmanship 34-12839

"Salesmen in search of inspiration will do well to spend an evening with Dr. Ivey's latest book. . . The book is not a scholarly analysis of selling methods, nor a dissertation on the place of selling in modern business. Neither is it a handbook of 'how to sell.' It is essentially a 'pep talk' for salesmen and sales managers—a talk that is at once inspirational and intelligent." Boston Transcript

Salesmanship applied. 2d ed 1937 McGraw $3; 18s 658.8

1 Salesmen and salesmanship 37-12368

First published in 1925 "the material embodied in this book constitutes a Course in Salesmanship known as 'The Paul Ivey Salesmanship Institute'. . . This discussion of salesmanship applies equally to manufacturers' salesmen, wholesalers' salesmen, and retailers' salesmen, although it may appear to some that undue emphasis is laid on the latter." First edition entered in the main catalog
"This edition has been extensively revised to include at least a brief description of all the important developments that have taken place since 1927 when the original manuscript was prepared. All statistical tables have been brought up to date." Chemical and metallurgical engineering

Campbell, Harry Linn

Working, heat treating, and welding of steel. 1935 Wiley $2.25; Chapman 11s 6d

1 Steel—Metallurgy 35-3062

"Presents in a concise way the principles and the practice relating to the working, heat treating and welding of steel. . . The reader is introduced to the steel-making processes and to the classification of steel . . . and welding processes are given considerable attention. Methods for protecting the metal from atmospheric corrosion are reviewed in the last chapter, and a series of laboratory assignments is appended." Preface

669.3 Copper

Joralemon, Ira Beaman

Romantic copper; its lure and lore. 1934 Appleton-Century $3; 10s 6d

1 Copper mines and mining 34-11091

"Story of some of the great copper mines and the men associated with their discovery. Including many frankly unauthenticated tales and legends, and stressing the adventurous and romantic rather than the technical side, the author gives the stories of Calumet and Hecla, the Butte discoveries, Copper Queen, Greene Cananea, New Cornelia, and other famous American mines as well as Rio Tinto and the Cyprus Mines. A long chapter entitled 'Fashions in Mines' gives a chronological story of prospecting, discovery and development in the principal copper fields. A glossary of mining terms is included." Identification of the commercial timbers of the United States. (American forestry ser.) 1934 McGraw $3; 18s

1 Timber 2 Wood 34-27239

"The chief emphasis has been placed on wood anatomy since the majority of the characters used in wood identification are derived from this source. The first part of the book deals with wood structure, and the procedure has been from the gross to the minute. Anatomical characters visible with the naked eye and hand lens are discussed first, along with such non-mechanical physical properties as color and weight. This portion of the text is followed by information on minute anatomy, couched in language as simple as the subject matter will permit." Preface

"It is the hope of the compilers that this index may be a ready aid to the librarian in answering the innumerable 'how to make it' questions. . . The index is based on an extensive collection of references accumulated in the Minneapolis Public Library during the past twelve years, and in constant use there. It covers a field of miscellaneous and hitherto unorganized material on handicrafts and amateur shop work projects, including practical and decorative wood and metal work, modelmaking and other forms of handicrafts (exclusive of needlework and strictly art subjects), and mechanical and electrical projects. Radio, a complete field in itself, has been omitted. Only articles giving practical information and the necessary drawings or diagrams for construction have been selected." Preface

"The book treats, in general, the visual arts, excepting those which extend in time (the dance, theatre). The story is primarily of painting and sculpture, and the closely related minor arts of illumination, drawing, and prints; and of architecture. Beyond, accounts of the so-called decorative arts—pottery, textiles, enamels, metal-work—and inclusion where formal values and decorative purposes have been intensely achieved. [Well illustrated.] Preface

1 Art—History 2 Artists 3 Post impressionism (Art) 34-27117

"Believing the new movement to be 'one of the most dramatic chapters in the annals of art,' the author has considered first the background and then the leading personalities (Van Gogh, Gauguin, Matisse, Picasso and others), in relationship to their environment and to the schools they wrecked or founded. Almost half the book is devoted to American artists, including the Mexican. Controversial in spirit but not without penetrating criticism. Intimate details of Bohemian life seem unnecessarily emphasized. Full-page black and white reproductions of representative paintings. Index." N.Y. libraries

Seven Soviet arts; (tr. by E. S. Ben-singer). 1938 Yale univ. press $4 709.47

1 Art, Russian 2 Russia—Civilization

37-22950

"A long, comprehensive survey of the present conditions of the seven arts in Russia, by a German writer. Parts one and two deal respectively with the cultural organization of a new society and the artistic principles of the Stalin régime, parts three and four with the traditional arts—music, literature, sculpture, etc., and the contemporary arts—films, radio, and gramophone, part five with the Russian child and the arts. On the whole, the author tends to be critical of the Soviet Russia's accomplishments." Book rev. digest

"The first serious attempt to survey the arts of the new Russia against their cultural background. Moreover, it is sober, factual, well informed and written with less political bias than we have learned to expect." New republic

709.52 Japan

Tsuda, Noritake

Handbook of Japanese art. 1936 Dodd
$6 709.52

1 Art—Japan 35-202901

"A very serviceable volume, which surveys in much detail the arts of Japan from the prehistoric period to the present. The author divides his material into two parts, the first dealing with development of the arts themselves, the second constituting a guide to Japanese temples and museums. While Tsuda's discussion of Japanese art is comprehensive and thorough, it is presented in an easy and informal manner. The facts are neatly marshaled, but not in pursuance of an elaborate literary plan. Since the author's English is often a little quaint in its construction, an intimate atmosphere results. Each chapter of the first part, concerning itself with a designated period, opens with a general survey and takes up in turn such major classifications as painting, sculpture, industrial arts and architecture. Nor has the important matter of gardens been neglected." N.Y. Times

Flower arrangement. 1935 Macmillan $3; 12s 6d 716

1 Floral decoration 2 Flowers—Arrangement 35-21517

"A clear and simple exposition of methods of selecting and arranging flowers for home decoration, intended for the amateur. The authors emphasize the importance of design as against material, and set forth the underlying principles of art which must be applied, while warning against a too rigid adherence to hard-and-fast rules. Has a chapter on how to cut and keep flowers. Photographs and line drawings illustrate the text. For all libraries." Wis. bul.

Two other practical books on the same subject are: Mrs A. W. B. Hine's "New flower arrangements" (1936 Scribner $2.75; 10s 6d) supplementary to her "Arrangement of flowers," which is included in the main catalog. The cardinal principles are given and less common materials are utilized such as winter evergreens, tropical plants and dried plants; and Margaret Preininger's "Japanese flower arrangement for modern homes" (1936 Little $5; Putnam 21s) which describes Japanese methods and illustrates the results with photographs

Gardner, Arthur

Handbook of English medieval sculpture. 1935 Macmillan $5; Cambridge univ. press 15s 734

1 Sculpture—British 2 Sculpture, Medieval 36-27061

An abridged and revised edition of "An account of medieval figure-sculpture in England," by E. S. Prior and Arthur Gardner, published in 1912. The text has been rewritten, the material rearranged, and a number of new photographs have been added

"The book with six hundred pages and nearly five hundred illustrations, is amply sufficient for most students and should commend itself to all sorts of readers. . . The new book is well indexed: the old plates, which have been reused, thanks to better paper or printing, have often gained in precision and clearness, and so has the text; the new photographs are most attractive, including details from the twelfth-century work of Lincoln façade, from the thirteenth-century tombs of Westminster Sanctuary, and a wonderful series of monuments of the last century before the Reformation." * Art and the machine; an account of industrial design in 20th-century America. 1936 McGraw $3.75; 15s 745

1 Design 2 Industrial arts 37-70
"Discusses the emergence of a modern style in the countless machine-made articles of daily life, including everything from kitchen equipment to the new streamline in automobiles. An admirable account of industrial design in the twentieth century." Ontario library review
"A survey comprehensive in scope, often brilliant in statement, which deserves wide attention." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Evans, Joan
Nature in design. 1933 Oxford $5; 15s 745

1 Naturalism in art 2 Design, Decorative—Animal forms 3 Design, Decorative—Plant forms 34-38355
"A study of naturalism in decorative art from the bronze age to the renaissance." Subtitle

The author "maintains . . . that only where there are cities or their equivalent in great monasteries is there any considerable interest in trees, plants, flowers, beasts, birds, and insects. . . . A rich and mellow book, the main theme being throughout fittingly illuminated by side-lights from literature. The scholar must consult it, and the cultured layman will read it with pleasure. Well-illustrated." Sat. rev. of lit.

Read, Herbert Edward
Art and industry; the principles of industrial design. 1935 Harcourt $3.75; Faber 12s 6d 745

A book on industrial design illustrated with numerous photographs of objects from

coffee urns and vases to bridges and automobiles, which satisfy the principles of abstract design and are at the same time in keeping with the purpose of the objects

"Mr Read's argument is prefaced by an excellent historical account of the relations between industry and art and a statement of esthetic principles that is not beyond the layman's understanding. But the great value of his book is in the sections he devotes to applying those principles to various categories of manufacture—to pottery, glass, metalwork, woodwork, textiles and construction." Springfield Republican

"Industrial design and the future" by Geoffrey Holme (1934 Studio $7.50; 15s) presents original and challenging ideas on modern design, its essential principles and the value of the designer to industry

Welo, Samuel

Trade mark and monogram suggestions. 1937 Pitman $3; 10s 6d 745

1 Monograms 2 Trade marks 37-4291

Whittick, Arnold

* Symbols for designers. 1935 Lockwood, C. 12s 6d 745

1 Symbolism 2 Design, Decorative 35-4066

"A handbook on the application of symbols and symbolism to design." Subtitle

"After an introductory chapter on the philosophical meaning and the aesthetic aspects of symbolism [the author] proceeds to his dictionary of symbols arranged in alphabetical order. He gives the history of each symbol, an account of its use in the past, and advice for its use in the present. The symbols are of all kinds—religious and secular. [He does not] concern himself with the psycho-analytic interpretation and use of symbolism, and he is chiefly occupied with the conscious meaning of symbols. There are fifteen plates and a larger number of illustrations in the text." Times (London) lit. sup.

Alphabet 2. Special applications

Books containing material on various hobbies and amusements not limited to handicrafts, e.g. those with chapters on stamp-collecting, photography, fishing, etc., are classed in 790. Practical handicrafts are in class 680

"Navaho weaving; its technic and history" by C. A. Amsden (1934 Fine arts press $7.50) is an attractive book on all phases of this subject. The illustrations are pictures not only of good examples of the work but of old authentically dated specimens

"Romance of the patchwork quilt in America" by Mrs C. A. Hall, and Mrs R. G. Kretsinger (3 pts in 1 1935 Caxton printers $5) is a history of the art illustrated with photographic reproductions of 700 patches and quilt designs. Name of designs are given and sometimes the colors in which an historic example was made

Bruce, Marjory

* Book of craftsmen. 1936 Dodd $2.75; Harrap 7s 6d 745

1 Art industries and trade—History W37-7

"Some of the crafts of ancient Egypt, Greece, and Rome, of the Orient, and of medieval Europe are vividly described. Pottery, metalwork, wood carving, sculpture, weaving, and even the hatter's and baker's contributions are included." Bkl.

"The most striking feature of this popular history of handicrafts is the beauty not only of its pictures but of their reproduction. . . This is an English importation, one of those accompaniments to a school course that the English apparently support more steadily than they do books for young people to read out of school, for works like this would not be made so elaborately if they were not sure of a continuing public." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Hunt, Antony

Textile design. ("How to do it" ser.) 1937 Studio $3.50; 7s 6d 745

1 Textile design 2 Textile industry and fabrics 38-1291

"Written for artists who hope to become members of a permanent designing staff in a manufacturer's studio. It provides them with some of the more inaccessible technicalities of textile production, which are essential to the intelligent designing of fabrics." Cincinnati

1 Expressionism (Art) 35-725

An analysis of modern art, mostly painting but some material on sculpture, architecture and the theater. Illustrations in black and white are well-chosen

"A helpful interpretation of twentieth-century experimentalism. . . Any book on expressionism designed for the layman requires particular care in illustration. The numerous examples here given, especially from the ancestors of the movement, do much to make the book serviceable to art in general." Sat. rev. of lit.

Lewisohn, Sam Adolph

Painters and personality; a collector's view of modern art. 1937 Harper $3.75

1 Art—History 2 Painters 3 Painting—History 37-34611

"The author, an amateur art collector, stresses the point that in the creation of significant art the personality of the artist is the decisive factor. He uses the painters of the Impressionist group to illustrate his point, with briefer notes on living painters. Fully illustrated, with brief biographical sketches of his leading painters." Wis. bul.

"Mr Lewisohn writes well. He is never at a loss to explain his meaning and he expresses it in language which few readers will find over their heads—and which fewer still will not find intelligent and stimulating." Springfield Republican do with the America he discovered when he turned his back on Europe and the east and set out to get acquainted with his native land. Before this come his boyhood in Missouri, art student days in Chicago, New York and Paris, and the steps by which he arrived at an art which is both his own and American. The book is made up of two lectures delivered in connection with the exhibition of British art at Burlington House in January, 1934. The author gives his opinions of the paintings of Lely, Hogarth, Wilson, Reynolds, Gainsborough, Morland, Blake, Lawrence, Wilkie, Bonington, Crome, Turner, Constable and others

"Mr Fry contrives to write of English painting almost as though it were a newly discovered art, as if Gainsborough and Reynolds were some curious primitives whose works had never been properly examined before. . . But his opinions about particular painters are never dulled by old disputes; on the contrary, they emerge with singular freshness." Times (London) lit. sup.

Contains 60 photographic reproductions of Rivera murals, and an explanatory text by Bertram W. Wolfe

"The content of Rivera's art is not directed toward representation as such, but toward the liberation of the working classes and the formation of a world Communist state. The purpose of his art is to promote an ideal, not to present the phenomena of life. . . For such reasons, Rivera's paintings cannot be regarded as a realistic portrait of America. At home the Mexican was an artist in every sense of the word; in the United States he has sold his talents to an international theory. But in the process he has done more than that: he has made art a living issue and has brought it forcefully before the public." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

A selection from notes written during 32 years

Hale, Philip—Continued

"Mr. Hale's . . . admirers might justly ask for a little larger proportion of his most characteristic output, which is not technical analysis, something the conservatory student or the dry-as-dust pedant can do after a fashion. But there is enough here to give much satisfaction and enjoyment, provocation to thought if not to antagonism, stimulation that radiated from Mr. Hale as he lived. Mr. Gilman's introduction is the warmly appreciative tribute of a colleague." N.Y. Times

Also available from Garden City pub. co. for $1.59

Written to answer some of the many questions sent in by radio listeners. The last 160 pages contain (1) Story of music in outline form (to 1900) and (2) Biographical sketches of composers and interpretations of their principal works. Index

"All this variety of information is conveyed in a highly informal and evidently intentionally unsystematic way, interestingly and in a manner that will strain the attention of no radio listener, but will stimulate it. And the lack of system is well made up for by a very copious index that will put every anxious inquirer on the right track at once." N.Y. Times

Lambert, Constant

Music ho! a study of music in decline.

1934 Scribner $3.75; Faber 10s 6d

1 Music—History and criticism 2 Music—Philosophy and esthetics 34-17981

"The theme of the book is modern music in relation to the other arts and in relation to the social and mechanical background of modern life. It is a study of movements rather than musicians and individual works are cited not so much on their own account as for being examples of a particular tendency." Preface

"At a few points Constant Lambert may be writing for the sake of saying something, possibly under the influence of Wyndham Lewis, possibly from youthful exuberance, but as a whole there is surprisingly little in his pages that is artificial, pretentious or willfully clever. His discussion of contemporary trends in music—and, to some extent in other arts as well—reveals clarifying insight." Springfield Republican

Masters of Russian music. 1936 Knopf $3.75; Duckworth 18s

1 Musicians 2 Music—Russia 36-16983

Biographical sketches of Russian composers up to about 1917. Contents: Glinka; Dargomyzsky; Serof; Balakiref; Cui; Borodin; Mussorgsky; Tchaikovsky; Rimsky-Korsakov; Liadof; Glazunof; Liapunof; Taneief; Scriabin

"The authors have had access to much new material, especially in the case of Mussorgsky; this, combined with a profound knowledge of the subject in general, and a lively style of writing . . . makes this book invaluable to those interested primarily in the composers themselves, since musical criticism in the more special sense has been excluded from the book." - * Twentieth century composers. 1937
 Crowell $3 780.92

1 Music—History and criticism 2 Musicians 37-18276

The following composers are treated: Stravinsky; Strauss; Elgar; Ravel; Prokofiev; Falla; Loeffler; Bartók; Bloch; Delius; Hindemith; Schönberg; Malipiero; Harris; Williams; Gershwin

"The lack of collected information about modern musicians makes this group of biographies a valuable reference book as well as an interesting one. The seventeen composers sketched have been chosen to present a cross-section of contemporary music; and, with a few exceptions, works about them have hitherto been somewhat scanty. Mr Ewen adds to the facts already known much material gleaned from personal interviews, and a certain amount of critical appraisal." Boston

"New interpretation . . . based upon over a thousand hitherto unpublished letters written by him or addressed to him, and upon original manuscripts and printed copies of his compositions with his own corrections and alterations. The author is the custodian of the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde in Vienna. Bibliography." Book rev. digest

"Much of the new material is of rare value, for it throws light on aspects of the composer's life that have been treated cursorily by previous biographers. The correspondence includes letters from many of the most famous contemporaries of Brahms whom he counted among his friends, and there are a few kindly messages even from people whose admiration for him has hitherto been doubted. . . . 1 Agout, Marie Catherine Sophie (de Flavigny) comtesse d' 35-3453

A psychological study of Liszt the man, not the musician. The author "is thoroughly opposed to 'thesis' biography; yet he himself works this to the exclusion of other matters, such as Liszt's music and his friendships with the great men of his time. But it must be borne in mind that he intended to write only about Liszt the man and to correct the false impression left by earlier biographers. Recollections, told to Oskar von Riesemann; tr. by Mrs Dolly Rutherford. 1934 Macmillan $3.50; Allen, G. 10s 6d 780.92

Interesting biography of Rachmaninoff as told to Oskar von Riesemann. The last chapter is by Von Riesemann on Rachmaninoff as composer. A list of his works is included.

"Here is an authoritative and fascinating account of a great artist. Sergei Rachmaninov, in a delightfully reminiscent mood, recreates the glamorous atmosphere of the musical life of Moscow towards the end of the nineteenth century. . . Herr von Riesemann has fulfilled the requirements of his task in a commendable fashion. The result is a genuine contribution to contemporary biography." America

"Altho he lived until 1925, the name of Jean de Reszke will stir memories only in the group of older opera goers who remember back to the last century, for he retired from the stage in 1902. For these readers, and for others too late to have known his glamor, Miss Leiser, after painstaking research and study, interviews and correspondence with family and friends, has recreated the lives of the two brothers, Jean and Edouard, and the musical background of the times in which they lived." Stravinsky: an autobiography. 1936 Simon & Schuster $3; Gollancz 8s 6d 780.92

Published in England under title: Chronicle of my life

"A clear, sober account of Stravinsky's purely musical career. Despite the dry intellectualism in which it is steeped, it is remarkably interesting, not alone for its revelation of Stravinsky's classic attitude toward his profession, but for its pictures of Ansermet, Diaghilev, Toscanini, Coccau, Nijinsky, and other artists. Required reading for anyone seriously concerned with modern music." New Yorker

"A parallel account of the lives and personalities of the two collaborators who, though so dissimilar in character and nature, yet contrived to give to English music the famous Savoy operas which bear their names." Coventry. Public libraries

"It is impossible to write a dull book about Gilbert and/or Sullivan, and Mr. Pearson's book is one of the most readable that have been inspired by the Savoy partnership. Much of it, of course, will be familiar to those who have read even casually, about Gilbert and Sullivan; the familiar material, however, is worth reading again, and besides this, Mr. Pearson is original enough in his presentation to justify his book." A brief factual account of Toscanini's long career as a conductor in Europe and America

"There is little in Toscanini's outward career to inspire rhapsody. He has been a singularly modest and retiring man. And Mr. Stefan recognizes the difficulty of conveying in words the extraordinary effect his musical performances produce. Nevertheless he has performed his labor of love with discretion as well as devotion. The interest of his book is enhanced by many photographs of the conductor in action." Christian science monitor

Handbook of fist puppets; il. by J.
Brown. 1935 Stokes $2 791.5

1 Puppet plays 35-4894

"This manual contrasts and compares fist puppets and marionettes, and discusses fist puppets historically and practically. The author tells how to make the puppets of wood, sawdust, papier-mâché, cement, paper and paste; how to devise costumes, scenery, theaters; how to act simple puppet scenes; and how to produce more complicated plays. There are three plays for fist puppets, and a bibliography. Illustrated. No index." Book rev. digest

"This is by no means the first book on the subject offered to young people; it must stand comparison with books intended for experts, as its audience will not be confined to children. It will stand its ground because it goes into its subject more thoroughly than beginners' books and is yet simple enough to start a beginner, also the direct and conversational style allures and leads the way." 1 Theater 36-36588

"Those who like to read plays or read about plays will perhaps get more enjoyment from these chapters than the confirmed theater-goer will. The theatre in and out of print, The will to make believe, The unrealities of realism, are chapters that will add much to the pleasures of drama as read and studied. Other chapters, notably Where technique matters and The dramatist's ear, should be called to the attention of amateur playwrights." Wis. bul.

"This collection of dramatic criticisms begins with a prologue written by John Singleton and delivered in 1752 at the theater in Williamsburg, Virginia. The first real criticism is a note from a New York paper of 1787 on Jane Shore. Nearly half the book is devoted to criticisms written since 1900, including articles by Stark Young, George Jean Nathan, O. W. Firkins, Alexander Woolcott, and others. The book contains biographical sketches (1) of certain notable playwrights, producers, and actors, and (2) of the critics." Book rev. digest

1 Literature, Modern—History and criticism 2 Literature and morals 3 Originality 4 Religion in literature 34-10404

"In these three lectures delivered at the University of Virginia, Mr Eliot explains his conception of the meaning of tradition as applied to modern English literature. He considers the crippling effect upon men of letters, of not having been brought up in the 'environment of a central and living tradition' and the positive effect of heresy and of diabolic influence." 809 LITERATURE—HISTORY AND CRITICISMAlexander, Calvert

Catholic literary revival. (Science and culture ser.) 1935 Bruce pub. $2.50 809

1 Catholic literature—History and criticism 2 Catholic authors 35-7693

A presentation of the development of Catholic literature from the middle of the nineteenth century to the present. The author divides this period into three phases, each conforming to the world-movements about it, and discusses the writers who distinguished themselves with each period. Special attention is given to the Catholic writers who came into prominence after the "World war

"Written in an attractive informal style that occasionally becomes epigrammatic, it is soundly critical, contains an immense amount of information and displays a vast reading done with the utmost discernment. It is, in short, refreshing proof that Catholic culture even in America has at last escaped the domination of Puritan ideas. It is a book that every literate Catholic should read." Catholic world

(ed.) Early Negro American writers. 1935 Univ. of N.C. press $2.50; Oxford 11s 6d 810.8

1 Negro authors 2 Negro literature 35-7296

A book of selections from the writings of American Negroes from Jupiter Hammon, who was born between 1720 and 1730, to approximately Civil War times. Includes biographical sketches. "This book originated in a desire to render more accessible for the student or general reader some productions in the literature of the Negro in America that were to be found only in special collections." Preface

"Far more than a mere anthology. With excellent selective judgment and significant comment Professor Brawley presents . . . a collection of profound human and sociological interest." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

1 American literature — Collections. 2 Proletariat 35-27432

"The economic crisis of the past five years has brought about remarkable progress in the fields of proletarian drama, fiction, poetry, report, and criticism in America. This anthology contains a representative group of such works, dealing with the personal conflicts and experiences of the proletariat. Strikes, hunger, revolutionary meetings, factory life, lynchings, etc.—all have their place in the selection. Erskine Caldwell, John Dos Passos, Michael Gold, Horace Gregory, Genevieve Taggard, Alfred Kreymborg, and Granville Hicks are among the better-known contributors." Boston

"The collection has the defects of a first attempt, and the solid virtue of putting into one book a number of representative selections. It has one serious blemish: the biographical identification of authors is much too brief." Sat. rev. of lit.

"An anthology of clever prose and poetry selected from the old 'Smart Set' magazine. Historically interesting, containing such writings as the first of 'Jurgens,' an early play by Conrad and the story by Maugham which became 'Pain,' as well as a poem by Eleanor Wylie not available elsewhere in book form. For larger libraries." Wis. bul.

"The anthology is not only a tempting gateway to modern American literature but also an amusing book to read. Even without many contributions which have since taken their place in other books by their writers, and even without anything from the lion voice of Mencken, the anthology is still a kind of sub-treasury of the national riches." Boynton, Percy Holmes

Literature and American life; for students of American literature. 1936 Ginn $4 810.9

1 American literature—History and criticism 2 U.S.—Intellectual life 36-10024

A college textbook giving a critical and historical account of American literature from colonial times to the present. Book lists at ends of chapters. "Facts about authors" in condensed form in appendix. Index

"A textbook which makes plain and fascinating the relationship between American life and the literature which it produced, and the resultant life influenced by that literature. Although it is a textbook it reads like an essay—of immense length but of unflinching interest." Chicago Daily Tribune

Brawley, Benjamin Griffith

Negro genius. 1937 Dodd $2.50 810.9

1 Negro authors 2 Negro artists 3 Negro musicians 4 Negro literature—History and criticism 5 Negroes in literature and art 37-4124

An appraisal of Negroes who have become prominent in literature, music, and the fine arts, done in a brisk style with balance and proportion. The present work represents a complete reorganization of the material of the earlier book, "The negro in literature and art" which is included in the main catalog

Brooks, Van Wyck

* Flowering of New England, 1815-1865.
1936 Dutton $4; Dent 15s 810.9

- 1 American literature—New England
2 American literature—History and criticism
3 New England—Civilization 36-27376

"Van Wyck Brooks has fused into a glowing narrative, not only the atmosphere of the period but also charming, mellow and authentic portraits of the leading figures from Ticknor, Prescott, Hawthorne, Emerson, on through Lowell, Motley and Holmes. There are brilliant summaries of each one's work; and there are delightful recreations of groups gathered in clubs or at Brooks Farm, and of friendly talk on a walking trip. . . First of a number of volumes planned to sketch the literary history of the United States. Index." N.Y. libraries

"Nobody can read his book without excitedly hoping that [the author] will have all the strength and encouragement he may need for the completion of his work. For if he continues and finishes it on the same scale as this, and with the same knowledge, range, insight, precision and grace, he will have written, not only the best history of American literature, but one of the best literary histories in any language." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Three essays on America. 1934 Dutton $3 810.9

- 1 American literature—History and criticism
2 U.S.—Intellectual life
3 National characteristics, American 34-14327

Three books of essays "America's coming of age," first published 1915, "Letters and leadership," 1918, and "The literary life in America," 1921, and later as part of "Emerson and others" which is included in the main catalog

"While naturally certain evaluations are less pertinent, certain criticisms less apropos now than they were then, it is surprising to see how well the comments on men and movements still fit the case." Boston Transcript

Cowley, Malcolm

(ed.) After the genteel tradition; American writers since 1910. 1937 Norton $2.75 810.9

- 1 American fiction—History and criticism
2 American literature—History and criticism 37-27387

"Fourteen searching literary reappraisals, largely by the younger reviewers, given a certain unity by Mr. Cowley's foreword and postscript. Not a dull piece of writing in the lot, but one might especially commend Robert Cantwell on Upton Sinclair, Lionel Trilling on Willa Cather, Louis Kronenberger on H. L. Mencken, and John Peale Bishop on Ernest Hemingway." New Yorker

Halleck, Reuben Post

Romance of American literature. 1934 Am. bk. $1.40 810.9

- 1 American literature—History and criticism 34-14695

Replaces the author's "History of American literature," published in 1911, but is so much enlarged, rewritten and rearranged as to be virtually a new book. References, suggested readings and questions at the end of each chapter

"High school teachers will find this an intelligent and well-balanced introduction to the study of American literature. Librarians will be able to use it for ready reference to both early and 20th century authors." Wis. bul.

Loggins, Vernon

I hear America . . . literature in the United States since 1900. 1937 Crowell $2.50 810.9

- 1 American literature—History and criticism
2 Authors, American 37-30711

"The style is anecdotal and rather choppy, with its mixture of biographical matter, digests of the most characteristic written work of each author, and some critical comment on that work." Boston Transcript

Luccock, Halford Edward

Contemporary American literature and religion. 1934 Willett $2 810.9

- 1 American literature—History and criticism
2 Religion in literature
3 Social problems in literature
4 Realism in literature
5 U.S.—Religion 34-6270

A professor in Yale Divinity School discusses American literature since the war, as a reflection of the life of the times. Contents: Morning after an earthquake; Religion in a deflated world; Post-war realism; American picture album; Realism in account with religion; Disillusionment and futility; Soundings; War literature; Social discontent and protest; Trends in criticism; The search for God

"A valuable, arresting and richly documented book. . . Dr. Luccock's book may be read with profit and pleasure by any one who is at all interested in contemporary American writing, for it shows an unusually wide acquaintance with this literature and contains many shrewd and sound critical judgments." Odell Shepard in N.Y. Times

Pattee, Fred Lewis

First century of American literature, 1770-1870. 1935 Appleton-Century $3.50; 12s 6d 810.9

- 1 American literature—History and criticism 35-8357

With the author's two previous books, "American literature since 1870" and "The new American literature," both entered in the main catalog, this completes a comprehensive history of the subject. Contents: Closing eighteenth century; Rise of romanticism; Mid-century renaissance

"In this volume the author has done a needed work, illuminating many an obscure page with a fresh light, while the soundness of his judgment is impressive. . . What he has to say on the subject of American literature commands respect and awakens enthusiasm." N.Y. Times

Van Doren, Carl Clinton

What is American literature? 1935 Morrow $1 810.9

- 1 American literature—History and criticism 35-3194

An attractive and very brief survey of American literature from colonial times to the present, which selects only the authors whose work promises to be lasting. The book is a revision and enlargement of the author's "American literature: an introduction" published in 1933. The last two chapters form the epilogue of "Modern American prose" edited by this author, class 810.8

Adams, Franklin Pierce

Melancholy lute. 1936 Viking press $2.50
811
36-24650

F. P. A.'s own selections from his verse of the last thirty years which appeared in his column The Conning Tower in the New York Herald Tribune

"The book is filled with beautifully turned trifles which on examination turn out not to be so trifling. This reviewer commonly reviews books of philosophy. He has herein been reviewing one, sounder and more genial than many." Irwin Edman in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Aiken, Conrad Potter

Time in the rock. 1936 Scribner $2.50;
10s 6d 811

36-25867

"If he is too much a ghost talking with endless subtlety in a void, Mr. Aiken has once again translated abstract thinking into poetry that is peculiarly and at times absorbingly his own." Times (London) lit. sup.

Auslander, Joseph

No traveller returns; a book of poems.
1935 Harper $2.50 811

35-27229

"Intensely graphic poems of the modern world. . . All the poems are not at the same level. There are occasional lapses . . . But this is a lavish book, and one can choose in it. In general it may be said that the work, in its richness and variety, stands with the best work of our time." W. R. Benét in Sat. rev. of lit.

Benét, Stephen Vincent

Burning city; new poems. 1936 Farrar
$2; Heinemann 5s 811

36-12208

"The city is New York, destroyed not by fire but by the slower burning of decay, several of the poems assuming the past tense and looking back on a city that was. 'Notes to be left in a cornerstone,' written in this vein, and 'Ode to Walt Whitman,' are the best." Wis. bul.

Benét, William Rose

Starry harness. 1933 Dodd $2 811

33-33490

A collection of short poems most of them lyrics and many with a mystical quality. "If you wish to see America, with its high ideals and its lapses, interpreted by a poet who understands his art read 'Starry Harness.'" N.Y. Times

The author's "Rip tide" (Dodd $2) is a love story in verse. First published 1932 by Duffield

Bogan, Louise

Sleeping fury; poems. 1937 Scribner $2.50

37-4187

"Louise Bogan's poems have a delicacy that is rare in modern poetry. Her flexible rhythms have alternatively a conciseness and a run that can be beautifully adapted to the purpose of the poem she is writing, and her only lapses seem to be connected with what she fails to do. . . Although she is occasionally bitter in her views, she can also give the impression of being a detached observer who could say more but would rather not, and when she writes of a profound personal experience she remains a realist who is more reticent than impassioned." Yale review

Bynner, Witter

Selected poems. 1936 Knopf $2.50 811

36-28575

"Poems chosen by Robert Hunt, from ten books and thirty years of Mr. Bynner's work, with an extremely serious preface by Paul Horgan." New Yorker

Coffin, Robert Peter Tristram

Saltwater farm. 1937 Macmillan $1.90
811

37-2958

Woodcuts by J. J. Lankes

"Maine breathes and pulsates through every line he writes. Mr. Coffin's style might be called crystal in that he is one of the most lucid of present-day poets. However, though he speaks simply it is not without the aid of mind and heart. . . His subject matter, seen at least through his eyes, is always fresh and invigorating, but the constant repetition of the couplet at times tends toward monotony." Christian science monitor

Strange holiness. 1935 Macmillan $1.75;

35-5022

"The poems in this book are in the main filled with an understanding of country people and country customs. Many of the poems have been previously published in magazines." Book rev. digest

"It is this poet's charm that he can capture the moment of fleeting beauty in nature and life and give it, with its setting and its significance, to the reader of his verse." N.Y. libraries

Daly, Thomas Augustine

Selected poems; with an introductory letter by Christopher Morley. 1936

Eliot, Thomas Stearns

Collected poems, 1909-1935. 1936 Harcourt $2.50; Faber 7s 6d 811

36-12053

Contains all of the author's poems published from 1909 to 1935 and several poems not previously published

"Collected Poems is a valuable and fascinating book because it gives a bird's-eye view of Mr. Eliot's poetic progress, from his early, brilliant but derivative excursions right up to the present day. It is particularly interesting, for example, to see the admirable choruses of 'The Rock' divorced from their somewhat less stimulating context, and to be able to trace Mr. Eliot's link with the main tradition of English devotional verse." New statesman and Nation

Engle, Paul

American song; a book of poems. 1934
Doubleday $1.75; Cape, J. 5s 811

34-27209

"His long, swinging rhythms, somewhat reminiscent of Whitman, have vigor and often beauty, and certain isolated poems—such as America Remembers—are admirable. Mr. Engle is immature, but his work has tang and substance and will be popular." Forum

"Both on the ground of its own distinguished quality and for its significance as an indicator of changing mood and temper among creative writers of the youngest generation, it merits the widest possible attention." N.Y. Times

Field, Rachel Lyman

Fear is the thorn. 1936 Macmillan $1.35;
5s 811

36-27172

"Minor verse, but of a charming personal quality which calls forth a response from the reader. Rachel Field's roots are in Maine, and her metaphor and simile are drawn, very often, from the sea or her Maine environment." N.Y. Libraries

Frost, Robert

* Further range. 1936 Holt $2.50; Cape,
J. 6s 811

36-10857

"The easy swing of line and rhyme, the turn of speech that is as tangy as a McIntosh apple, the quick recognition of beauty down a dirt road—they are all to be found in this volume. . . . 'A Further Range' will prove a satisfying and heart-warming delight." Springfield Republican

The author's "From snow to snow" (1936 Holt 75c) contains twelve poems one for each month of the year. Almost all are chosen from work previously published

Guiterman, Arthur

Death and General Putnam, and 101 other poems. 1935 Dutton $2 811

35-13487

"Verses characterized by patriotism and love of nature. Some are ironic. A few have appeared in earlier collections and in periodicals." Bkl.

"Though Mr. Guiterman reveals his finest technical accomplishment in lightly humorous verse, he often treats serious subjects with freshness and individuality. Some of his verse perhaps deserves no higher rating than topical or popular. But even if he sometimes gives the impression of hunting for themes, he has the feeling and the command of phrase to bestow on many of them at least a fleeting poignance and charm, with a suggestion of something deep and true below the surface." Springfield Republican

Hill, Frank Ernest

Westward star. 1934 Day $2.50 811

1 *Overland journeys to the Pacific—
Poetry* 34-33648

"A novel in verse telling a tale of the westward journey of a group of Americans in 1847. The main thread of the story is the romance of Celeste, a girl with Puritan upbringing, and Emmet, a trader of the plains." Book rev. digest

"Presents a stirring picture of courage and hardship, and its theme is obviously one of inexhaustible interest for the people of this country." N.Y. Post

Hillyer, Robert Silliman

Collected verse. 1933 Knopf $2 811

33-30817

"Over 100 lyrics, ballads and sonnets, which have appeared in magazines and in the poet's previously published volumes, showing a finished workmanship, untouched by modern influences, and a sensitive awareness of the beauties of nature. Winner of Pulitzer prize for poetry in 1934." N.Y. Libraries

Jeffers, Robinson

Solstice and other poems. 1935 Random house $2.50 811

35-22372

Contains a poetic drama based on the Nibelungenlied; Solstice, a long poem adapted from the story of Medea; and 13 short poems

"Jeffers will never get away from the rock and the hawk and the cruel trap of life and the uncaring face of nature. His themes have become rather redundant. But he is wielding some of the grandest language of our time. He seems to have little flexibility in his temperament but his stoicism is impressive." Sat. rev. of lit.

"Such counsels you gave to me & other poems" (1937 Random house $2.50) is a later book by this author

MacLeish, Archibald

Public speech, poems. 1936 Farrar $1;
Boriswood 3s 6d 811

36-27181

"This new volume of poems contains ten short pieces, chiefly upon current political and social problems, and a sequence of ten more poems addressed to The Woman on the Stair." Book rev. digest

"These poems are bare and direct; as with most good aphoristic verse their merit consists in eloquence, a grave wit, and the rush of passionate sincerity. . . . The love poems that compose the second half of this volume contain some of his finest imagery." Nation

Masters, Edgar Lee

Invisible landscapes. 1935 Macmillan $2;
8s 6d 811

35-18102

Narrative and descriptive poems of various aspects of nature. Some have previously appeared in periodicals

"The best pieces in this book have a lyrical quality which he has achieved hitherto in only a few scattered lines, and even those passages which are not designed to sing manifest a grace and sureness of diction whose absence has marred much of his previous work. . . . Along with the late flowering of the lyrical gift, and perhaps in part as its cause, these poems breathe a serenity of mind." Nation

Millay, Edna St. Vincent

* Conversation at midnight. 1937 Harper
$2; Hamilton, H. 6s 811

37-16334

"Seven men meet at the New York house of a liberal, agnostic descendant of an Italian petty nobleman and an American woman. The seven are a priest, an artist, a writer of advertising copy, a Communist poet, a rich broker, a liberal dilettante, and a magazine writer, and their after-dinner talk provides the subject of this semi-play in different kinds of verse. During the course of the evening they talk of religion, hunting, romantic love, the Supreme court, war, music, poetry, and many other more or less related topics." Book rev. digest

"Not Miss Millay at her best, but shot through with irony and wit, and occasionally, with broad humor." Wis. bul.

- * Wine from these grapes. 1934 Harper $2;
Hamilton, H. 5s 811

34-37456

Contains new lyrics and a sonnet sequence in the Petrarchian tradition entitled: Epitaph for the race of man

"Wine From These Grapes" shows the same distinguished workmanship which has characterized Miss Millay's poetry from the very first; and there is, as always, the same unerring instinct for the poetical, the same unflinching grasp of the poetic approach to an idea as differentiated from what might be termed the prose approach. On the other hand, one misses somewhat this poet's earlier lightness of touch, that magic lyric deftness. . . Of recent years the work of this poet has become increasingly grave." N.Y. Times

For criticism of her works see "Edna St Vincent Millay and her times" by E. M. Atkins classed in 92

Moore, Marianne

- Selected poems. 1935 Macmillan $2;
Faber 7s 6d 811

35-5389

Contains the author's selection of all she is willing to reprint from "Observations" published in 1924, and poems written since that date

"Miss Moore observes minutely and intently with the eye, and with the mind precisely and pragmatically sets down her observations. Her poems are made up of brightly colored images with meaningful and often moral connections. . . The effect she produces is always positive and exhilarating." N.Y. Times

Nathan, Robert

- Selected poems. 1935 Knopf $2; Constable 5s 811

35-29608

"Those who know Robert Nathan only as a novelist should acquaint themselves with the truly lyric singer who is heard in these thirty-six short poems." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"Such finished writing as this poet's may, because of its very refinement and workmanship, be with us for some time before its power is generally felt, but it will endure. It will endure because it has the essence of poetry, because above and beyond its musical expression it possesses a spiritual quality characteristic of the ancient literature of Judaism." Christian science monitor

Neihardt, John Gneisenau

- Song of the Messiah. 1935 Macmillan
$1.50; 6s 6d 811

35-22369

"In the author's Cycle of the West the present book is the fifth and final volume. Volume four has not yet been published. . . This poem is based on the last phase of the Indian resistance and contains the story of the belief in a Messiah, whom the Indians hoped would come to rescue the red man." Book rev. digest

"This is a great chapter in the history of our plains Indians. It is full of tragic drama. And Mr. Neihardt's muscular narrative verse is an excellent vehicle for telling the story." Sat. rev. of lit.

Parker, Mrs Dorothy (Rothschild)

- * Not so deep as a well. (1936 Viking press
$2.50; Hamilton, H. 6s 811

37-818

The collected poems of Dorothy Parker, decorated by Valenti Angelo

Contains the poems which appeared in the author's former volumes: "Enough rope," "Sunset gun," and "Death and taxes," all included in the main catalog, together with several new verses not hitherto published in book form

Ridge, Lola

- Dance of fire. 1935 Smith, H. $2 811

35-5986

"Some readers will prefer the many well-turned sonnets, the personal lyrics, in this collection. Many of these have strange and very beautiful lines. . . Those poems in which Miss Ridge's subject matter is taken from the modern scene, in which the interpretation is so rightly her own, are better than the somewhat more personal, more vague, more mystic sonnets—though many of the latter are deeply moving and admirable." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Robinson, Edwin Arlington

- * Collected poems. 1937 Macmillan $3
811

New edition of a work published in 1929 and entered in the main catalog. Recent short poems and the later long narrative poems have been added. These include "Glory of the nightingales," "Nicodemus," "Talifer," "Amaranth," "Matthias at the door" and "King Jasper"

Sandburg, Carl

- The people, yes. 1936 Harcourt $2.50
811

36-27367

"The longest and most sustained piece of work the author has yet done in verse. It is a book that will irritate some; and some will find it meaningless. . . It is as honest as it is questioning and it speaks its deep convictions in a tongue we know." S. V. Benét in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Stuart, Jesse

- Man with a bull-tongue plow. 1934 Dutton $3 811

34-34715

"A volume containing more than seven hundred sonnets by a young Kentucky farmer. Many of the poems are autobiographical; others sing the writer's love of his hillside farm; and others, suggesting the manner of the Spoon River Anthology, portray friends and neighbors." Book rev. digest

"At least half the time the author is careless, trite or perfunctory; but always he is speaking in his own words about his own people. . . At their best, his poems have the springtime freshness of medieval ballads. Their worst fault is that they are written without effort or economy." New republic

Untermeyer, Louis

- Selected poems and parodies. 1935 Harcourt $3 811

35-16449

The author's own selection from books of his poems published 1910-1932. Arrangement is chronological and some new poems have been added

"Louis Untermeyer's . . . wisdom, his technical skill and his lyric sense are not small . . . and the choice he has made from his own works has been done with the same unerring instinct for the best which marks his anthologies of modern British and American poetry. . . There is a great deal of chuckling pleasure in the last 140 pages of this volume, and the reader who has it at hand to mull over at his leisure will have reason to be long grateful to Louis Untermeyer, anthologist and parodist par excellence." Springfield Republican

Van Doren, Mark

Winter diary, and other poems. 1935
Macmillan $1.90 811

35-27026

"A winter diary" is a long poem in heroic couplets on the daily round of a sojourn in the country. It is followed by a sequence of thirty-two love sonnets and a collection of lyrics

"Whether you prefer his kind of poetry or another kind, the necessity is upon you to admit that after its kind this work is not only native and genuine but the work of an artist." W. R. Benét in Sat. rev. of lit.

Zaturenska, Marya Alexandrovna

Cold morning sky. 1937 Macmillan $1.50
811

Lyric poems which abound in symbolism. Awarded the Pulitzer prize, 1938

"I believe I detect in Miss Zaturenska's work an effort to deliver poetry from the rhetoric of post-war poets. . . She boasts an enviable musical sense, a superb judgment of phrase, a deft presentment of symbols, and a surging but undercurrent energy. She has grown more enterprising metrically and more in tone, since her first book." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

35-27431

"A play presumably based in part on the Sacco-Vanzetti case. The chief characters are the son of a man executed for a crime he did not commit; the judge who tried the case; an old Jew; and the latter's son and daughter who play a part in the son's attempt to vindicate his father. The play is written in poetic prose." Book rev. digest
"An effective combination of poetry and melodrama which results in a moving tragedy of the underworld." Cleveland

Two other popular plays by this author are: "Wingless victory" (1936 Anderson house $2.50) a tragedy on the theme of a New England sea captain who brings home a Malay wife; and "The masque of kings" (1936 Dodd $2.50) a play in verse about Rudolph crown prince of Austria who died in a hunting lodge in Mayerling in 1889

Eliot, Thomas Stearns

Murder in the cathedral. 1935 Harcourt
$1.25; Faber 5s 812

1 Thomas a Becket, Saint, abp. of Canterbury—Drama A35-1776

"A series of episodes dealing with the last few weeks of the life of Thomas a Becket and ending with his murder. The episodes are linked by a chorus of Women of Canterbury. The play was written for publication at the Canterbury Festival, June, 1935." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Eliot has admirably brought to maturity his long experimenting for a dramatic style, the chief merit of which lies in his writing for a chorus." Times (London) lit. sup.

Green, Paul

Johnny Johnson; the biography of a common man in three acts; music by Kurt Weill. 1937 French $2 812

37-4175

"The hero is a sort of fool of God, an innocent young man who finally gets into the Great War because he believes it to be really a war to end war, and then baffles everyone from the drill sergeant into whose hands he falls first to the high command itself because he is too simple and too good to be understood by any person even normally complex or normally corrupt. Finally, he is sent to a hospital for mental cases." Nation

"Johnny Johnson has originality, emotion, imagination and has timed itself to the modern rhythm." Catholic world

Hart, Moss, and Kaufman, George S.

You can't take it with you. 1937 Farrar
$2 812

37-1749

The Pulitzer prize play for 1936

"The living room of the unconventional Sycamores is a haven for hobbies. Its presiding genius, comfortable Grandpa Vanderhof, collects snakes and attends Columbia commencement exercises for amusement; his daughter Penny writes plays because eight years ago somebody delivered a typewriter there by mistake; son-in-law, assisted by the ex-iceman, manufactures fire-crackers down cellar; one granddaughter married a xylophone player and practices ballet dancing when she isn't making candy to sell for a living. The one and only normal Sycamore, Alice, is a stenographer, and in love with her boss' son, Tony. The climax of the play comes when Tony's socialite parents are invited to the Sycamores' for dinner—and arrive on the wrong night." Book rev. digest

"The whole thing is pervaded by a humanity, an amiability, and a gaiety wholly delightful." Nation

Footlights up! practical plays for boys and girls. 1935 Harper $1.75 812

1 Children's plays 35-4395

Six plays which have been produced in junior high schools in New York City, and are designed especially for boys and girls from twelve to sixteen. Directions for staging, lighting and costuming are included. No royalty is required for presentation. Contents: Cap-o'-rushes; Treasure of Cardona; Dick Whittington; Birdcage-maker; Man without a country; Three citrons. Bibliography

"The editing of the plays themselves, the illustrations and analysis of the settings, and the directions for staging and costumes will prove valuable to the teacher who knows the difficulty of organizing and preparing a play for production. Busy teachers are not always good directors, and Footlights Up! eases their task as much as any book can." Theatre arts monthly

Howard, Sidney Coe

* Sinclair Lewis's Dodsworth. 1934 Harcourt $2.50 812

34-27270

"Sidney Howard's dramatized version of Sinclair Lewis' novel. There is an introduction by Mr. Howard in which he tells how Dodsworth came to be dramatized and Mr. Lewis has contributed a discussion of The Art of Dramatization in which he quotes chapters from the novel and compares them with the scenes of the play which interpret them." Wis. bul.

"Sidney Howard has done an extraordinarily expert job in dramatizing Sinclair Lewis's novel, 'Dodsworth.' He has avoided nearly all the pitfalls which surround the adapter of a novel to stage purposes and has managed in a series of brief and pungent scenes to catch the essentials of character and to reveal them in a dialogue of masterful brevity." Commonweal

Howard, Sidney Coe, and De Kruif, Paul Henry

* Yellow jack; a history. 1933 Harcourt $2 812

1 Reed, Walter—Drama 2 Yellow fever 34-18182

A dramatization of the story of the fight against yellow fever which began with Walter Reed's experiments in Cuba in 1900

"It is more than just a good play; it is a great one. The material of tremendous drama is of course in the authentic history. . . . The stage has here taken a lesson from the screen, and has bettered the instruction. But the important thing is the tremendous ethical drive which comes with the skilful presentation of the work of these heroes of science." Christian century

"A play about gangsters in the making, and poverty versus riches, as evidenced in an East River waterfront district of New York City." Book rev. digest

MacLeish, Archibald

The fall of the city; a verse play for radio. 1937 Farrar 50c; Boriswood 3s 6d 812

A play in verse written for the radio and read with Orson Welles and Burgess Meredith in the principal parts

"There's nothing timeless about a microphone. It carries words for today. So does this book. It should have the widest possible reading. And the play, with the same speakers, should be broadcast again. In it literature at last shows some hope of catching up with music at the dial's point." N.Y. Times

Odets, Clifford

Golden boy; a play in three acts. 1937 Random house $2 812

38-27044

"Three-act play with the fight ring for its locale. It is the tale of a young Italian violinist who is torn between love of his art and an overwhelming desire for material gain. He becomes a prizefighter, his hands are broken and he can never play the violin again; he falls in love with a girl of low character; his idealistic nature is destroyed." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Odets is essentially a Jewish playwright, he understands his race and he projects its characters in pungent, pointed dialogue. . . . When he attempts to portray native Americans, as he does in the girl, he is far less satisfying. But in his own field he is unique. Moreover, he understands dramatic technique, the value of suspense, of surprise, of silent action. It is time, however, that he learned that vulgarity of expression is not drama." Commonweal

* Three plays: Awake and sing; Waiting for Lefty; Till the day I die. 3v in 1 1935 Random house $2.50; Gollancz 7s 6d 812

35-7955

"Spirited, radical, and challenging plays, exceptionally well written. 'Awake and sing' presents youth's rebellion of spirit in a poor Jewish family in a Bronx apartment; 'Waiting for Lefty' pictures the growth of a strike movement; 'Till the day I die' is a desperate, Nazi persecution play. All are moving and dramatic." Bkl.

"The great public needs truer pictures of our society than it gets from the movies and from Broadway, and Mr. Odets and his fellows are obviously very competent to paint these pictures." Survey graphic

Peters, Paul, and Sklar, George

Stevedore. 1934 Covici $1.50 812

34-15963

"Many a weak or absurd play has been made into a passable evening's entertainment, by the acting of Negroes. But 'Stevedore' is the first play we have seen in which the beneficent influence of the Negroes has reached the writing itself. The authors seem to have been thinking, while writing their dialogue, how Negroes would act it—for some of their directness, credulity, and simplicity has warmed the lines written for them. . . . The play tells the story of a dispute between Negro stevedores and their bosses in New Orleans, and the race riot which develops out of it." Sat. rev. of lit.

Shaw, Irwin

Bury the dead. 1936 Random house $1 812

36-9991

"The play opens in the second year of the war that is to begin tomorrow night. A squad of soldiers is discovered digging a grave for the six corpses that lie waiting. But once buried, the corpses refuse to stay. They rise up out of the grave. Threats, prayers, pleadings, force, all fail to make them lie down again. A powerful and moving play." Wis. bul.

Sherwood, Robert Emmet

Idiot's delight. 1936 Scribner $2 812

36-8866

"This play, produced by the New York Theatre Guild in March, 1936, has been awarded the Pulitzer prize for drama. The scene is a winter resort hotel in the Italian Alps; the characters are a confused medley of English honeymooners, American cabaret dancers, a German scientist, a Russian adventuress, Italian servants and officers. The time is 'the eve of the inevitable war', and its coming furnishes the climax." Book rev. digest

Petrified forest. 1935 Scribner $2; 7s 6d 812

35-5154

"The scene is a desert gas-filling station and the petrified forest refers both to the actual forest adjacent and to several of the characters. The garrulous old ex-pioneer, living in the past—and off the income from his real-estate speculations—the American legionnaires, unaware that a new world has grown up since they came back from the war, and several others, are 'petrified'. . . . The gunmen who finally shoot up the place are the only ones who definitely know what they want and go straight about getting it in the hot present." Sat. rev. of lit.

Wexley, John

They shall not die. 1934 Knopf $2 812
34-8158

A propaganda play on the injustice of the Scottsboro trial and oppression of the negro in the South. "In spite of the fact that one knows exactly how the play will turn out it is written with such rage and resentment that one is both engrossed and indignant." Cincinnati

"A fresh approach to the subject of American fiction, beginning with Crane, Norris and London and coming down to our day. With its criticisms, evaluations and synopses of all the significant novels of the period, should be useful for work with clubs. Well indexed, and supplied with many notes and references." Wis. bul.

"Among the weightier analyses of current American fiction. While there is an excess of generalized deduction, there is also considerable pungent interpretation, and much that is said about individual writers—Norris, Dreiser, Sherwood Anderson, Cabell, Hergesheimer, etc.—is incisive and illuminating." "Mr. Cabell turns now to the departed great ones whose letters can never lie in the postman's bag, but who, if they could write letters, would doubtless complain that posterity has signally failed to understand them. To twenty of those who have become famous largely through a misunderstanding, Mr. Cabell directs himself in a series of letters whose chief concern is with the ironies of reputation." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"More than a few of Mr. Cabell's readers have a special liking and preference for 'The Silver Stallion.' 'Ladies and Gentlemen' is another ironical, deft, enlivening book particularly for them." Nation

Contents: Chance meeting; Novel démeuble; 148 Charles street; Miss Jewett; "Joseph and his brothers"; Katherine Mansfield

"Not Under Forty has a title which, according to the author, means that 'the book will have little interest for people under 40 years of age.' It is to be hoped that 'people under 40' will disappoint Miss Cather of her gloomy prophecy. If they do not they will miss a collection of sketches and essays that, while unpretentious, convey pleasantly mature impressions and wisely mature thoughts in language that has sufficient youth and zest for all but the consciously and rambunctiously young." 34-36212

"It is not surprising to find Mr. Eastman's discussion of the most burning question in esthetics today—the relation of art to current activity in social reconstruction—sympathetic and well informed. It is not surprising, but certainly a boon, to discover in his brief tract the best and soundest analysis of this vexed subject available in any source known to me. . . . The rest of this book is a miscellany of critical and descriptive sketches. It is the title essay that makes it important." H. S. Canby in Sat. rev. of lit.

Essays, ancient and modern. 1936 Harcourt $2; Faber 6s 814

36-27382

This new collection of essays takes the place of "For Lancelot Andrewes." Three essays from that volume have been omitted, those on Middleton, Crashaw, and Machiavelli; and five essays not previously collected have been added. Contents: Lancelot Andrewes; John Bramhall; Francis Herbert Bradley; Baudelaire in our time; Humanism of Irving Babbitt; Religion and literature; Catholicism and international order; "Pensées" of Pascal; Modern education and the classics; In memoriam

"How much more satisfactory as a critic Mr. Eliot is when he is writing literary criticism than when he is elucidating the ethical or other principles on which he works. The essay on Pascal, in particular, is a brilliant and profound piece of writing, quite one of the best essays which Mr. Eliot has written in recent years, and the essay on 'In Memoriam' is little inferior to it." Spectator

Frank, Waldo David

In the American jungle (1925-1936); photographic decorations by W. H. Field. 1937 Farrar $2.50 814

37-5859

A collection of short articles, previously published in magazines ranging from the "New Yorker" to the "New masses"

"Many of [these] fugitive pieces seem as fresh as if written today, although a number reach back as far as 1925. Many of them, also, will be actually new to American readers, since they were published in foreign magazines. New and old, they are equally worthy of perusal and remembrance . . . The final section of 'In the American Jungle' falls below the earlier portions of the book." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Gerould, Mrs Katharine (Fullerton)

Ringside seats. 1937 Dodd $2.50 814

37-28622

Conservative, well-written essays on a variety of subjects. Partial contents: The man who made Mulvaney; Men, women, and the Byron-complex; A Yankee looks at Dixie; An essay on essays; The unsocial Christian; Salvation by intuition; Romantic divorce; The personal touch; Our substitute lives; What, then, is culture? Aesthetics of conservatism; Ringside seats

"A new book of essays by Katharine Fullerton Gerould is in the nature of a blessing vouchsafed to readers who are unaccustomed to being blessed. Her deep culture and triumphant common sense carry her along from the first page to the last, from Kipling and Byron where she is at her best, to Pacifism where she is possibly at her keenest, save in the matter of lynching, which she dismisses in a half-page of cocksure generalities." Greenbie, Mrs Marjorie L. B.—Continued

Carriack. Partial contents: Noble art of loafing; Lively art of going places; Difficult art of being sociable; Spirited art of conversation; Necessary art of self improvement; Wholesome art of exercise; and Delectable art of reading

"In a chaotic world filled with alarums and much sheeplike rushing to and fro the author has found and sets forth here, with liveliness and frequent touches of humor, what she believes to be a sound basis upon which to build one's house of life." N.Y. Times

More, Paul Elmer

On being human. 1936 Princeton univ. press $2; Oxford 9s 814

1 Humanism—20th century 2 Literature—History and criticism 3 Religion—Philosophy 36-27461

The third volume in the series New Shelburne essays, most of which deal with persons and problems of modern literature

Contents: Revival of humanism; Irving Babbitt; Proust: The two ways; James Joyce; Modernism of French poetry; Religion and social discontent; Church and politics; Scholar-saint; How to read Lycidas

Nock, Albert Jay

Free speech and plain language. 1937 Morrow $3 814

37-28695

Seventeen essays, previously published in the "Atlantic monthly" or "Harpers magazine." They relate to such subjects as American education, Artemus Ward's America, Disadvantages of being educated

"An intelligent and urbane, though conservative, commentary on American life. The author's primary interest is clearly education—or, at least, that indefinable quality known as 'culture'... While the papers vary in depth, they are stimulating, and are written in that lucid prose for which Mr. Nock has justly acquired a reputation." Boston

Peattie, Donald Culross

Book of hours; decorations by Lynd Ward. 1937 Putnam $2.50 814

37-27229

"A book of essays, or meditations, one for each hour of the day. Beginning at Three ante meridian, that hour before dawn when the first bird stirs, the author touches on the aspects of nature as the day proceeds on its round." Wis. bul.

"A rare and distinguished book, in which thought, feeling and imagination are fused in the light of poetic insight." N.Y. Times

Repplier, Agnes

* Eight decades; essays and episodes. 1937 Houghton $3 814

37-28784

Collection of sixteen essays, with an introductory autobiographical sketch in which the author recalls her life, decade by decade, up to her present age of eighty. Contents: Eight decades; Horace; Masterful Puritan; Perils of immortality; Town and suburb; Virtuous Victorian; Living in history; Divineness of discontent; Headsman; When Lalla Rookh was young; Allegria; Cruelty and humor; What is moral support?; Estranging sea; Chill of enthusiasm; Condescension of borrowers; Grocer's cat

"These essays of Agnes Repplier's from her other books in other years make a rare and delightful volume, not only witty, pointed and erudite, but almost wholly dateless... The paper called 'Eight Decades,' which gives its name to the book and fills only forty-seven pages, is itself an essay, reminiscent, charming, incisive and evocative, but offering us, of autobiography, only crumbs." N.Y. Times

Roberts, Kenneth Lewis

For authors only, and other gloomy essays. 1935 Doubleday $2.50 814

35-13489

"The author of 'Arundel,' and the 'Lively Lady' in these far from gloomy essays, considers the subjects of diet, of exercise, education, and the troubles of the small investor. Perhaps the cause for greatest merriment, in the opinion of the reader, is the story of the attempt of a budding writer to build a 'half-baked palace' in Italy, with the recalcitrant aid of native workmen." N.Y. libraries

"These sprightly essays are sometimes biting, but never gloomy. In their light, 'joshing' style and abundance of juicy facts they are perfect types of the popular-magazine article of our day. Indeed this is a book in the Mark Twain tradition of 'Innocents Abroad,' a tradition that is still a sure-fire success with the American public." Sat. rev. of lit.

Santayana, George

Obiter scripta; lectures, essays and reviews; ed by Justus Buchler and Benjamin Schwartz. 1936 Scribner $2.50; Constable 10s 814

36-27200

Miscellaneous collection of the author's papers and addresses on philosophical and literary subjects, which have been published at various times during the last thirty years. Bibliography

"The least of these pieces is a masterpiece in the art of thinking and the practice of writing, rich in a harmony of prose seldom heard, sparkling with imagery, rippling with irony. Whatever his philosophy may contribute to the tradition of knowledge, it has at least its own immediate pleasure in itself, in its exact and subtle expression. The beauty of what has been said is his compensation for what has been left unsaid." N.Y. Times

Stein, Gertrude

Lectures in America. 1935 Random house $2.50 814

35-5025

The text of six lectures given in the United States in 1934, which embody the author's theories and well illustrate the characteristics of her writing, which many readers find difficult to understand. Contents: What is English literature; Pictures; Plays; Gradual making of the making of Americans; Portraits and repetition; Poetry and grammar

"It has been quite the fashion to cast her work aside with a laugh that has in it much of scorn. While a careful reading of this latest book fails to bring the author into focus, it does make one think. She has studied deeply and seriously the things she talks about, but she does not use the conventional literary form and we still remain sceptical as to her manner being an improvement." Boston Transcript

Stewart, Charles David

Fellow creatures. 1935 Little $2.75 814

35-27203

"An ingenious, inquiring, observant mind, a sense of humor, and a fresh and original way of putting things make of the author a delightful nature essayist. His range of topics, however, extends beyond the problem of snake locomotion, the trade of the spider and bee and wasp to his own early ways of earning a livelihood, and to stories of other men and women." N.Y. libraries

"All the chapters are, unconsciously and unostentatiously, advice on living—on the use of the eye, the curiosity, the sympathy, the faculty of quiet contemplation, to make life richer and happier. Mr.

Stewart may not be quite so far above economic pressures and depressions as Thoreau at Walden, but he is far enough so that he does not have to mention such trivial matters in his book." W. P. Eaton in Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Benchley, Robert Charles

After 1903—what? with drawings by Guyas Williams. 1938 Harper $2.50; 7s 6d 817

38-2530

"What about literary forums, for example, or how to go insane, or homemade jokes, or the Ten Most People, or sheep dipping, or is there really a moon? Mr. Benchley furtively offers the answers and Mr. Guyas Williams reliably illustrates." New Yorker

Short humorous articles on a variety of topics

"There is an ease, a moderation, about the book which is missing from the work of Mr. Benchley's more harried rivals. . . . No appreciation of this book could be complete without a round of loud applause for Guyas Williams, who supplies many illustrations, all of them very funny." N.Y. Times

Day, Clarence Shepard

* After all. 1936 Knopf $2.50; Chatto 7s 6d 817

36-18856

"Clarence Day's way of looking at problems and people is humorously different from the humdrum approach of most of us. Thus he does not solemnly see Hardy as 'a great pessimist,' but he likes to think that 'if a good gloomy episode came into Hardy's mind while he was shaving it brightened the whole day.' Although humor is always in the ascendant, there is often a note of wise seriousness in this collection which includes a part of the 'Crow's nest' (published in 1921), and a quantity of new essays, verses and drawings. Various articles have previously appeared in magazines." N.Y. libraries

Macmillan $5; 25s 817

1 American wit and humor 2 Southern states—Description and travel 3 Southern states—Social life and customs 4 Mississippi—Social life and customs 36-10021

"A collection of the humor of the old 'Deep South'—Mississippi, Louisiana, and Alabama—going back to very early times but chiefly of the first sixty years of the nineteenth century. The material has been collected from a variety of sources, travel books, histories, biographies, volumes of poetry, newspapers, magazines and almanacs. The editorial material consists of a full introduction, introductions to separate sections, and bibliographical and explanatory notes. The material is arranged topically under such headings as: Indians, Hunters and fishermen, Politicians, Preachers, Duelists, Ladies, etc." Book rev. digest

"An interesting and important contribution to our knowledge of a section whose history is old and cosmopolitan." Christian science monitor

Lardner, Ring Wilmer

* First and last. 1934 Scribner $2.50 817

34-15821

A book of Ring Lardner's humorous writings collected by Gilbert Seldes. Contents: Symptoms of being 35; The young immigrants; Men and women; Variety of sports; Yacht race; A world's serious; Prize fight; On politics; General commentary; Children, society, and dogs; An infant industry; Few parodies; Notes on travel; Short plays

"All comments on the ludicrous are apt to be ridiculous. This book contains none of the hate and pity for the human race on which the critics have so insisted in Lardner's other work; but it is one of the funniest books of our time. And one wonders if that is not the highest praise one can after all give to Lardner." Sat. rev. of lit.

* Education of Hyman Kaplan, by L. Q. Ross (pseud.) 1937 Harcourt $2; Constable 5s 817

37-27486

"These sketches from the 'New Yorker' record the progress of Mr. Kaplan, a student in the American Night Preparatory School for Adults. It is Mr. Kaplan who declines the verb 'to fail' as 'fail, failed, bankrupt,' and gave the plural of dog as dogies, Library as Public library, and cat as Katz. Enough to indicate the characteristic and amusing Jewish humor." Wis.

Skinner, Cornelia Otis

Excuse it, please! 1936 Dodd $2; Davies 6s 817

36-20356

"Nineteen sketches in which Cornelia Otis Skinner regales the reader with devastatingly funny visualizations of herself in awkward and ludicrous situations, not to mention the things she thought or said at critical moments. Witness her spectacular efforts involved in learning to skate, or when taking riding lessons, her attacks of muteness at employment agencies, her hatred of folk dancing, and of stargazers who insist on pointing out Cygnus, the swan, at a picnic. 'If that's a swan, I think, then I'm a humming bird.' Drawings by O. Soglow preface each chapter." N.Y. libraries

Thurber, James

Let your mind alone! And other more or less inspirational pieces; with drawings by the author. 1937 Harper $2.50 817

37-28558

"A series of articles in which the author reviews, in rather unsympathetic tones, the best-seller inspirational books such as Wake Up and Live, How to Win Friends and Influence people, and Live Alone and Like It. Other articles deal with a meeting of intellectual critics, (and) an attempt to write an autobiography." Book rev. digest

"Amusing, relaxing sketches, published in the New Yorker." Cleveland

Middle-aged man on the flying trapeze. 1935 Harper $2; Hamilton, H. 7s 6d 817

35-29198

Selection of humorous sketches reprinted from the New Yorker. Partial contents: The gentleman is cold; Preface to dogs; Everything is wild; Mr. Preble gets rid of his wife; Portrait of Aunt Ida; Luck of Jad Peters; I went to Sullivant; If Grant had been drinking at Appomattox; How to see a bad play; One is a wanderer

"Underlying its comic distortion is something of an imaginative quality that recalls Mr. Elliot's Sweeney or Joyce's Mr. Bloom. The cartoons which illustrate the essays show how clearly Mr. Thurber sees the grotesque world, which he portrays with a comedy supported more often by pathos than by satire." Manchester guardian

37-37579

"A collection of the humorous lectures which Mr. Leacock has been delivering to audiences in the United States and Canada during the last twenty years." Book rev. digest

"The lectures are more serious, at least in spots, than some of us had been imagining. 'How Soon Can We Start the Next War?' for instance, turns out to be a timely oration full of sound sense, amounting almost to one of those talks for serious listeners-in on the radio. . . . It may be said that the satiric thrust of the whole is superior in effect to the occasional comic cracks." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Diary of our own Samuel Pepys. 2v
1935 Simon & Schuster $6 818

1 Pepys, Samuel—Parodies, travesties, etc. 35-28757

Extracts from F. P. A.'s column run in various New York papers, and now the Conning tower in the New York Herald Tribune, which form a chronicle of books, plays and people in New York for the period. A feature which adds to the interest is the series of footnotes which identify the people and events referred to. Volume 1, 1911-1925; v2 1926-1934

"The volumes are extremely diverting because F. P. A. is one of the country's really humorous humorists, but they are more than diverting. They reflect more than two decades of a thrilling historic period." Chicago Daily Tribune

* Life with mother. 1937 Knopf $2; Chatto

37-27499

"The book, like its predecessor, is a contemporary record of a family, its homes, its habits, and of the period in which it grew up. . . . But it is also much more. By reason of the mind of one of the four sons, then simply the oldest of the red-headed Day boys, it is a penetrating commentary upon every family and every individual, a well of wisdom concerning the secrets of all hearts." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"It would be idle to quarrel with this book because it is so much like 'Life With Father,' or because it is occasionally almost more than lifelike. Naturally it is filled with the same shrewd common sense, the same warm humanity, the same drolleries." Christian science monitor

Eliot, Charles William

Inscriptions. 1934 Harvard univ. press $2;
Oxford 8s 6d 818

34-6981

"President Eliot of Harvard wrote noble and distinguished inscriptions for many monuments and memorials placed throughout the country. As he kept no records, it took research and labor to collect these examples, which are well worth publishing as models of an unusual form of literary art." Cincinnati

Steffens, Joseph Lincoln

Lincoln Steffens speaking. 1936 Har-

36-29259

"This compilation of fugitive pieces is derived from the author's published magazine articles, columns from the Pacific

Weekly, book reviews, editorials, notes and jottings, and fragmentary sentences and paragraphs. Altho of such fragmentary nature, the book succeeds in painting a picture of the man who wrote them." Book rev. digest

"Despite the unevenness which must characterize such a book, the result is astonishingly stimulating. The book almost tells more about Steffens than did the Autobiography; it pulls the reader's mind up with a jerk on almost every page." Christian century

"It is his civil way of presenting some of the most astonishing phenomena of our time that has endeared Mr. White to his audience. . . . The beauty of Mr. White's comments is never garish or flaunting. What he has to say is said rather quietly." W. R. Benét in Sat. rev. of lit.

"The compilation of the Annals is the work of J. C. Ghosh; the Annals 1901-25, and the Index, are the work of E. G. Withycombe." Preface

"Chronologically arranged list of works of major English authors from 1475 to 1925, with some of the works of minor authors. Marginal notes give the births and deaths of authors, publication of periodicals, and foreign events having a bearing on English literature. Index of authors and their works." Book rev. digest

"It is no exaggeration to say that the compilers of this little reference book have put every student of English literature in their debt. . . Omissions are insignificant, and errors, so far as it has been possible to detect them, limited to a few trifling misprints. 1 English literature—History and criticism 2 American literature—History and criticism 3 James, Henry 4 Social problems in literature 36-5665

A study of modern writers and beliefs. "Part 1 takes Henry James as an example of the modern individualist writer, and shows how his works develop towards the interior drama of James Joyce. In the second part of the book the indictment of society found in James and Baudelaire is traced in other modern writers, especially W. B. Yeats, T. S. Eliot and D. H. Lawrence. The last section is an essay 'In defence of a political subject.'" Coventry. Public libraries

"As a book The Destructive Element suffers from two faults. It is often awkwardly written, arid, inconsequent and hard to follow. . . More serious is a certain lack of construction; one can't help feeling that many chapters were articles written for publication at different dates and hitched into position with a certain disingenuousness. But this remains an important book: the author has admirably avoided the tendency to show off, to parade his cleverness; it is the attempt of a patient, intelligent, and deeply interested person to get really underneath the ocean surface." New statesman and Nation

Irish literature and drama in the English language. 1936 Nelson $2; 6s 820.9

1 English literature—Irish authors—History and criticism 2 Irish literature—History and criticism [36-19059]

"Taking the 'Irish melodies' of Thomas Moore as a convenient starting point, Mr. Gwynn endeavours to trace the development of a distinctive quality in the literature of a modern English speaking Ireland." Times (London) lit. sup.

Legouis, Émile Hyacinthe

* Short history of English literature; tr. by V. F. Boyson and J. Coulson. 1934 Oxford $2.75, college ed $2; 6s 820.9

1 English literature—History and criticism 34-33450

A condensed history devoted more to criticism and appraisal of writers and works than to biographical material. Intended to be a stepping-stone to the "History of English literature" by Legouis and Cazamian, which is listed in the main catalog. The last 50 years have been treated very briefly and there is nothing on American literature

"The general reliability and judiciousness of this smaller history will not be questioned; and criticism can only be fairly directed towards what may strike an English reader as occasional defects of proportion, oddities of opinion, or, very rarely indeed, actual errors." Times (London) lit. sup.

History of English literature. rev ed 1935 Macmillan $5.50, college ed $4 820.9

1 English literature—History and criticism 35-10888

First published 1926-27 in two volumes, revised and published in one volume in 1929. The 1935 edition is a reprint of that of 1929 except for the addition of 24 pages to the last chapter on contemporary tendencies covering the period 1914-1932 and some additions to the bibliographies throughout the book

Contents: Middle ages and the renaissance (650-1660) by Émile Legouis, tr. from the French by H. D. Irvine; Modern times (1660-1932) by L. F. Cazamian, tr. from the French by W. D. MacInnes and the author

Earlier edition starred in the main catalog

The first edition of this handbook of British writers and their work appeared in 1921; the second in 1928. This edition contains forty additional authors, and bibliographical material has been increased. Part I, consists of an outline of the main types and schools of writing in contemporary British literature; Part II, has for each author a brief biographical note; bibliography of important works, and list of best studies and reviews

Prophets and poets; tr. by Hamish Miles. 1935 Harper $3; Cassell 10s 6d

1 English literature—History and criticism 2 Authors, English 35-34887

A series of studies of English authors, originally delivered as lectures to a French audience. Contents: Rudyard Kipling; H. G. Wells; Bernard Shaw; G. K. Chesterton; Joseph Conrad; Lytton Strachey; D. H. Lawrence; Aldous Huxley; Katherine Mansfield.

"A book highly instructive for English-speaking readers. . . Maurois's enlightened intelligence moves easily in a purer air where despite prejudices and vanities, of which he must have many, he can use all his faculties, biographical, critical, intuitive, historical, in the attempt to give the reader, not an argument, a blurb, or a diatribe, but his subject as he sees it, as a whole." 821 ENGLISH POETRYAldington, Richard

Life quest. 1935 Doubleday $1.50; Chatto 3s 6d 821

35-16447

"Richard Aldington was prominent in the imagist group sponsored by Amy Lowell, with which group he began publishing in 1912. . . While they produced sometimes rhythmical lines, much of their product is in reality prose written with broken lines that make it look like poetry. This group of poems is in the truly imagist style with perhaps a little more of thought centered around one idea, than is usual with such poets." Boston Transcript

Auden, Wystan Hugh

On this island. 1937 Random house $1.50; Faber 5s 821

37-2143

"Thirty-one new poems written by one of the most significant of young English poets. In expressing his emotions and his reactions to the present, the poet is consistently original, eloquent, and forceful, though not always completely clear." Bkl.

Poems. 1934 Random house $2.50; Faber 5s 821

34-33653

"Not since the publication of T. S. Eliot's 'Poems,' fifteen years ago, has there appeared poetry of such dynamic originality and potentiality for influence upon a new school of modern poetic thought and expression. Like Spender, Auden acknowledges his debt to Eliot. But he has more to say than Eliot has said. . . He directs his more robust energies toward not only an attempted analysis but solution of that chaos through mass as well as through individual action." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Chaucer, Geoffrey

Canterbury tales; tr. into modern English verse by F. E. Hill. 1935 Longmans $3 821

35-27085

The complete Canterbury tales including 21 tales, the Prologue, and three fragments of tales which Chaucer left uncompleted. A volume with the same title, published in 1930 and entered in the main catalog, included four tales and the Prologue. It also contained lyrics and a shortened version of "The book of the Duchess," which have not been included in the present volume

A35-1480

A complete collection of the author's poetry to the time of publication, and therefore will replace the "Collected poems," 1929, which is entered in the main catalog

"The good poems, in the main, are those with which we are familiar by way of the anthologies; they are fresh and lovely, and deserve to be remembered." N.Y. Times

Collected poems, 1929-1933, & A hope for poetry. 1935 Random house $2.50 821

1 English poetry—History and criticism 2 Poetry 35-3192

Contents: Transitional poem; From feathers to iron; Magnetic mountain; A hope for poetry

"Of the three chief representatives of the most recent revival of poetry in England, we may say this: that if W. H. Auden is the most savagely intellectual, and Stephen Spender the most impenitently evangelical, Cecil Day Lewis is the most lyrically broad-minded. None can, I think, read the long essay here entitled 'A Hope for Poetry' without realizing the fact that this young Englishman has stated better than almost any other of his group the peculiar perils and dangers afflicting the modern poet, as well as the desperate attempts he must make to evade them." J. G. Fletcher in Sat. rev. of lit.

The author's "Time to dance, Noah and the waters, and other poems; with an essay, Revolution in writing" (1936 Random house $1.75) consists of a collection of lyric poems and a modern morality play

De La Mare, Walter John

Poems, 1919 to 1934. 1936 Holt $2.50;
Constable 10s 6d 821

[36-4163]

Includes all the poems from "The veil" and "Fleeting" and almost all from "Flora," selections from "Crossings" and "The three royal monkeys," and other occasional rhymes written within the dates "Lovers of De La Mare's strange, frost-filigree and moonlight craftsmanship will find in this large volume one example after another in which his wonderful technique is exercised upon a real mood of poetic insight and intensity. The reader realizes afresh how visual rather than oral this poet is in his workmanship. . . . On the printed page his magic is inescapable." Christian science monitor

Galsworthy, John

Housman, Alfred Edward

* More poems. 1936 Knopf $2; Cape, J.

"After the author's death last April it was discovered that he had left a collection of unpublished prose and poetry. His brother had been instructed to burn all prose manuscript, but was permitted to select and publish 'any poems which appear to him to be completed and to be not inferior to the average of [the] published poems.' This collection of forty-eight lyrics are Laurence Housman's selections from his brother's work." Book rev. digest

"A lyric by Housman has the grace and the pointedness of lyrics by other hands, yet always, indelibly, it carries his signature. . . . What is remarkable is the durability of these slight pieces, whose simple eloquence neither political nor poetical revolutions can impugn." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Joyce, James

Collected poems. 1937 Viking press $2

"Fifty lyrics of great delicacy and simplicity. Two-thirds of them were included in 'Chamber music,' published by Huebsch in 1918, the others are hitherto unpublished in America." Bkl.

Langland, William

Vision of Piers Plowman; newly rendered into modern English by H. W. Wells. 1935 Sheed $3; 8s 6d 821

36-27076

A new rendering which preserves the meter of the original. A standard version is already included in the main catalog

This "version is both dignified and attractive. . . . [its] most conspicuous merit . . . is that it has something of the simplicity and space of the original. . . . Mr. Wells' translation gives more than a hint of Langland's genius, and more than an echo of his music." L. A. G. Strong in Spectator

MacNeice, Louis

Poems. 1937 Random house $2.50; Faber
6s 821

38-1239

"This is the first American edition of the author's poems (1926-37). He belongs to the post-war Oxford group of which W. H. Auden, Stephen Spender and C. Day Lewis are the leaders." Book rev. digest
"MacNeice is perhaps too emphatically contemporary, insisting again and again upon the wireless, the factory chimneys, the policemen and the buses. Yet this is the main interest of the substance of his poems, that the circumference is always social and the center is always personal." Poetry

Masefield, John

Poems. 2v in 1 1935 Macmillan $5 821

35-5388

A new collected edition of Masefield's poems, the 1929 edition of which is entered in the main catalog. Some few poems in the earlier edition have been dropped and the following have been added: Poems from Sard Harker, Odtas, The Wanderer, Minnie Maylow's story, and A tale of Troy

The author's "A letter from Pontus, and other verse" (1936 Macmillan $2; Heinemann 6s) consists of ballads and short poems including a narrative poem on Dick Whittington

Russell, George William

Selected poems, by A. E. pseud. 1935
Macmillan $2; 5s 821

35-29200

The author's own selection from his works. Most of these poems are contained in his "Collected poems," which is included in the main catalog, but many libraries may need this volume also

Sitwell, Edith

Selected poems; with an essay on her own poetry. 1937 Houghton $3; Duckworth 8s 6d 821

[37-490]

"Rare and varied poems, distinguished by the great technical skill and sharp use of words, natural to this great English poet." Cincinnati

"Edith Sitwell was a surrealist when the modern crop were babes in arms. She has created a completely individual universe, baroque and harlequinade, wherein all sorts of objects of art and nature shine and sound. And it is a tragic and acutely nostalgic universe." Louise Bogan in New Yorker

Spender, Stephen

Poems. 1934 Random house $1.50; Faber
5s 821

34-35674

"Stephen Spender, with his first book of poems, shows promise of being the best lyric poet of his generation in England. . . . His talents are obvious, and one is made aware of his ease of movement, freshness, and clarity. He is still a trifle overfond of generalizing his emotions and of dodging the concrete image. These are habits that have afflicted all minor romantic poetry, but such flaws are rare in his work; his statement of affirmation carries everything before it." Horace Gregory in Nation

"The most serious defect to be found in his poems is a sort of foginess that sometimes makes his meaning doubtful." New republic

Yeats, William Butler

King of the great clock tower, commentaries and poems. 1935 Macmillan
$1.50; Cuala 12s 6d 821

35-6702

A short play, that has already been produced in Dublin, gives the title to this book. Commentaries and poems are included.

"Yeats' concern in these latest poems is characteristically divided between the discipline of abstraction that liberates the mind, and the heat of living causes that confuses the acts and purposes of men. . . The familiar fact of Yeats' thought is again apparent: his struggle to reconcile the authority of philosophic universals with the necessities of a personal and racial cause which came to him in the unequivocal demands of the Irish nationalist movement." "Professor Grierson and Mr. Bullough give us . . . more than 600 poems from more than 100 poets; the texts carefully prepared, the spelling modified from the originals in a manner which, though a little hard to justify in theory, in practice gives no offence. The selection from the major poets is a full one, and all the minor poets who deserve a place are here

- 1 American poetry—Collections 2 English poetry—Collections 36-9243

Also obtainable as "Chief modern poets of England" and "Chief modern poets of America" at $1.75 each.

First published 1929. The revised edition contains work of several poets not previously represented—Edgar Lee Masters, Robinson Jeffers, T. S. Eliot, Archibald MacLeish—and enlarged sections on other poets among whom are W. B. Yeats, James Stephens, Edna St Vincent Millay.

The editor's aim has been to represent a limited number of the outstanding and contemporary poets and to include enough poems by each to allow the reader to judge the poet as an individual. Each poet is therefore represented by from five to forty poems. Selections are preceded by biographical sketches. Index of titles and first lines.

Carroll, Paul Vincent

Shadow & substance. 1937 Random house $2 822

38-1431

"A moving drama, staged in the house of the clergy in an Irish town. The canon, an austere scholar with no patience for religious sentimentality, is irritated by his young assistant's campaign against an irreverent, satirical book and attempts to protect the schoolmaster who is its author. The priest and the iconoclast are enemies, but each in his own way loves the little servant girl whose visions leave them skeptical but whose simplicity and faith confound them." Bkl.

"A play first presented at the festival at Canterbury cathedral. It tells the story of the foreign architect, William of Sens, brought over to reconstruct the choir after its destruction by fire in 1174." Book rev. digest

The author "has taken the simplest of all incidents, the rebuilding of the great choir, and embellished it with grace and fire and the stirring chants of great choruses. It has not the resounding clash of forces such as was present in Eliot's 'Murder in the Cathedral,' the play which preceded it at the annual Festival of Canterbury, but it brings man and God together in a poignant and memorable conflict." "An English play which had a very successful New York run. Henry Linden returns from the East bringing his beautiful new wife, Mariella, to visit his Yorkshire family. His brother David, married to the almost-saintlike Judy, falls in love with Mariella and she with him. When the situation becomes apparent to everybody, Judy commits suicide." Book rev. digest

"It is written with great delicacy and charm, [and] whatever one may think further of it, the easy naturalness of the dialogue and the likeableness of the characters are beyond dispute." Nation

1 Short stories—Bibliography

Supplements the compiler's "Short story index" (1923) and "Supplement" (1929) which are entered in the main catalog. An index to 9630 stories by 2062 authors, which shows where the stories may be found in collected works, separate volumes, periodicals or composite collections. All material indexed is in English but many of the stories are by foreign writers

History and criticism

E. A. Baker's "History of the English novel" (v 1-8 1929-37 Witherby ea 16s) is a detailed history from the beginnings. The latest volume (v8) covers the period from the Brontës to Meredith

Budgen, Frank Spencer Curtis

James Joyce and the making of Ulysses. 1934 Smith, H. $2.50; Grayson 12s 6d 823

1 Joyce, James 34-6065

The author is an English painter who has known Joyce since the war years. The book contains material on Joyce and also a minute analysis of "Ulysses"

"In many respects the most valuable book that has so far appeared on Joyce. . . . A rather casual mixture of documentation, gossip, reporting, and good criticism. Mr. Budgen's book is not easily classifiable, but it is an important addition to the great body of material accumulating around the name of Joyce." Nation

1 English fiction—History and criticism 35-2994

"Essays derived from lectures given at Oxford make up this critical study of Dickens, Thackeray, Charlotte and Emily Brontës, Mrs. Gaskell, Anthony Trollope and George Eliot, intended, as the author says, 'to discriminate, and, as far as it is in my power, to illuminate those aesthetic aspects of their novels which can still make them a living delight to readers.' Written with an infectious humor, ought to be enjoyed by anyone who likes books. [Index]" Wis. bul.

1 Dickens, Charles. The posthumous papers of the Pickwick club 2 Literary landmarks—Great Britain 3 England—Description and travel 36-9234

"Among other matters in this handbook are the author's own estimates of the famous papers; an account of an 'examination in Pickwick' held at Oxford in 1853; the story of a trip thru Pickwick land; notes on first editions, etc. Illustrated with line drawings, photographs and maps." Book rev. digest

"Dr. Clendening's 'Handbook' entirely eschews analysis, explanation, and criticism. . . It is saturated with the delight which its author has been getting out of 'Pickwick' from his early youth to the present day; and there can hardly be a lover of 'Pickwick,' old or young, who will not find his own delight renewed and strengthened as he reads." "From the pens of divers admirers of the illustrious members of the Pickwick club, their friends and enemies." Subtitle

Consists of essays, each on one Pickwick character. "Commemorating the centenary of the first issue of 'Posthumous Papers of the Pickwick Club.' The 'divers admirers' are prominent Dickensians who each write of a different club member from whatever point of view he has seen fit: Alfred Noyes, Mr. Pickwick; Alec Waugh, Jingle; Hugh Kingsmill, Dr. Slammer. Bernard Darwin and E. S. P. Haynes (both lawyers) examine Dodson and Fogg, and Sergeant Buzfuz. G. W. Stonier analyses the psychology of Mr. Snodgrass; A. G. Macdonnell describes the 'Dingley Dell vs. All-Muggleton Cricket Match'; Mr. Ley digresses on Mr. Tupman, Ralph Straus on Nathaniel Winkle, and James Agate on the minor characters. As interesting informing, and amusing a volume as could be desired." Ontario library review

McFee, William

More harbours of memory. 1934 Doubleday $2.50 824

34-27275

A collection of essays chosen from material published in periodicals during the last decade. Contents: Six-hour shift; Born to be hanged; The Oxford goes to sea again; Wine on the seas; Wives in every port; Moods of mechanism; Oil, and the hairy ape; Engine-room stuff; Captain of the Vestris; Wardens of the shoals; Letter to a young gentleman dissatisfied with life ashore; England revisited; On living in America; Few words on Mexico; Sun was over the foreyard; Queen was in her parlour; Immortal derelict; Children of the everlasting sea; Conversation in Valetta; Romance; Christmas memories at sea.

"This grand collection of essays contains true wisdom, clear-sighted integrity for the present, and a realization that for the past there is a continually expiring statute of limitations. And when good and evil expire with that statute the erring captain of the Cuckfield is remembered with warmth and affection while others are never heard of because they brought their ships safely into port." Sat. rev. of lit.

37-27450

Contents: Christmas trees; Defence of shyness; English cant; Vision of America; Men's clothes; Early influences; American and English humour; Mr Williams Fletcher; Edwardian week-end; Our youngers and betters; Coincidences; On being efficient; What struck me most in America; On telling the truth; On being polite; Good taste and bad; Travelling companion; Man who knew everybody; How to read books; Food; Americans and ourselves; Meeting celebrities; In defence of the American man; On learning foreign languages; How to write books; Cure for overwork; Fête de la Victoire; Percy Flound

"Small talk: if small talk were in actuality like this, there would be no complaints of the lost art of conversation. Brilliant and often deeply searching, these essays of Harold Nicolson's are easily perceptive and as easily entertaining. Their wit is urbane and evocative. They are very good company. It is a guest to be welcomed—a book of such 'small talk' as this." N.Y. Times

Shaw, George Bernard

Prefaces. 1934 Macmillan $3.75; Constable 12s 6d 824

34-28641

Contains the essays which were published as introductions to his plays and are interesting for Shaw's views on current politics and social problems. There are 37 prefaces grouped as sociological, political, religious, and autobiographical and professional. Most of them were written long after the plays, to which they were attached, had been performed many times

2 England—Historic houses, etc. 36-12530

"The third book in a series on the delights of the English countryside near the author's famous Pilgrim Cottage. This time the tales are mainly of the houses within a day's walk of Pilgrim Cottage, and the owners, past and present, of these houses are delightfully described." Book rev. digest

"The book is one of that excellent and rare sort that makes a good gift, suits a bedside reading stand and, best of all, can be read aloud where two or three lovers of England are sharing an evening's quiet." Christian science monitor

Gone rambling. 1935 Appleton-Century
$2.50; Hodder 7s 6d

[35-10455]

"The author . . . discourses on the country surrounding Pilgrim Cottage, his rural home in the Chilterns. His topics range from the Roman colonists, to the story of Miss Blandy who poisoned her father and gave the eighteenth century one of its most sensational trials. In addition he works in stories of present day visitors to his home, and delightful bits about his garden." Book rev. digest

"There are doubtless readers who will find the interspersed poems of 'Gone Rambling' somewhat saccharine in a 'hard-boiled' age, and the prose exasperating by reason of a self-conscious and facetious skittishness. But such readers are too few to count against the host who find these qualities altogether charming. The book's best quality is Mr. Roberts's interest in the countryside's history and legends." 1 Country life—England 2 Gardening—England 34-29353

"Describes with humor the author's search for a place in the country, his discovery of the charming Ellizabethan cottage tucked away in a tiny village in the Chilterns, his perplexities over his garden, the visits of distinguished guests, and other experiences in going rustic." Book rev. digest

"Affords both pleasant and instructive reading. It has been specially written for town dwellers who would like to live in the country but know little about the facts of rural life. They are initiated into its mysteries and also given much sound advice." Saturday rev.

"In this new book Mr Wells reviews and summarizes the many-volumed work of a hypothetical American writer, a scientist, industrialist and student of world affairs, William Burroughs Steele. In his masterpiece, The Anatomy of Frustration, Steele had analyzed twentieth century conditions in science, religion, war, business and love, and presented suggestions for their improvement. The ideas are, of course, actually those of Mr Wells, himself, here presented in a novel synthesis." Book rev. digest

A representative selection from Heine's writings, in English translations by Leland, Havelock Ellis, Humbert Wolfe, and others, with an introduction by Ernest Rhys

"In the European literature of that quarter of a century which follows the death of Goethe [Heine is] incomparably the most important figure." Ernest Rhys in Introduction

832 GERMAN DRAMA

Feuchtwanger, Lion

Three plays; tr. by E. D. Ashton. 1934 Viking press $2.75; Secker 6s 832

34-38162

Three plays written in Germany during or just after the war. Contents: Prisoners of war, 1918; The Dutch merchant

"It is difficult, but necessary, to see these plays from the point of view of 1918; while it is even more interesting to view them with the perspective of 1934. They are contemporary records of events seen through the ideas, emotions and imagination of the day. They are the stuff of which the literature of history is made. Their genesis is clear, their mood is inevitable, and even now their effect is one of life powerfully lived, though lived, it may seem, in vain." N.Y. Times

Toller, Ernst

Seven plays. 1935 Liveright $2.50; Lane 8s 6d 832

35-87243

Some of the plays have previously appeared separately and also in collections which are included in the main catalog. "His plays, especially the three earlier plays, present mass emotions and mass conflicts. They are plays of the class war, with the proletariat as hero and the exploiter as villain." Times (London) lit. sup.

Contents: Machine wreckers; Transfiguration; Masses and man; Hinkemann; Hoppla! Such is life; Blind goddess; Draw the fires; Mary Baker Eddy by E. Toller and H. Kesten (produced in London as "Miracle in America")

The author's "No more peace!" (1937 Farrar $2; Lane 5s) is a grotesque musical comedy about peace and war

History of the German novelle from Goethe to Thomas Mann. 1934 Macmillan $3.50; Cambridge univ. press 12s 6d 833

1 Short story 2 German fiction—History and criticism 34-13419

A scholarly study of this form of German fiction. "In this account of the history of the novelle in German literature I have attempted to show its development from its Romance origins to a specifically German form which finds its most effective expression in a group of writers in the middle of the century of whom Gottfried Keller is the most eminent." 1 Country life—Denmark

"Sketches from the life of a Danish farmer who appreciates all the phases of country life. Kindly and philosophical and especially sympathetic in its understanding of children. Good to read aloud." Wis. bul.

"There is little of the sentimental in the volume and nothing provincial. Jaegermester Plov is well-traveled, widely read, and conversant with the wisdom of the ancient world as well as the conquests of the modern world. The sketches, originally contributions to a Danish newspaper, the 'Berlingske Tidende,' and written in a poetic prose that loses nothing through translation, are 'leaves of grass' which spring from the spirit that comes from the contact with real things." From Rousseau to Proust. 1935 Houghton $3.50; Constable 12s 6d 840.9

1 French literature—History and criticism 2 Authors, French 35-32223

Biographical and critical essays all more or less studies in abnormal psychology, treating Rousseau, Madame de Warens, Restif de la Bretonne, Esenval, Alexandre de Tilly, Verlaine, Reclus, de Gourmont, R  gnier, Alain-Fournier, and Proust. The author's knowledge of medicine and psychology makes these studies especially valuable

"This book displays a rare knowledge, a fine appreciation, a subtle understanding of France, of things French, and of French literature. It reveals also the manly independence of Mr. Havelock Ellis's intelligence, which was able to preserve its characteristic English qualities while treating foreign topics." "After a brief introduction there is a discussion of Cervantes and chivalry books . . . Two more preliminary chapters have to do with the character of Dorothea as an example of cleverness and of Cardenio as the type of cowardice. These chapters will make their appeal rather to the close student of the book than to the so-called general reader for whom the book means the knight and the squire. To those two great central characters Señor Madariaga comes at length and . . . we have close and subtle analyses of both, in which the intermixture of idealism and doubt in the Don is carefully disclosed, the growth of idealism in Sancho is shown, and the reciprocal action of each on the other is traced and developed." "Aims at giving a full and concise summary of Greek literature from Homer to Lucian. The book is well arranged, can be read continuously and can be appreciated without specialist knowledge of the language or the literature. . . All the titles of works are carefully recorded, even when—as, for example, with plays—they are mere names, and brief summaries of all extant works are given. . . 881.08 GREEK POETRY—COLLECTIONS

Oxford book of Greek verse in translation, ed. by T. F. Higham and C. M. Bowra. 1938 Oxford $3; 8s 6d 881.08

1 Greek poetry—Translations into English

Every piece in "The Oxford book of Greek verse," published 1930 is here translated, and the same arrangement of authors and numeration is followed, except for some minor differences. Two introductory essays deal with character and development of Greek poetry and Greek poetry in translation.

"The editors . . . have not confined themselves to any one period for their translations, and the reader will find the best by both classical and modern authors: the choice runs from Pope and Gilbert Murray to T. E. Lawrence and Louis MacNeice. The originals cover the whole period of Greek verse from Homer through the classical dramatists to Bion and Moschus. In addition, . . . prefaces by the editors outline the form and structure of Greek verse, and show the obstacles to be surmounted." Recommended books

35-27013

Adapted for the Occidental stage by Agnes Morgan; version as produced at the Neighborhood playhouse

"This play pictures vividly the social life of an early century in the Christian era. Good characterization, humor, tragedy, and romance, sustain its interest well. Charudatta, a Brahman merchant, reduced to poverty, and Vasantasena, a cultured courtesan, fall in love with each other. It is the first attempt that has been made to provide a comprehensive survey of Welsh Poetry. . . . The book is addressed chiefly to the English reader, and to those Welshmen who have no effective knowledge of their native tongue. This, of course, involves extensive quotation, with translation." 1 Russia—History—Revolution, 1917—Drama [37-29650]

"In 1929, Maxim Gorky planned a dramatic trilogy to mirror the events of [Revolutionary] years in the life of a provincial Russian town. The action of the first play ['Yegor Bulichoff'] takes place immediately preceding the March Revolution, the second ['Dostigaeff and the others'] covers the period from March to November 1917. The third play was to deal with the first years of the Soviet régime, but Gorky's... death left it unwritten." Prefatory note

"In spite of their propaganda, [the plays] are essentially concerned with how to meet life forcefully and sincerely, and how to die courageously and perhaps with a little humor. Nor are the plays dull and labored dialogues between ideas. They are human dramas definitely written to be presented on the stage, and utilize every fine theatrical effect." Theatre arts monthly

1 Chinese poetry

"The lyrics translated by Mr. Ch'u Ta-kao are practically all of the Sung period (tenth-thirteenth centuries). The poetry of this period has been hitherto comparatively neglected by translators as being more academic than inspired. Some of the authors here represented, such as Ou-yang Hsiu and Sung Ch'i, were eminent as men of letters rather than specifically as poets. . . It is quite remarkable that a Chinese should be able to render these poems not only in perfect English idiom but with such sensibility to the musical value of English words." Times (London) lit. sup.

"Book of songs; tr. from the Chinese by Arthur Waley" (1937 Houghton $3; Allen, G. 10s 6d, supplement 4s 6d) contains translations of 290 early Chinese songs, most of them of the period 800-600 B.C. The collection is known as the Shih ching, or song word scripture

"This English version of an ancient Chinese popular play, is the work of a young Chinese writer and teacher of English, who has also had a theatrical career. In its English form the play follows many of the Chinese conventions, including the lack of scenery and the omnipresent property men 'the greatest obstacle to realism.'" Book rev. digest

"It is an entrancing play with its romantic atmosphere, its naive simplicity and quaintness and the revealing glimpses it affords into Chinese mentality." Saturday rev.

"The first volume, [Our Oriental heritage,] is one of a series planned to give the complete history of civilization. It covers the history of Egypt and the Asiatic countries in all its phases—government, industry, manners and morals, and the arts, with an introductory section describing the civilization of primitive man. A remarkable piece of work, rich in information, tolerant and scholarly in viewpoint, and so vivid, lucid, and dramatic in its presentation that in spite of its size it should be popular with the general reader. It is well illustrated, indexed, and has an interesting bibliography." Bkl.

1 Voyages and travels 36-27252

"An American Negro woman of limited education but a keen appreciation of people and places, tells of her experiences while working her way around the world." Cleveland

"Though she is unhampered by rules of grammar and spells by ear, she has a flair for writing and presents fascinating, unstandardized pictures of the people and places that have interested her. Adventures and dramatic incidents, her faculty for making friends and being liked, coupled with an intelligent mind and boundless initiative, make a travelog of lively human interest." Kornitzer, Louis

Pearl trader. 1937 Sheridan $3.50 910.4

1 Pearls 37-17091

"The thrilling story of a great pearl-trader whose experiences in strange corners of the world called forth all his ingenuity and understanding of human nature. An autobiography which is different and unusual, characterized by humor, a wealth of lively stories, and expert knowledge. Kornitzer's love of his romantic trade and glamorous subject is matched by his friendliness and unconscious charm." Cincinnati

They found gold; the story of successful treasure hunts. 1936 Putnam $2.50; 8s 6d 910.4

1 Treasure trove 36-5926

"In this book Mr. Verrill has selected a score and more of authentic accounts of the fairly recent finding of buried treasure, either by accident or by organized search. They are all, he assures the reader, true tales, the only change he has made in any of them being to use fictitious names in cases where he thinks the treasure hunters might object to being revealed too openly." Charm of Ireland; her places of beauty, entertainment, sport and historic association. 1934 Houghton $3; Harrap 7s 6d 914.15

1 Ireland—Description and travel 34-37627

"Stephen Gwynn's book was first published seven years ago under the title 'Ireland' and entered in the main catalog; and ever since has been recognized as one of the most valuable of all the many books that have been written about Ireland. He has gone over it carefully, bringing the text up to date wherever that was necessary. But in its illustrations the new edition is almost wholly different from its original. It has thirty-six illustrations, most of them reproduced from the paintings or drawings of Irish artists, depicting Irish scenes, people, architecture. And at the end of the book there is a large folded map of the whole of Ireland, arranged especially for the use of motorists and other tourists." N.Y. Times

1 Asia—Description and travel 35-2572
A satisfactory reprint of a book first published 1925

"Beginning with his initial journey from Stockholm to the shores of the Caspian Sea in 1885, the author has outlined that and his subsequent expeditions in Turkestan, across northern Tibet with Peking as his eventual goal, through the sand wastes of the treacherous Taklamakan Desert, crowning his long list of achievements with his explorations of the uncharted fastnesses of the Transhimalayas. . . [It is] a weird, entrancing tale of true adventure. . . Truly delightful . . . are the many sketches, the work of Sven Hedin himself, which serve to illustrate his narrative." Sat. rev. of lit.

"East again" by W. B. Harris (1933 Dutton $5; Butterworth, T. 18s) is another delightful narrative of a journey in the Near, Middle and Far East. Well illustrated

An Eastern odyssey; the third expedition of Haardt and Audouin-Dubreuil. 1935 Little $3.50; Gollancz 18s 915

1 Asia—Description and travel 35-27213

An account of the Citroën Trans-Asiatic Expedition which crossed the continent of Asia by motor vehicles. The book is a combination of the stories of the two parties into which the expedition was divided. Accompanied by 40 photographs

"Without ever descending to sensationalism or striving to create an effect, he makes the most of every situation, and builds up his climaxes with consummate art. He has a keen sense of humor, and he is an unusually acute observer. Without being in the least pedantic he imparts a vast amount of information about the people he sees and the localities through which he passes." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"Any account of such an adventure would automatically be interesting, but it happens, for extravagant measure, that Anne Lindbergh can write. Simply, modestly, with engaging humor and charm, she tells what it actually felt like to engage in this perilous expedition." Forum

Lyde, Lionel William

Continent of Asia. 1933 Macmillan $5; 16s 915

1 Asia—Description and travel 34-9890

Written from the same standpoint, and along the same lines as the author's "Continent of Europe." Treats of the physical features, climate, vegetation, fauna and inhabitants of the continent in a general way and then takes up the physical and economic geography of the following regions: Russian Asia, Land of the five seas, the Anatolian plateau, Mesopotamia, Syria and Palestine, Arabia, Iranian plateau, India, Ceylon, Indo-Pacific fan, China, dependencies of China, Japan, Manchuria

"Professor Lyde has carried out an imposing and difficult task with originality and signal success, and has thrown valuable light not only on the geography but on the economics and sociology of a vast continent which is becoming, in spite of itself, ever more important in the affairs of Europe." "Mr. Fleming, acting as correspondent for the London 'Times,' undertook this 3,500-mile journey through Sinkiang, or Chinese Turkestan, in company with Kiri Maillart, a resourceful Swiss woman journalist. He writes, as always, with wry wit, but this book has not the charm or the gaiety of 'Brazilian Adventure.' There's a lot of international politics—China, Japan, England, Russia are interested in Sinkiang—and Mr. Fleming's sympathies are candidly White and Imperialist. As a travel book, rather than as political reporting, miles above the average." New Yorker

"An informal account of the Scarritt Expedition in Patagonia, sent out from the American Museum of Natural History to search for fossil animal remains. The book, to a large extent made up of extracts from the author's journal, is nontechnical, and while it shows clearly his enthusiasm for his search, deals with the adventures of the expedition and with the conditions of living in Patagonia today." A near hurricane, a shipwreck on a jungle river, and the rescue of Robinson by the United States navy, when he was stricken with appendicitis, were highlights of the voyage; the account of the Humboldt current which carries a wealth of antarctic life up to the equator, is fascinating. Scientific work was done on the Guano islands and at the Galapagos. Vivid writing, refreshingly direct, modest, and nonsensational. Attractive chapter-head drawings by Dan West, the cousin, and eight photographs." Bkl.

"The author is a noted anthropologist who satisfied a twelve-year desire by spending ten days with the contemporary book gives a short history of the islanders from 1790 to the present; describes their religion, morals, language, institutions, and customs; and notes the biological results of the contact of two alien cultures. English and Polynesian. His book is untechnical, interesting, and—except for a few precoolness, considering the atmosphere of controversy in which the history of Pitcairn is steeped. All Nordhoff-and-Hall

1 Lee family 35-18228

Also available in the Halcyon house edition (Blue ribbon bks. $1.29)

"An account of one of the most famous families in American history; leaders in war and in government, its members had a wide influence on political and social life. To the two best-known, 'Light Horse Harry' and Robert E. Lee, the author has given rather brief treatment, devoting more space to the other members, and especially to Arthur Lee, who negotiated with various European nations at the time of the Revolution, and is now cleared of the suspicion of treachery." Book rev. digest

"Gossipy memoirs of the White House chief usher concerning the eight presidents he knew, their entertaining, their personal idiosyncrasies, and their relations with the White House staff. The publishers state that the book version is entirely distinct from the selections from the memoirs published serially in the 'Saturday Evening Post,' but the difference appears to be chiefly in the editing of the manuscript, which was left unfinished and unrevised. The two versions vary in details." Bkl.

School of femininity; a book for and about women as they are interpreted through feminine writers of yesterday and today. 1936 Stokes $3.50 920

1 Women as authors 2 Women in literature and art 3 English fiction 4 American fiction 36-6326

"Begins with Mary Wollstonecraft and ends with Virginia Woolf. Between these two writers Miss Lawrence has gathered most of the woman novelists of England and America. The first part deals with Jane Austen, the Brontë sisters, George Eliot, and Olive Schreiner; the second part with the work of twentieth-century women novelists to the number of thirty-eight. . . The volume is in reality a survey of how and why women write, with the generalizations for the most part biological—a book about novels and novelists in which the fundamentals are left out, but a splendid analysis of feminine psychology." Ontario library review

Ludwig, Emil

Nine etched from life. 1934 McBride $3; Nicholson 18s 920

1 Statesmen 2 Europe—Politics 34-27132
Published in England under title: Leaders of Europe

Contents: Nansen, the Nordic philanthropist; Masaryk, the Slav philanthropist; Briand, the French European; Rathenau, the German European; Motta, the Swiss European; Lloyd George, the British Odysseus; Venizelos, the Greek Odysseus; Mussolini, the Italian autocrat; Stalin, the Russian autocrat

"Each of the portraits contains an interview. These are not the interviews of the daily journalist whose eye is fixed on the front page and to-day's reactions to what will be tomorrow's main topic of discussion throughout the world. Mr. Ludwig's interviews are superjournalism. Behind the questions and answers you will find the character of the man. . . The etching of Dr. Walther Rathenau is probably the best work in this book. It penetrates the psychology of the man, portrays his character, explains his behavior." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

1 Freud, Sigmund 2 Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von 3 Wagner, Richard 37-28599

"These essays are in the highest sense stimulating and suggestive. . . They are not so much interpretations, or at any rate fresh appraisals, as they are a kind of brilliant exposition of what has already been implied or known. Their worst trouble . . . is that they use one tone for praise, a much quieter one for fault-finding, with an effect that can easily be misleading." N.Y. Times

1 Explorers 34-28474

Also available in a satisfactory cheap reprint in the Star series (Garden City pub. co. $1) Published in England under title: Nine against the unknown

Contents: Glamour of gold and the givers of life; Leif Ericsson's landfall in Wineland the Good; Ser Marco Polo journeys to the islands beyond Cathay; Don Cristóbal Colon and the earthly paradise; Cabeza de Vaca's quest for the city of God; Fernão de Magalhães and the Fortunate Isles; Vitus Bering's search for America and Golden Gama land; Mungo Park attains the Niger and passes Timbuctoo; Richard Burton and the forbidden cities; Fridtjof Nansen seeks the Pole

"It is one of the merits of this book that it awakens an interest to know more. . . It is hardly possible to read such a book as this, and to ponder while reading, yet not go further, following a trail here and another there with earnestness and perseverance. One seeks the explorer prior to the explorer who is accredited." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Moore, Virginia

Distinguished women writers. 1934 Dutton $3 920

1 Woman—Biography 2 Authors 3 Poets 34-30698

Biographical and critical sketches of Marie Bashkirtseff; Madame de Sevigné; Christina Rossetti; Dorothy Wordsworth; Sappho; George Sand; Jane Austen; Emily Brontë; Charlotte Brontë; Saint Teresa; Emily Dickinson; Alice Meynell; Elizabeth Barrett Browning; Charlotte Mew; George Eliot; Elinor Wylie; Katherine Mansfield "In her presentation of these authors, Miss Moore has soundly evaluated their contribution to literature, awarding her praise and her censure with unprejudiced taste. . . Not the least virtue of Miss Moore's book is the care which has so obviously gone into the selection of quotations. These excerpts from the authors whom she considers do much to make the volume what it is: a stimulating collection of literary portraits." Sat. rev. of lit.

1 Duran y Ortega, Josefa. 2 Sackville, Victoria. Josefa Sackville-West, baroness 3 Sackville-West family 37-28439

"The first part of his family memoir tells the story of the author's grandmother, a Spanish dancer of rare beauty, who was the mistress of an English diplomat, Sir Lionel Sackville-West, later Lord Sackville. The second part is the story of Pepita's daughter who married her cousin, the third Lord Sackville." Book rev. digest

"This delightful book is divided into two parts. . . Both are fascinating, the first for a true, though complicated, narrative which, if invented by a novelist, would be deemed incredible; and the second for its life-like picture of a woman of whom Rudyard Kipling wrote: 'On mature reflection the most wonderful person I have ever met.'" Schreiber, Georges

Portraits and self-portraits. 1936 Houghton $2.75 920

1 Authors 2 Authors—Portraits 36-36729

"This volume contains sketches, in black and white, of forty modern celebrities, mainly writers, each sketch accompanied with one to five pages of autobiography supplied by the subject. Among those thus portrayed are: James Truslow Adams, Henri Barbusse, Albert Einstein, Havelock Ellis, Waldo Frank, Ernest Hemingway, Don Marquis, John Masefield, André Maurois, H. L. Mencken, Jules Romains, Hugh Walpole, Arnold Zweig." Book rev. digest

"The personal notes and sketches vary in interest as in length, but, as a whole, do not attempt biographical significance. Mr. Schreiber's portraits have a certain vigor of draftsmanship and interpretation, without being either luminous caricatures or wholly serious representations." Springfield Republican

Saints, sinners and Beechers. 1934 Bobbs $3.75; Nicholson 12s 6d 920

1 Beecher family 2 Beecher, Henry Ward 3 Stowe, Mrs Harriet Elizabeth (Beecher) 34-7761

Also available from Blue ribbon bks. at 98c

"The author, a grandson of Harriet Beecher Stowe, writes lightly and entertainingly but with sincere respect for the distinguished family that has been subject for ironic treatment at the hands of recent biographers. Particularly interesting are his accounts of Catherine Beecher who did so much for the education of women (she founded what is now Milwaukee-Downer College in Wisconsin) and of the writing of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.'" "Story of a picturesque family, now one of the wealthiest and most powerful in America. Beginning with their early history, the author describes the growth and development of their fortunes, the expansion of their interests, their incomes and dividends, and their influence in industry and politics." Book rev. digest

"James E. Abbe has taken photographs in all parts of the world, and with him has gone his family, including three small children. The children's unexpurgated chronicle of their wanderings in France, Austria, Germany, Russia, England and finally home to America makes hilarious reading, with its devastating revelation of family affairs, observations of friends and guests, quotations from conversations and impressions of life in different countries. Adams, Mrs Marian (Hooper)

36-35204

"With the exception of one letter written in 1865, this collection consists of letters written by the wife of Henry Adams to her father, Dr R. W. Hooper, during the years 1872 to 1883. They contain chatty accounts of her personal and social life in England, on the Continent, and in Washington, and give interesting sidelights on the characters of many of the famous people of her day." "No one of those myriad volumes which will inevitably be written will be simpler, more tender, than this life written by her nephew, James Weber Linn. . . Not only did he have all of the documents of her life as a material heritage from her, but he had as an intimate and spiritual heritage an intimate and loving association with and a respect for her honesty of thought and expression which influences his writing of her." "Mr. Cammaerts does not claim comprehensiveness for his biography, since for that the documentary material is not yet fully available. He modestly speaks of his book as an 'outline,' but it is very much more than that, for accessible material has been industriously sought, popular stories have been examined and conflicting evidence has been weighed." Ashford, Bailey Kelly

Soldier in science. 1934 Morrow $3.50; Routledge 12s 6d 92

1 Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 34-18146

"Autobiography of a physician who has spent his life in the exploration of tropical diseases. As a young officer in the Army Medical Corps, Colonel Ashford discovered the hookworm responsible for the anemia so widespread in Porto Rico. Later, under the auspices of the Rockefeller Foundation, he organized the campaign against sleeping sickness. After services overseas in the World War he returned to Porto Rico to teach in the School of Tropical Medicine." Book rev. digest

35-15710

A memoir of John James Audubon and his wife, Lucy. Illustrated with reproductions of some of Audubon's bird paintings

"Mr. Peattie writes with rare charm. . . He has a flair for description and his own reflections upon nature and men add not a little to the delightful flavor of his book." Scientific book club review

* Rourke, C. M. Audubon; il. by James MacDonald. 1936 Harcourt $3; Harrap 12s 6d 92

36-27488

"This biography of Audubon describes all sides of his life and activities as naturalist, artist, and woodsman, and shows his place in American history. Altho intended for young readers, it is of equal interest to adults. The book is illustrated with twelve reproductions in color from the folio prints of Birds of America." Book rev. digest

"Miss Rourke has done her work well. She has made a thorough examination of all available materials concerning her subject. But she gives to the reader not the processes but the results of her study.

This she puts in the most attractive form. . . She has written a narrative which flows along like the rivers over which Audubon travelled, and is as full of life and color as the birds he painted." Churchman

"Augustus," by G. P. Baker (1937 Dodd $3.50; Grayson 12s 6d) is less enthusiastic in its treatment of Augustus, gives less simplified psychological explanations for his actions, and is not so concerned with the actual workings of Augustus' government as with the character traits of Augustus, Mark Antony, Cicero, and many others. Neither book is a popularization; both are written in effective styles, the former with a slightly lighter touch." Bkl.

The greenwood hat; being a memoir of James Anon [1885-1887]; with a preface by the Earl Baldwin of Bewdley. 1938 Scribner $2.75; Davies 8s 6d 92

"It is typical of Barrie that this, the only memoir he left should not be an autobiography at all, but a wistful, sharply nostalgic recollection of two years lived in the London of half a century ago. . . Although there is nothing of profound significance here, there is much that is choice, inimitable and first of its kind." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Dearden, Seton. Burton of Arabia; the life story of Sir Richard Francis Burton. 1937 McBride $3; Barker 12s 6d 92

37-5310

Published in England under title: The Arabian knight

A study of the adventurous explorer, traveler, and translator of the "Arabian nights."

"A vivid, scholarly and fascinating book in which historic, character and narrative values are efficiently balanced, and the incongruities of romantic reality and the ironies of events and characters are handled with sympathy, sophistication and restraint." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Carter, John Franklin

The rectory family; with il. by Oscar Howard. 1937 Coward-McCann $2.50 92

37-28725

"New England—more specifically Williamstown, Mass.—in the good old days before America went to war; a normal family growing up in a comfortable home, with cultured associations and a very slight knowledge of life outside their own circle. The author's purpose was to set down 'the things which we, and thousands of families like our own, took for granted in those kindly years before the deluge.' Will interest those who were children or parents in those years from 1900-1920." Wis. bul.

Castang, Reuben

Thompson, R. W. Wild animal man. 1934 Morrow $3; Duckworth 10s 6d 92

1 Animals—Training 34-27282

"Born in London, and apprenticed to Carl Hagenbeck as a boy, Reuben Castang early became one of the most skilled and versatile of the animal trainers of all time. Most animal trainers specialize. They are, for instance, 'elephant men,' or 'ape men,' but this young trainer was truly an animal man, equally skilled with all. In 1900 he brought a shipload of Hagenbeck's animals to America and spent eight years here with the circus. He trained polar bears for Amundsen; he captured wild apes in Africa, and had many other unusual experiences. His story makes a fascinating book in its field." Wis. bul.

Catherine II, empress of Russia

Kaus, Frau Gina. Catherine; the portrait of an empress; tr. by June Head. 1935 Viking press $3.50; Cassell 15s 92

35-7542

"A detailed biography of Catherine the Great, Empress of Russia, the insignificant and shy German princess who became an all-powerful monarch, of the tragedy of her youthful marriage and its resulting influence on her attitude to morals, and the intrigues, wars and diplomacy of 18th century Europe." Coventry. Public Libraries

"She has clarified the historical background with almost a chemist's skill and against its proportioned expanse has painted her portrait of Catherine." Nation

Catherine de Medici, queen consort of Henry II, king of France

* Waldman, Milton. Biography of a family; Catherine de Medici and her children. 1936 Houghton $3 92

36-33721

"Between his initial research and the brilliant and sustained literary skill of his finished product, Mr. Waldman has interposed a great and on the whole admirable simplification. . . . But the importance of such a book as this—and it is no small importance—lies in the vitality of his whole achievement. He has given life, and present glowing interest, to a fated and fateful family." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Ralph Roeder's "Catherine de' Medici and the lost revolution" (1937 Viking press $3.75) is a fine biography of which the Booklist says "more solid reading and less imaginative in reconstruction of the life of the characters than Waldman, 'Biography of family'"

* Roman spring; memoirs. 1934 Little $3; Williams & Norgate 12s 6d 92

34-27241

"These reminiscences cover the author's girlhood and young womanhood during the last thirty years or so of the nineteenth century. Mrs Chanler was the daughter of an American painter living in Rome, a niece of Julia Ward Howe, and half-sister of F. Marion Crawford. Her girlhood was spent in Rome where she met many of the great and near-great of the artistic, literary and musical circles of the day. Later she lived for some years in America: in California, Washington (D.C.) and New York, numbering among her friends here, Henry Adams, the Lodges, and the Roosevelts." Book rev. digest

In "Autumn in the valley" (1936 Little $3) continuing from where "Roman spring" left off, Mrs Chanler offers kindly, mellow reminiscences of her mature years in Newport, at her Sweet Brar farm in the Genesee valley, in Paris, Ireland, and on an Aegean cruise

Mrs M. H. Elliott's "My cousin, F. Marion Crawford" (1934 Macmillan $2.50; 10s 6d) treats of some of the same interesting personalities, as Mrs Elliott is also a cousin of Mrs Chanler

Chapman, John Jay

John Jay Chapman and his letters [by] M. A. DeW. Howe. 1937 Houghton $4 92

37-28704

"A 19th century New Yorker with a personality suggestive of Renaissance Italy stands forth self-revealed in this book. . . Mr. Chapman's books and articles, which were fairly numerous, were known to persons who kept in the forefront of civic and intellectual affairs, and some of his writings, such as his memoir of his son, Victor, who was killed in the World war, contained biographical suggestions. Yet the impassioned, capricious, virile personality of an exceptional American . . . reformer and intellectual playboy, is here presented to the public for the first time." Springfield Republican

Chaucer, Geoffrey

Sedgwick, H. D. Dan Chaucer; an introduction to the poet, his poetry and his times. 1934 Bobbs $2.75 92

34-30697

"Addressed to the general reader who would like to enjoy the poet, without wishing to plunge into the formidable sea of Chaucerian scholarship. In an easy and pleasing manner, the author offers a good deal of biographical information, paints the historical background. . . But the charm of the volume lies in the interpreter's own reflections on the nature of poetry and on Chaucer's contribution to the happiness of English readers." Boston

Chesterton, Gilbert Keith

* Autobiography. 1936 Sheed $3; Hutchinson 10s 6d 92

1 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 36-30692

"This autobiography of the regretted Gilbert Keith Chesterton is the story of almost every consequential Englishman of letters in our times except himself. Here is Hardy plain, and Shaw and Wells and Belloc and a host of others. . . Here the great and the near great of England's latter nineteenth and early twentieth century writers, and a platoon of celebrities in politics, publishing and plutocracy, are paraded before us by a sage observer." Chiang, Kai-shek

Berkov, Robert. Strong man of China; the story of Chiang Kai-shek. 1938 Houghton $3 92

1 China—Politics and government 38-3985

"The person and character of the remarkable man . . . survived a dozen desperate attempts to halt his rise in ten years. . . His story is one of a good deal of real hard fighting, of much agile political maneuvering, of much ruthless extermination of persons and organizations that got in his way until he learned at Sian that he had the nation with him." Clay, Henry

Van Deusen, G. G. Life of Henry Clay. 1937 Little $4 92

37-24249

"Differs so completely in conception and execution from the recently published work of [Bernard Mayo entitled 'Henry Clay, spokesman of the new West' (v 1 1937 Houghton $4.50)] that the two books should not be considered as competitors. The later is far more intimate and complete in detail, deals with Clay's background and career to the year 1812, and forms only the first of three projected volumes. Mr. Van Deusen's book is a complete life in one volume and follows the more conventional pattern of a political biography." Sat. rev. of lit

Clemens, Samuel Langhorne

Mark Twain's notebook, prepared for publication with comments by A. B. Paine. 1935 Harper $4; 16s 92

35-19691

Compilation of entries from the notebooks kept by Mark Twain which record the author's life from about 1865 to 1906. It was prepared for publication by Albert Bigelow Paine, who had used some of the material previously in his biography of Mark Twain

"What distinguishes these journals is not the narrative but the confessions. Occasionally in the earlier years, increasingly as he grows older, predominantly in his old age, the notebooks record Mark Twain's intimate thoughts about the world and man and himself, often compressed into aphorisms, nearly always put into literary form." Clum, Woodworth. Apache agent: the story of John P. Clum. 1936 Houghton $3 92

1 Apache Indians 2 San Carlos Indian reservation, Arizona 3 Geronimo, Apache chief 36-2361

"A biography that shows the dread Apaches of the Southwest in a new light and suggests how the whole course of Indian history on this continent might have been modified by the exercise of decency, common sense and justice. John P. Clum was 23 years old when he was appointed Indian agent in charge of the Apaches. This was in 1874 when the 50 years rebellion of that race was at its height. The story of his peaceful rule is dramatic and well worth reading." Wis bul.

Coffin, Robert Peter Tristram

* Lost paradise; a boyhood on a Maine coast farm. 1934 Macmillan $2.50 92

34-35147

"Mr. Coffin's book stands pretty much in a class by itself. It has the superior qualities of virility and insight. . . It runs so true to detail, cuts so deep into outdoor nature, carries such a knowledge of farm economy that it cannot be anything short of autobiography. This, of course, was Mr. Coffin's family; this is the story of his boyhood; this was his father's farm. . . It is a deft and daring piece of work, only possible of accomplishment through the medium of genuine literary art." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"Lost Paradise" is a distinct contribution to the literature of New England. But, dealing as it does with the 'long, long thoughts of youth,' its appeal will be by no means confined to this section alone." Springfield Republican

Collis, William Robert Fitzgerald

Silver fleece; an autobiography; decorations by T. G. Wilson. 1937 Doubleday $2.75; Nelson 15s 92

1 Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 37-9897

"Lively survey of a likable Irish doctor's life from his childhood in revolutionary Ireland on through school days at Rugby during the World war, student days at Cambridge and King's Cottage Hospital with a year at Yale along the way, later research at Johns Hopkins, and a final decision to return to Ireland as physician on the staff of a Dublin hospital. "Adventures of Davy Crockett, told mostly by himself" (1934 Scribner $2.50; 10s 6d) contains the "Autobiography of David Crockett" written in 1834 together with "Colonel Crockett's Texas exploits" which ends with the defence of the Alamo

Cromwell, Oliver

1 Great Britain—History—Civil war and Commonwealth, 1642-1660
34-30370

"To solve the enigma of Cromwell, to dissolve the myth, is the task attempted by two of our most skilled and—in the best sense—popular writers. They have set about their tasks in different ways, good writing and keen interest in political and military problems being almost all that their books have in common. . . Mr. Buchan's is the finer work, the fuller, to outward appearance the more deeply pondered, the less capricious. It is fully annotated, whereas Mr. Belloc's 'Cromwell' 1934 Lippincott $4; Cassell 12s 6d is not. . . To Mr. Buchan's work, it would be unfair if one did not point out that it is very difficult in the course of review to indicate its breadth and depth. It neglects no aspect; it is never marred by adulation and seldom by unwarranted apology. It is, in short, a good and a full biography." Times (London) lit. sup.

Curie, Mme Marie (Skłodowska)

‡ Curie, Eve. Madame Curie, a biography; tr. by Vincent Sheean. 1937 Doubleday $3.50; Heinemann 18s

37-28462

"Into the writing of this definitive biography of the great woman scientist, Eve Curie has brought the skill of a trained writer, the research of a scientist, and the love of a daughter. She describes her mother's early years in which she surmounted all hardships to pursue the course she had chosen, then the tragic death of her husband, and finally her pressing on to new and greater heights of achievement, totally oblivious to fame, honour and health. The world knows the record of her career, but for the first time reads of her background and private life." Ontario library review

Curtiss, Glenn Hammond

"The story of Glenn Curtiss, a country boy who left school at fifteen and began his career by repairing and racing bicycles. Next he attached a motor to a bicycle, and, after that, in 1904, to a balloon, thus making the first dirigible. So began his career in aviation, a life which Clara Studer tells in a manner essentially human, engrossing, and provocative." Cincinnati

34-38009

Also available from Blue ribbon bks. at 98c (Burt bk.)

"This biography of General Custer shows him as a man of great physical courage, but cruel, egotistical, and guided all his life by an insatiable craving for glory." Book rev. digest

"Mr. Van de Water has accumulated evidence until it can hardly be questioned. There is enough of it to damn the man as hard, cruel and irresponsible. Yet the Custer so portrayed is a thousand times more fascinating, has far more claim to sympathy, than the plaster saint of poor Mrs. Custer's loving narratives. This result may be in part Custer's magic, in part Mr. Van de Water's. At any rate, the story has an epic movement, and at the last is heart stirring and somberly beautiful." N.Y. Times

"In an old family album Mrs Deland discovered a picture of a smug little girl taken in Allegheny, Pennsylvania, some seventy years ago. On the back was written 'Maggie, aged six,' and she realized with amazement that it must be of herself as a child. With the picture as a starting point she delved into the past and recalled the first years of her life, her first realization of the meanings of war, patriotism, love and other abstract ideas, and has presented a humorous and clear-cut picture of the mind of a child." as possible, but he has cast new light on the later years which previous biographers have tended to treat rather cursorily in favor of the richer, more romantic early years. In his preface he disclaims any attempt to interpret the mind of his subject, and he admits that he has "no startlingly new thesis to propose." Sat. rev. of lit.

Diaghilev, Sergĕi Pavlovich

Haskell, A. L., and Nouvel, Walter. Diaghileff, his artistic and private life. 1935 Simon & Schuster $3.75; Gollancz 12s 6d 92

1 Ballet 35-27436

"In 'Nijinsky' entered in the main catalog, Diaghileff appeared as a sinister figure. His biographer, collaborating with one of Diaghileff's friends and fellow workers, offers a factual account of his life that is an answer to the Nijinsky book and a defense of the man. It is frank about his weaknesses, particularly his emotional instability and his attitude toward sex, but not sensational, and it is impartial in appraising Diaghileff's influence on the ballet and other arts. Illustrated with photographs of ballet dancers. Lists of productions, and of the casts, in appendices." Bkl.

Dickens, Charles

Maurois, André. Dickens; tr. by Hamish Miles. 1935 Harper $2; Lane 5s 92

35-2662

"In his biographical interpretation M. Maurois refutes the opinion of certain biographers that Dickens was a vain, unjust and hypocritical person. Maurois' viewpoint is sympathetic: he considers his subject not cruel or dishonest, but super-sensitive, and the victim of an unhappy childhood, an adolescent disappointment in love, and an unfortunate marriage. The author discusses also in the course of his biography some of the characters in Dickens' novels." Book rev. digest

"M. Maurois can perceive Dickens' faults whether as a man or a writer, acutely enough, but he insists on thinking of him at his best. . . [He] sees Dickens steadily as a whole, and towering above his frailties as a man and his defects as an artist, sees also his essential greatness." Times (London) lit. sup.

"This biography of a distinguished figure in modern English thought is written by an equally distinguished novelist, his friend and literary executor. The book is based on Dickinson's own autobiographical notes and his letters. A bibliography of Dickinson by R. E. Balfour is appended." Book rev. digest

"The charm of the man's life no less than the delightful account of that life written by one who knew him long and well combine to make this one of the notable contributions to the history of recent civilization and movements for social and international reform. Wisdom, graciousness, tolerance and fine artistry of living are all reflected in its pages, as exemplified by the subject and as interpreted by the author." Boston Transcript

Williams, B. C. George Eliot; a biography. 1936 Macmillan $4; 17s 92

36-27242

"Apart from the fact that Dr. Williams's biography of George Eliot contains several hitherto unpublished letters, the book would be impressive for its freshness and treatment alone, since the letters are, in the main, relatively unimportant. What really matters is that Dr. Williams concentrates on the crucial years of George Eliot's life, those years with George Lewes which formed also the period of her most fruitful writing, to the end that we have a finely judged and fully matured study." Also available in the Star series from Garden City pub. co. at $1

"This volume by the author of the widely read 'Henry VIII' is packed with that witty writing we associate with Mr. Hackett. It presents a colorful and fairly accurate narrative of the exploits of the king. . . In these pages, Francis I, the warrior, by no means always successful warrior, shines out in all his superficial brilliance. . . There is brilliant and colorful writing in this book. Occasionally, however, it is marred by too great a striving for effect. . . Historical biography needs brilliance and color, but dignity also." Sat. rev. of lit.

"Following the author's Andrew Jackson, the Border Captain [entered in the main catalog] this volume begins with the political campaign of 1824 and ends with the death of Jackson. It provides also a study of the background events of the Civil war. Bibliography." Book rev. digest

"Marquis James has demonstrated again the possibility of presenting good, sound history and biography in popular, attractive style. From his pages a living, breathing Jackson steps forth." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

James, Alice

Alice James; her brothers, her journal, ed by A. R. Burr. 1934 Dodd $2.50; Macmillan 10s 6d 92

1 James family 2 James, Henry 3 James, William 34-13412

"About one-third of the book consists of biography of the James family from 1859 to the death of Alice, sister of William and Henry James, in 1892. The Journal of Alice James was written in England during the last four years of her life." Boston

"Full as this journal is of the comments of an extraordinarily receptive and interesting personality, the thing itself is a delight because of the manner in which it is written. We cannot wonder that Henry James said of the journal, 'It is heroic in its individuality, its independence, its face-to-face with the universe for and by herself' . . . and the beauty and eloquence with which she often expresses this, let alone the rich irony and humor, constitute a new claim for family renown." Jefferson, Thomas

Adams, J. T. The living Jefferson. 1936
Scribner $3; 12s 6d 92

36-27203

"Mr Adams's approach to Jefferson combines the interest of the historian and biographer and the zeal of a political pamphleteer. . . . He undertakes to show the origin and nature of Jefferson's political ideas and the extent to which he applied them in his public life, and to contrast them with the ideas which Hamilton, in particular, espoused. . . . Mr. Adams devotes his final chapter to a withering attack on President Roosevelt and the New Deal." N.Y. Times

Jelliffe, Mrs Belinda (Dobson)

For dear life. 1936 Scribner $2.75 92

36-27414

"Autobiography of a woman whose driving ambition was to get an education, and who fought with courage and perseverance against great odds, to rise above her environment. Running away from a childhood on backwoods farms, working her way through second-rate schools, later as servant girl, she never attained her goal, but compromised on a nurses training course in New York. A narrative full of energy and vitality, in some places almost breath-takingly frank." Wis. bul.

Jenghis Khan

Fox, R. W. Genghis Khan. 1936 Harcourt $3; Lane 12s 6d 92

36-10215

"The life story of the Mongolian leader, Temujin, known in world history as Genghis Khan. After several preliminary chapters giving a survey of Mongolian history down to the twelfth century, the book relates the story of Temujin's early years of poverty and humiliation, the gradual growth of his power, and the years of conquest and dominion when his empire eventually included nearly all Asia. The author writes with a certain sympathy and admiration for his subject, calling him one of the greatest military geniuses of all time, and seeing his conquests as not wholly evil. Bibliography." Book rev. digest

Joan of Arc, Saint

* Sackville-West, V. M. Saint Joan of Arc. 1936 Doubleday $3; Cobden-Sanderson 10s 92

36-21818

"The author has attempted, by assembling in a straightforward narrative the well known facts of Joan's career, to come to some solution of the mystery of the Voices, the miracles and the power of the Maid. In her conclusion she admits defeat, torn between instinct and reason, resting in a belief that some day science may find an explanation." Book rev. digest

"Sensible and sympathetic biography. . . . Miss Sackville-West has taken a careful middle course between skepticism and credulity and, in reducing the complicated history of the period to its main factors, keeps the reader's eye with steady pleasure on the main character." Christian science monitor

35-21543

"An attempt to find behind the legends, beneath the documents of the courts which first condemned her and then rehabilitated her, the truth concerning the Maid." N.Y. Times

"Possessing the true story-teller's instinct for the inherently important, Mr. Waldman prints upon his pages nothing that will unnecessarily confuse the reader or clog the latter's thoughtful approach to a great theme. The handling of the final three chapters, those having to do with the preparation for the trial, the trial and the final execution of sentence, are in reality a thumb-nail sketch of the history of the Middle Ages." Boston Transcript

Boswell, James. Life of Johnson; ed by G. B. Hill. rev and enl by L. E. Powell v 1-4 1934 Oxford $28; 84s 92

34-32393

Four volumes of Hill's famous edition, first published 1887 and noted in the main catalog as out of print, are now available. Two more volumes will contain Boswell's Journey of a tour to the Hebrides and Johnson's Diary of a journey into North Wales as well as a complete index. Pagination of the new edition corresponds with the old so that all references to volume and page are still valid for the new edition. This complete and expensive edition will be needed by large libraries only

Jones, Rufus Matthew

Trail of life in the middle years. 1934 Macmillan $2; 8s 6d 92

34-7538

"In two earlier books, Finding the Trail of Life and The Trail of Life in College (entered in the main catalog), Rufus Jones, professor of philosophy in Haverford College, told the story of a boy's finding of himself at two stages of his formative period. He now continues his autobiographical story thru his middle years, the period from 1894 to 1912 while he was editor of the Quaker periodical, The American Friend. Much of the book is given to his activities as editor, teacher and preacher during these years when he was interpreting the faith of the Friends." Book rev. digest

Joséphine, empress consort of Napoleon I

Rheinhardt, E. A. Josephine, wife of Napoleon; English version by Caroline Frederick. 1934 Knopf $3; Hurst 15s 92

34-20390

"The author of this modern biography of Napoleon's first empress, is an Austrian poet and biographer, whose early studies were concerned with psychoanalysis. In this work Herr Rheinhardt attempts to analyze Josephine's real character, to understand her relations with Beauharnais, her children, and Napoleon, and her influence on her times." Book rev. digest

"Attempts to portray Josephine 'from within,' to present her personality and her life in the form of an inner human unity so far have been comparatively few. And Herr Rheinhardt's present attempt is undoubtedly one of the most successful and interesting ones . . . he possesses the gift of grasping the very core, the essential inner logic of the characters he describes. Moreover, at every page one feels that his hand is guided by an intelligent, subtle and highly cultivated mind." N.Y. Times

I am a Cossack. 1934 Longmans $2.50 92
1 Cossacks 2 Russia—Social life and customs 3 Russia—History—Revolution, 1917- 34-34772

"The author of this autobiography was born a member of a noble family in a Cossack village in the Kuban. . . . It was as an engineer that he served Russia during the Great war and later under the Bolsheviks. For a time, however, he was a member of a band of Whites who fought a gorilla warfare against the Bolsheviks, and when these activities became known, it was necessary for him to flee from Russia." Book rev. digest

"The charm of old Russia is here, for the boy visits cousins in various parts of the vast country, knows the way of life in all sections. The intimate knowledge of the Kuban, hitherto largely unexplored territory in books, appeals to all our sense of romance. The terrific drama which the author has seen, and through which he has come unscathed enough to write this serene review, stirs all our spirit." Boston Transcript

Kang, Younghill

East goes west. 1937 Scribner $2.75;
10s 6d 92

37-28619

"In 'The grass roof' [entered in the main catalog] Younghill Kang told of his boyhood in Korea. The present book carries on the story after his arrival in New York, at the age of eighteen, 'green with youth,' and filled with ambitions and dreams. Chinatown, Harlem and Greenwich Village, a provincial college in Nova Scotia, Boston and Cambridge enter into the picture. Friendships with fellow Koreans, other Orientals, and Americans are part of the story, which is always absorbing, with a particular appeal to the cultured readers." Wis. bul.

Kipling, Rudyard

* Something of myself for my friends, known and unknown. 1937 Doubleday $2.50; Macmillan 7s 6d 92

1 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 37-27164

"Intensely readable, brilliant, compact and rapid, this is, essentially, the story of an education and what came of the education. It takes us into the workshop as few writers have been able to do, and shows us how certain things were made. But much of the man the man has kept for himself." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Beresford, G. C. Schooldays with Kipling. 1936 Putnam $3; Gollancz 12s 6d 92

36-19051

"Kipling's roommate at Westward Ho recalls their schooldays together when Kipling was Gigger and he was M'Turk. The deeds and misdeeds of these boys, together with those of General Dunsterville, then Stalky, formed the partial basis for Kipling's novel, 'Stalky & co.' Though amiable in his treatment of Kipling's poses and clever in his portrayal of the boy character, the author has not attempted a profound character analysis. Entertaining reading." Bkl.

Knebworth, Edward Antony James Lytton, viscount

Antony (Viscount Knebworth); a record of youth by his father, the Earl of Lytton. 1936 Scribner $3; Davies 9s 92

36-8066

"As a tribute to his son, Antony, who was killed in an airplane accident in 1933, the Earl of Lytton has allowed publication of some of his letters. Spontaneous and gay, they reveal the growth of a fine, gallant personality, full of youth and zest for life. They disclose a beautiful relationship between father and son, and show the best in the post-war generation and its reaction to life. A fascinating book." Wis. bul.

Kroll, Harry Harrison

* I was a share-cropper. 1937 Bobbs $2.75 92

37-28728

"The author's story of his own life as a share cropper's son, recalling vividly childhood scenes and impressions, and recounting the slow climb upward, by means of photography, rural school teaching and study, to a position of dignity and security as a novelist and magazine writer. As readable as fiction, with wide popular appeal." Wis. bul.

* Diary of Selma Lagerlöf; tr. by V. S. Howard; il. by Johan Bull. 1936 Doubleday $2.50 92

1 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 36-30959

"The concluding volume of the trilogy concerning the childhood life of Selma Lagerlöf, of which 'Mårbacka,' and 'Memories of My Childhood' entered in the main catalog were the others. This diary, written when she was fourteen, covers a winter's stay in Stockholm, where she visited an aunt and uncle in order to have treatments for her lameness." Book rev. digest

"It is a candid journal of events and of the writer's thoughts, grave, eager, and sincere, laden with unconscious humour and revealing with clarity the aspirations and disappointments which were of such great importance to its writer at that time." Ontario library review

Harvest; tr. by Florence and Naboth Hedin. 1935 Doubleday $2.50; Laurie 12s 6d 92

35-27195

"Included in this further garnering of Selma Lagerlöf's harvest of memories, are reminiscences of her own life, chapters on her literary mentors, Swedish and Biblical legends, travel sketches, and four addresses. Marked by the author's delightful, natural simplicity of style which is her art." N.Y. libraries

Lathrop, Julia Clifford

35-33985

"Julia Lathrop is best remembered by the public as the head of the Children's Bureau at Washington from 1912 to 1922.

This biography, however, leaves the story of these years to be told by another hand, and covers her earlier years and the years when Miss Addams and Miss Lathrop worked together in Chicago and Illinois, with a final chapter on the last decade from 1922 to 1932. The work was found in manuscript but practically ready for publication, after Miss Addams' death." Book rev. digest

"Jane Addams collected every possible illustration of Julia Lathrop's individual qualities, those which made her Julia Lathrop and no one else, and she endeavored to point out the various facets of greatness in the woman who 'was attracted to social work as a statesman.' The result is an absorbingly interesting portrait." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Laughlin, Clara Elizabeth

* Traveling through life 1934 Houghton $3 92

1 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 34-27123

"The author pours out her reminiscences in a cheerful, rambling, intimate style that is most pleasant to read. One gets interesting glimpses of the places she's been, the people she's known, for Miss Laughlin has a genius for friendships; her warm and responsive personality takes to its heart the rich and the poor, the ignorant and the gifted and finds some virtue in them all." Lawrence, David Herbert

Lawrence, Mrs F. von R. "Not I, but the wind. . ." 1934 Viking press $2.75; Heinemann 15s 92

34-23828

"Memories of the eighteen years of married life the author had with D. H. Lawrence. . . The book contains also a number of unpublished letters written by Lawrence to his wife, her sister, and her mother, these last being the most important and numerous." Book rev. digest

"This book about D. H. Lawrence by his wife has the feeling of a postscript. It comes last, it is laconic and almost offhand and, like many postscripts, it turns out to contain the gist of the whole matter. . . We could do with much more of point and comment by Mrs. Lawrence. Her desire to be fair is unquestionable; her style has dignity and a completely above-board kind of directness. At times she singularly mingles trivial memories with important generalizations. But in the final chapter all these characteristics combine to produce one of the most moving narratives of death on record." New republic

"No book can hereafter be expected which will so completely detail for us every act of Lee's, even the most apparently trivial. For all this precision and detail, it must not be supposed that Mr. Freeman has written a lifeless, pedestrian work. Far from it; his narrative has vitality and color, a sustained vividness. "Seventeen when he joined the British Flying Corps during the World War, the author was, at its close, a senior Flight-Commander, and 20 years of age. Against the vivid panorama of the sky, the aerodrome, or London on leave, are unrolled incidents, gay and somber, tragic, hazardous, daring and foolhardy, all brought into focus by the gallant debonaire youth whose emotions, memories and impressions, all these years later, have lost nothing, but gained rather in perspective and significance. "Lincoln's friend and law partner devoted himself for twenty-five years to the collection of Lincoln material in the form of letters, interviews with associates and relatives, and records of all kinds. . . It is invaluable source material, never before available, bringing into the open such topics as Nancy Hank's illegitimacy, Lincoln's legitimacy, his periods of mental instability, and his unhappy marriage. It is, however, both repetitious and undiscriminating, presenting opinions as facts." Bkl.

Leacock, S. B. Lincoln frees the slaves. (Great occasions) 1934 Putnam $1.50; Davies 5s 92

1 Slavery in the U.S. 34-5500

"The non-American's view of Lincoln is usually interesting. Sometimes it is characterized by real insight. Stephen Leacock's is unusually so. Long 'fascinated by the career of the great emancipator,' he has brought both the enthusiasm and the perspective of the 'outsider' to his task. . . The book is stimulating and suggestive. The point of view is not orthodox, but it is convincing. The style is compact and forceful." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

"This is not a critical or documented biography but a popular Life, written apparently in the hope of attracting the younger generation of to-day to the study of a poet whose work is in striking contrast with the productions of the contemporary American muse. It should certainly answer that purpose, for it is not only written in a lucid and interesting style, but traces the career of its subject in such a way as to bring into prominence the characteristic features of his personality." He therefore devotes more space to those two years than to her early life or to her imprisonment

A portrait of Sir Hiram Stevens Maxim inventor, engineer, and eccentric personality

"Sir Hiram was the most fascinating kind of father, always unexpected and original in his reactions to events. The son writes without any pretense toward literature, but is so natural and forthright in his telling of the very good stories he has to tell, that the reader is won completely and finishes the book—it is not a long one—in short order, wishing for more." Maximilian, emperor of Mexico

Harding, Bertita. Phantom crown; the story of Maximilian & Carlota of Mexico. 1934 Bobbs $3.50; Harrap 10s 6d 92

1 Charlotte, empress consort of Maximilian, emperor of Mexico 2 Mexico—History 34-35130

Also available in the Halcyon house edition (Blue ribbon bks. $1.49) and also in a 98c edition

"A dramatically written, vivid chronicle of Napoleon III's attempt to rule Mexico thru the agency of the Austrian archduke, Maximilian. The first two sections of the book deal with Maximilian's early life and his marriage with Carlota, and with Napoleon's political plottings which sent them to Mexico. The bulk of the book tells the story of their brief and disastrous

"Mrs. Harding in retelling the story of the Mexican misadventure has done admirable work. Her exceptionally astute insight into character and motive has enabled her to present Maximilian and

Toller, Ernst—Continued

"The present autobiography, which stops with dramatic suddenness at the moment of his release from prison when the threatening cloud of Nazism was just appearing on the horizon, has the vivid interest of a first-hand narrative of troublous times. Even more significant, however, is its revelation of a character formed under the stress of circumstances and repeatedly turned in directions which it would never have taken under normal conditions. . . . He is a radical who still believes in freedom, a left-wing Socialist who still clings to the ideal of abstract justice." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Tolstaiā, Aleksandra L'ovovna, grafiniā

I worked for the soviet. 1934 Yale univ. press $3; Allen, G. 10s 6d 92

1 Russia—History—Revolution. 1917-
2 Prisons—Russia 3 Communism—Russia 34-32704

"Tho not a Communist or Bolshevik, Tolstoy's daughter stayed in Russia for more than ten years after the Revolution, trying to carry on her father's work, first by editing his works, then by turning his home into a museum and a school. She suffered imprisonment and hardships, suspicion and persecution, but it was not until she saw that Bolshevik ideals would finally conquer her father's in the school, that she left Russia." Book rev. digest

"As a personal memoir this book is of the highest possible value. Countess Tolstoy writes with simplicity and brilliance, as well as insight. . . . As a criticism of Russian soviet policies and methods, the book is worthless. It must be read, valued, weighed, always against other books as frankly biased in the other direction." Van Doren, Carl Clinton

* Three worlds. 1936 Harper $3 92
36-27409

"The three worlds of this autobiographical narrative are: the pre-war years, covering the author's boyhood on an Illinois farm, his school and university days; the post-war period of the '20's, with literary life and associations in New York; and the years of boom and depression, to the present. A thoughtful, discriminating work." Wis. bul.

Victoria, queen of Great Britain

* Benson, E. F. Queen Victoria. 1935 Longmans $3.50; 16s 92
35-27133

"'Queen Victoria' is a good story, told with an agreeable lightness of touch. The characters are all deftly, if superficially, presented, and the minor ones are frequently summed up with great intelligence in a few lines. . . . It is with his three major characters, however, that Mr. Benson is at his best. To Victoria, Albert, and Edward the informality of his method contrives, by means of acute observations which have the manner of afterthoughts, to give a new familiarity so that one begins to feel as if one were a regular visitor at Windsor's domestic tea-parties." Sat. rev. of lit.

Bolitho, Hector. Victoria, the widow and her son. 1934 Appleton-Century $5; Cobden-Sanderson 21s 92

1 Edward VII, king of Great Britain 34-30524

"With every effort to be fair-minded Mr Bolitho follows the life of Queen Victoria from the death of the Prince Consort to her own death, with special reference to her relations with the Prince of Wales. The Queen's feeling of loneliness and isolation is clearly shown and its reaction to her dealings with her son." Book rev. digest

"An interesting, readable, straightforward narrative. . . . Mr. Bolitho makes no strikingly new contribution to our knowledge of the period, but his book fills a gap which has long needed to be filled. . . . It has not Strachey's brilliance of style, but it is altogether a thoroughly competent production." New statesman and Nation

* Sitwell, Edith. Victoria of England. 1936 Houghton $3.50; Faber 15s 92

"This book is in no way intended to be a full history of the Queen's reign. It does not attempt to deal with political questions, and is only intended as a portrait of the Queen and some of her contemporaries, and as a record of certain social conditions." Author's note

"The modernity of this biography has not prevented a sincere effort to do justice to a great historical character. This feature of Miss Sitwell's book added to its pictorial and romantic qualities gives it a higher claim than mere enchantingness." Times (London) lit. sup.

Vidocq, Eugène François

Vidocq; the personal memoirs of the first great detective; ed. and tr. by E. G. Rich. 1935 Houghton $3 92

1 Crime and criminals 35-4735

"The lurid career of the Frenchman who, beginning as a criminal, became a police spy and a famous detective, is credited with having furnished inspiration and source material to Balzac, Dickens, Conan Doyle, and other writers. His memoirs, first published in 1827, have been retranslated and condensed. They provide a wealth of entertainment for the reader of detective stories." Bkl.

Voltaire, François Marie Arout de

Brailsford, H. N. Voltaire. (Home univ. lib. of modern knowledge) 1935 Holt $1.25; Butterworth, T. 2s 6d 92

35-27462

"Let it be said with emphasis that this is a book not only to delight the general reader, but one, also, in which the student of the history of ideas will find new angles of approach, new facets of analysis, in every chapter." New statesman and Nation

"Voltaire" by Alfred Noyes (1936 Sheed $3.50; 12s 6d) is a new interpretation of the great French philosopher, picturing him, far from being an atheist, as a man almost obsessed by religion

Webster, Noah

Warfel, H. R. Noah Webster, schoolmaster to America. 1936 Macmillan $3.50; 18s 92

36-9179

"The biography of the 'born definer of words' with special emphasis on the 28 years of work on his American Dictionary of the English language, during which time he was the target for general abuse and ridicule. His other achievements in the fields of politics, medicine and religion, less known but also significant, are mentioned. Written from source material, this is an important study of one character in our history who is far too little known." Wis. bul.

Also available in the Imperial edition (Macmillan $1.39)

"'An Experiment in Autobiography' is certainly to be considered one of Wells's major literary achievements. It is a valid, honest, serious attempt to get at the kind of man Wells himself is. It is one of the most revealing and one of the most interesting of all autobiographies. It is a human document of first-rate importance." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Wharton, Mrs Edith Newbold (Jones)

* Backward glance. 1934 Appleton-Century $3; 10s 6d 92

1 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 34-10082

Memoirs of life in New York in the 70's and 80's, of the author's many friends here and abroad and of her methods of work

"Few literary autobiographies carry us through such diverse scenes as does Mrs. Wharton's; few reveal the sensitive and imaginative spirit of their writer so simply and yet so eloquently. In it are all the graces of the style that has contributed so largely to the acquirement and maintenance of her high stature as a novelist and short story writer. It contains the rich qualities of her fiction, the deep substance of her introspective mind, the extensive reach of her outlook upon life." Boston Transcript

Whitman, Walt

Masters, E. L. Whitman. 1937 Scribner $3.50; 12s 6d 92

37-27166

This biography "combines narrative, psychological interpretation, and study of the poet's ideas in relation to the national background. None of these approaches is very fully realized, but Mr Masters shows greatest interest in understanding Whitman's emotional nature. The biographical narrative is not condensed, but is carried on partly by criticism and partly by citation of biographical passages elsewhere printed." Springfield Republican

McAdoo, Mrs E. R. W., and Gaffey, M. Y. The Woodrow Wilsons. 1937 Macmillan $3.50 92

1 Wilson family

A chronicle of the Wilson family by Wilson's youngest daughter which gives a picture of him as a simple, natural man, a husband and a father, a person, not a "personage." Her recollections also convey intimately the personality of her hardly less vital mother, and the events of Wilson's career as his family shared them through years of happiness and excitement, change and responsibility

Wylie, Mrs Elinor (Hoyt)

Hoyt, Nancy. Elinor Wylie, the portrait of an unknown lady. 1935 Bobbs $2.50 92

35-4386

"Informal biography of Elinor Wylie, written by a younger sister. The reminiscences are largely of a personal nature; they relate to her taste in clothes and food, her friendships with literary personages, her life in England and in Maine. Thru the whole book runs the theme of her devotion to Shelley. Illustrated with family pictures. Contains seven poems from her first book, Incidental Numbers, which was privately printed." Book rev. digest

Zaharoff, Sir Basil

Neumann, Robert. Zaharoff; tr. by R. T. Clark. 1935 Knopf $2.75; Allen, G. 10s 6d 92

36-27071

"Sir Basil Zaharoff has been associated with armaments for the greater part of his life, and is undoubtedly a master in that domain. . . The legend which has been woven round him attributes to him obscure origins, unacknowledged relatives, and a romantic love story. Robert Neumann has thought fit not only to tell us of these things, but to record the various stages of his personal inquiry into such matters as Sir Basil Zaharoff's birth." "The short vigorous sentences, the onrush of which carries the reader from page to page of this work, are vivid with an eager interest in personalities and nations. From cover to cover, the book is virile with this energy of mind. . . . Over certain matters, as it seems to us, Dr. Achorn descends from his own high standard of impartiality. He may be as right as we are wrong. Our object is merely to indicate that a very fine book which carries us through the war and beyond it, necessarily includes verdicts on which opinion is divided." "These two histories [this and Crane Brinton's Decade of Revolution, class 944.04] are parts only of a twenty-volume work entitled The Rise of Modern Europe. If the other volumes come anywhere near either of these two in profundity of scholarship and clarity of exposition no historian will be able to do without the complete series. The bibliographical notes at the end of each book are invaluable, and a remarkably interesting collection of contemporary reproductions are included. These histories are very highly recommended indeed, both to students and the general reader." New statesman and Nation

1 European war, 1914-1918 35-160

"Mr. Cruttwell has performed a remarkable feat in compressing so much fact and so much intelligent commentary on the history of the war into a single volume of six hundred pages. Though his criticisms are necessarily a little abrupt and plain-spoken, he is notably fair on the whole. . . . Mr. Cruttwell tells us nothing at all about the campaigns in East, West, and South-West Africa, nor about the Irish rebellion, or the Archangel 'side-show.' But every one-volume history of this world-wide conflict must be open to such criticisms. This author has, at any rate, given us a clear and unprejudiced picture of the war (in which he personally played a gallant part) in a volume of handy and popular size and written in popular style." New statesman and Nation

1 European war 1914-1918—U. S. 2 U. S. Army. A. E. F., 1917-1920 36-6451

"One of the best of the histories of the A. E. F. in France during the World War. Major General Harbord with varied experience in high commanding positions writes authoritatively of conferences and events of which he was a part. Especially illuminating are his shrewd comments on the lack of coordination of President Wilson with General Pershing, his keen characterizations of English and French generals and politicians and his dramatic reports of the relations between General Pershing, the allied governments and their military chiefs. 17 half-tones, 9 maps." *N. 1 U.S.—Foreign relations 2 European war, 1914-1918—U.S. 3 U.S.—Neutrality 35-27317

A history of the foreign affairs of the United States from June, 1915, thru 1917. The author's death in 1928 prevented its continuation beyond that point. Certain portions of the manuscript not directly related to the World war have been omitted and the material has been arranged so that sketches of Wilson, Balfour, Joffre,

Bernstorff and Zwiedinek, and some pages on the social life of Washington follow the main text

"Mr. Lansing's narrative throws a flood of suggestive light upon the problem of American neutrality." Books (N.Y. Herald Tribune)

Another cabinet officer of the same period, N. D. Baker, in "Why we went to war" (1936 Harper $1.50; Royal inst. of int. affairs 6s) recounts from his own recollections and from documentary evidence the events leading to American participation in the European war

1 U.S.—Foreign relations 2 European war, 1914-1918—U.S. 3 Wilson, Woodrow 34-11641

"A series of lectures delivered at the Page School of International Relations by a leading American authority on the subject. Specifically, he discusses the question of how Wilson, determined at first to stay out of the war, was finally driven to the conclusion that the United States must take a hand. It was the German submarine warfare and nothing else that forced him to lead America into the war." Foreign affairs

"Dr. Seymour's carefully documented account of the progress of American diplomacy through a critical period is a valuable addition to war literature. We feel that he has gone to the heart of many a disputed matter. He has been fair enough to cite opinions at variance with his own." Boston Transcript

Julius Pokorny's "History of Ireland" (2d ed 1933 Longmans $3.40; 8s 6d) is a sympathetic account of Irish history translated by Séana King from the German originally published 1916 and now slightly revised. Special interest is attached to the author's treatment of the origins of Celtic culture which compels attention. It is difficult to find here any information that is new, but the material has been managed with dexterity, and it is no small tribute to a work of this nature to add that its proportions are admirable. . . "Professor G. N. Clark's rare grasp of facts, his impartiality, judgment, and imaginative sympathy, and above all a fitness of style seldom found in the professional historian—are confirmed in his latest work. It contains between four and five hundred closely yet clearly printed pages, not to mention a score of maps and an admirable descriptive bibliography, and I defy anyone, however easily bored, who cares for history, to find a single dull or obscure passage in any of its fourteen chapters." "This volume is a companion to The Four Georges (entered below) and, like its predecessor, it makes no pretence of being a history of England during the period which it covers. It is rather an endeavour to show how the subjects of the Stuarts were affected by, and how they regarded, the chief events of their day." Preface

"The most striking feature of this volume . . . is the close agreement of its contributors in endowing the years covered by King Edward's reign with a quality of their own. They were adventurous years. They broke new ground, in methods of government and in technical achievement no less than in the domain of thought. . . It is indeed remarkable how this characteristic of innovation within the established framework presents itself to writers working independently and engaged on different aspects of the period. It is very clearly brought out in Professor Hearnshaw's study, written with a vivacity which he seldom allows himself, of King Edward's own achievement." Times (London) lit. sup.

"It is everything that a text-book should be, concise, lucid, abounding in fitting reflections and . . . smoothly written. . . He has not attempted to write the history of the last ten years, but has let his book become more and more of a chronicle as it approaches our own day. On the other hand, he has found it possible to give historical perspective both to events between Queen Victoria's death and the outbreak of the War, and to the War itself and the peace treaties which followed it; and his perspective is one which the future historian will surely be unable to dismiss as false." "With rare lapses—some small redundancy; a slight liability to nag; a touch, here and there, of the histrionic—the author maintains a sober and convincing tone. From numberless sources, with tireless, and almost tiring, industry, he has put together a book the great accomplishment of which is that it discloses, for the first time, the dynamics of the Nazi movement. "After a preliminary chapter the book begins with the revolution of 1911 and ends with events in the early months of 1937. It is written from the point of view of an American Communist." Book rev. digest

"The controversial aspects of Mr. Gannes' work are confined almost entirely to his conclusions. For the rest, he has shown commendable objectivity in the face of numerous opportunities to express his preferences for an economic doctrine with which he closely identifies himself in his daily political writings. As a work on Chinese history and as background material, his book measures up to requirements and more than offsets the comparatively small space given to his conclusions." Current history

"America's tragedy has been its unhappy sectionalism, the conflict between two 'wholly incompatible civilizations—the commercial and industrial North and the agrarian South.' Mr. Adams traces from the beginning the rise of this conflict, sketches in the general background of the sections in the period from 1820 to 1860 and outlines the sequence of events that led to the tragedy of the Civil war. The latter half of the book is given to the war itself and its aftermath." Book rev. digest

1 U.S.—History—1815-1861 2 U.S.—History—Civil war 34-5502

"The book is mainly concerned with the decade preceding the outbreak of the Civil war, with the widening breach between North and South, the irrepressible conflict between two civilizations resting upon different social systems and interests. Professor Cole shows the daily life of the people during this period and the life of the civilian population during the war years. The final chapter is a critical essay on authorities. Index." Book rev. digest

"Professor Cole has succeeded well in what was obviously a difficult task. He has accumulated an imposing mass of details of the most varied character, but his outlines are clear and his material is kept firmly in hand. The book is as readable as it is instructive. A work of praise should be said also for the comprehensive list of authorities and the well-chosen contemporary illustrations." N.Y. Times

"The Eve of Conflict will not permit of a cursory dismissal. It is characterized by a restrained treatment of the author's hero and it is free from petulant denunciation of Douglas's opponents. An appreciation of the complicated nature of the questions at issue is apparent throughout the work, and one of the most valuable contributions of the author to an understanding of these troubled years will be found in his skilful integration of such factors as the influence of westward expansion, the trans-continental railroads, the Nativist movement, and the 'reform' agitation of the mid-century with the major political issues of the era." The Donner party was a group of California emigrants who, in the winter of 1846-47, were caught by storms in the mountains on their way west. Many of them perished; some lived only by cannibalism; all passed thru terrible hardships. "This account is intended for a full and critical history of that ill-fated band of pioneers, and has been made possible by the remarkable preservation of detailed records. It is strictly factual." Preface

"As Mr. Stewart tells the tale, it comes to life in horror and tragedy. He writes swiftly, surely, dramatically, and with impartial accuracy. Almost every member of the party is recreated with skill and sympathy. His book is grand—if you have the stomach for the story." Sat. rev. of lit.

Author, Title, Subject and Analytical Index

The index, including author, title, subject and analytical entries, is arranged in one alphabet.

References in the index are to class number, not to pages in this catalog. These numbers are given in boldface. Running class numbers are carried at the top outside corner of each page.
